Alibi Frees Ex-Partner Of Arlington Bomb Victim

Detective's Check Of McDaniel's Story Leaves Police Without a Lead

Arlington County police last night released Billy L. McDaniel and admitted they were as far as ever from a solution of the Monday bomb-murder of William A. Denekas.

McDaniel, 32-year-old former business partner of the slain man, was freed at 10:40 p. m. after police had checked and rechecked his alibi.

Police know the bomb was planted in the Denekas car between the hours of 3 and 11 a. m Monday while it was parked in front of the home of Mrs. Lorena Strader at 5837 N. 27th st., Arlington, where Denekas lived.

McDaniel's claim that he was in Staunton, Va., during that time was checked yesterday in Staunton by Arlington Detective Sergt. Dudley Rector.

Detective Backs Claim

McDaniel, who was picked up by Arlington detectives in Harrisonburg, Va., late Monday night, returned here and held for nearly 24 hours on an open charge, was released when Rector returned to Arlington last night and reported the results of his investigation in Staunton.

Rector told reporters "several persons" had seen McDaniel Sunday night at the Staunton Neon Sign Co., where he is employed. He said they also told him McDaniel slept at the company office Sunday night.

With McDaniel's release, Harry L. Woodyard, Arlington police chief, announced gloomily:

"We have no definite suspect at the present time."

McDaniel and Denekas were partners in a neon sign business until about two months ago in Arlington. McDaniel left Arlington after the partnership was dissolved.

Gives Police 5 or 6 Names

As he was freed, weary and haggard, but neatly dressed, McDaniel told a reporter of The Washington Post, "I'm glad that's over."

He said that he planned to return to Staunton immediately, that he had given detectives the names of five or six persons for questioning and that he hoped "they catch the killer."

Detectives confirmed that McDaniel had given them several leads but said none of them looked "very hot" at this time.

Meanwhile, police have narrowed the time in which the bomb was placed under the seat of the Denekas car to about two hours—at least in theory.

Denekas did not park his car until about 3 a. m. And there were only about two hours until daylight. Chief Woodyard believes the murderer did his work before dawn.

However, he admits there is

Atomic Workers Oppose Lilienthal, Vote for Strike

Oak Ridge, Tenn., June 8 (AP).—In a sharply worded resolution, atomic laboratory workers tonight opposed reconfirmation of David E. Lilienthal and other members of the Atomic Energy Commission and unanimously authorized their AFL union to call a strike.

Some 500 workers at a mass meeting adopted the resolution opposing Lilienthal's reconfirmation as chairman of the AEC "for his open support" of the contractor, Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp.

They are among the 875 members of the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council who are under 80-day Federal injunction preventing a strike or company lockout at the atomic plant here.

Food, Coffins Exempted

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

By a 116-to-71 standing vote, the House late yesterday approved and sent to the Senate the bill to launch a 2 per-cent general retail sales tax in Washington. The measure also would remove the personal District income tax from brackets below $8000 a year.

The sales tax would take effect about September 1 if Federal and District employes get a general pay increase from Congress. Without the budget-boosting pay increase, sponsors have agreed to make the sales tax effective July 1, 1949. The income-tax change would apply to incomes received this year, but not to the payments being made this year on last year's income.

Passage of the tax bill came at the end of a hard-hitting two-hour fight in which opponents protested that the sales tax would strike hardest the low-income groups least able to pay it.

Sponsors of the plan fought off attempts to scrap the bill, to make

New Mexico Gives Lead To Anderson

(Picture on Page 8)

Albuquerque, N. Mex., June 8 (AP).—Former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson took an early lead tonight in his primary election bid for a United States Senate seat from New Mexico.

With President Truman's indorsement, he seeks the Democratic nomination for the seat now held by Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.). He is opposed by former Gov. John J. Dempsey of Santa Fe. Both are former United States Representatives.

The count:

Democratic Senate: 34 incomplete precincts of 868: Anderson, 1775; Dempsey 916.

Democratic Governor, 35 precincts incomplete: Gov. Thomas J. Mabry, 1224; Eugene Allison, 595; Ralph Gallegos, 245.

Democratic Congress, 31 precincts incomplete: Representative Antonio M. Fernandez, 924; Representative Georgia Lusk, 633; John E. Miles, 622; Floyd Kennedy, 277; Arthur Seefeldt, 59.

Republican Congress, 6 incomplete: Ben Meyer, 35; Earl Douglas, 34, and Herman Baca, 61.

Republican Governor, 6 incomplete: Manuel Lujan, 81; Ernest Everly, 11; Philip Hubbell, 19; Boscoe Powers, 7.

Four Alexandria councilmen, and mayors and council members of Falls Church, Fairfax, Vienna and Clifton were electde yesterday in Virginia municipal elections, marked by exceptionally light voting throughout the area.

Similar apathetic voting was reported in most of the State's other incorporated cities and towns, with only Richmond reporting somewhat of a voter's battle for nine posts to its new city council set up by a new city charter.

In-Between Convention Session Seen

Taft Tells Martin Congress Probably Won't Meet 'Must' Slate by June 19

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A "between conventions," or late summer session of Congress became a probability last night, with these developments:

1. The Senate Republican Policy Committee raised "serious doubts" that the Senate can complete its "must" slate by June 19.

2. Senate Republican Policy Chairman Robert A. Taft later advised House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., that in his opinion it is "probable" Congress cannot meet the deadline.

In the event the present adjournment race fails, Taft told reporters the Senate Republican Policy Committee "rather favors" returning to Washington for two weeks between the Republican National Convention (June 21) and the Democratic Convention (July 12).

Still Isn't Definite

Speaker Martin said it still isn't "definite" Congress can't complete its work in the next ten days, but if it can't it might be well to wait until "all three" national conventions have been held.

The Third Party (Wallace) convention meets in Philadelphia the week of July 21. Martin's suggestion, if adopted, thus would mean an August session of Congress.

The Speaker said no conclusions will be reached by House leaders until later this week, adding:

"I think the House will be ready but if the Senate can't finish that's all there is to it. In that case we may not try to rush a lot of bills through here next Friday (June 18) instead of staying late Saturday."

Taft's announcement, jolting adjournment plans, followed a lengthy luncheon meeting of the Senate Republican Steering group called to canvass the legislative jam.

Only three bills, in addition to the pending two-year draft, were definitely slated for Senate action by the group. They were:

The Vandenberg United Nations resolution paving the way for American aid to a proposed European defense alliance. This will be called up following the Senate vote on the draft.

Long Range Program

The House-approved one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, curbing the President's tariff-making powers but modified somewhat by the Senate Finance Committee. This may start through the Senate Thursday.

A long-range farm program, replacing expiring farm price supports. This will follow Reciprocal Trade Act extension on the Senate docket.

Taft said there has been no decision to "drop" any major piece of legislation. In fact, it is to assure action if possible on all, that the Senate steering group questioned the June 19 adjournment.

In addition to the regular appropriation bills, which Taft said might not all clear the Senate by the end of next week, the Ohioan listed these other undocketed bills in the works that Congress might

'No War If Congress Backs Me,' Truman Assures Montanans

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Butte, Mont., June 8.—President Truman told his first Montana audience in his cross-country tour tonight that "you won't have to fight" another war "if we will support the projects I have sent to the Congress." He did not specify what proposals he had in mind.

The assurance was given in an extemporaneous speech at Dillon, Mont., where a crowd of 3500 persons greeted Mr. Truman at a train stop.

He praised the record of the Midwest and Northwest in producing minerals, food and fiber needed to win the war. He said that if we keep up production and continue support of the United Nations so as to make it work, the country will have peace.

"That is what we fought the war for," he said, "and we don't want to fight another one to get that peace. And if we will support the projects I have sent to the Congress, you won't have to fight that war."

Then Mr. Truman moved on to Butte, where he was to deliver an address later tonight. It was expected in his party that he would criticize Congress on high prices, scarcity of housing and other current situations.

In Butte he also is to have a meeting with politicians and civic officials, perhaps to take some of the sting out of some Democratic leaders' complaints that they are being ignored on the President's trip.

Earlier today Mr. Truman resumed his feud with Congress. At one point in his tour of Idaho he said he came out here to "needle" Congress into action on some of the things the West desires.

He motored 180 miles this morning from Sun Valley to Idaho Falls, where he got aboard his 14-car special train. Crowds were out in every town along the way, flags were flying, and youngsters were waiting to give Mr. Truman presents.

In Blackfoot, Idaho, a little girl gave the Chief Executive a stick of chewing gum.

"That's just what I needed," he said, smiling.

In Idaho Falls a 7-year-old boy gave him a fist full of candy—jelly beans.

Mr. Truman, talking off the cuff, told the Idaho ranchers what they wanted to hear. He talked about the importance of power and irrigation projects in this region.

In Idaho Falls, he saw the largest municipally owned hydro-electric plant in the country, located beside the cataract of the Snake River.

"I like municipally owned electric plants," he said, "and I like public power. I have been trying to improve the public power situation in the Northwest. I am not

Capital Transit Is Expected To Request Increase in Fares

Capital Transit Co. is expected to ask the Public Utilities Commission for permission to raise bus and streetcar fares to 11 or 12 cents and eliminate the sale of weekly passes — probably within two weeks.

This was the concensus among "insiders" yesterday when speculation concerning CTC's rate increase plans broke out anew following Baltimore Transit Co.'s bid for higher fares Monday.

The Baltimore company asked the Maryland Public Service Commission to raise fares from 10 cents to 15 cents or two tokens for a quarter. It has been operating "in the red" since January, it told the MPSC.

Capital Transit Co., on the other hand, has been making money since the first of the year and will seek merely enough additional income to cover costs of a 10-cent-an-hour across-the-board wage increase granted hourly rate workers on June 1.

Company officials have estimated the raise will add one million dollars to CTC's payroll.

A net income of more than $246,000 was reported by CTC during the first four months this year, with a steady advance during each of the four months. If the same amount were earned for the remaining eight months this year, it would show a net earning of $738,000.

Considering the trend of improvement it is assumed the amount would be boosted to approximately one million, permitting it to "break even" on operations without a fare increase.

Two-Year Draft Law Limit Voted by Senate

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Moving slowly toward passage of the 19-through-25 draft bill, the Senate last night voted to cut the life of the measure from five to two years.

In between prolonged oratory from a prairie State opponent, the Upper House adopted two major amendments and voted down several others during a 12-hour-long session.

By a vote of 47 to 33, the Senate overruled its Armed Services Committee and gave the bill only a two-year duration. It acted in the face of warnings that it will mean another adjournment-eve draft battle in the 1950 election year.

The only other amendment approved during the day was Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's proposal to enlist 25,000 aliens in the Army. Adopted by 43-to-33 vote, it calls for enlisting men aged 18 through 35 during the next two years. They would be scattered throughout Army units overseas.

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) held the floor during a large part of the day yesterday, as he did Friday and Monday. Talking against the draft he read at length from Henry Wallace's speeches.

An amendment offered by the lanky North Dakotan to restrict profits on defense contracts to 10 per cent was voted down by voice vote when he finished speaking last night. He promised another prolonged speech again today.

The touchy racial relations question was raised again in the Senate's second night session in two days. Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.) called up his amendment to require that drafted or enlisted men who desire it be allowed to serve in segregated units.

In a lengthy speech, the Georgian defended his proposal as "true civil rights." He charged that both the Republicans and Democrats are "playing election year politics" and bidding for the Negro vote in their tactics on civil rights legislation.

But, predicted Russell, "if Henry Wallace stays in the race, he will capture a large part of the Negro vote without regard to any promise or any action on the part of the Democrats and Republicans."

Adoption of the admendment cutting the life of the draft bill from five to two years was largely the result of a near solid vote for it by the "Solid South." Southern Senators who normally support most defense legislation went

65-Million Building Loan in Measure Sent to House Floor

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

After months of study and public hearings, the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday reported a bill designed to strengthen and clarify American relationship to the United Nations.

Among its many provisions was one to authorize a 65-million-dollar loan for building the new United Nations headquarters in New York. Unless the loan is granted, the committee said in its report, "the location of the headquarters of the United Nations in the United States might very possibly be put in question."

The loan is needed, the committee said, "in order to give reassurance and prevent further deterioration in the international situation."

Committee Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) intends to seek a suspension of the rules if there is no other way to get the bill before the House at this session. He spent much of yesterday stating the case for speedy action to members of the House leadership.

Eaton's report said it was up to the House and especially to the Foreign Affairs Committee, "to exercise leadership in the endeavor to resolve the contradictions and to clarify the confusions before the American people in their earnest wish for a stable world."

"The Nation's responsibility for world leadership was not discharged—indeed, it was only begun—by the coming into effect of the Charter," the report said. "The Nation has a continuing obligation of leadership to see that the high hopes for which the United Nations was created must not end in frustration."

The first part of the bill was an important policy declaration, paralleling in most respects the resolution which Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hopes to bring before the Senate this morning.

The House bill stated five

Soviet Halves Reparations Of 2 Satellites

Romania Informed Of News by Stalin, Hungary by Molotov

London, June 8 (U.P.)—Russia has cut in half the balance due on reparations payments from both Hungary and Romania, the Moscow radio said tonight.

In similar letters dated yesterday, Premier Josef Stalin wrote Petru Groza, chairman of the Romanian Council of Ministers, and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov informed Hungarian Foreign Minister Erich Molnar of the reductions.

Molotov's letter to Molnar said the Soviet government, "guided by a desire to facilitate the efforts of the Hungarian people to restore and develop the economy of the Hungarian republic and, bearing in mind the friendly relations that have been established between our countries," decided to cut reparations.

Stalin's letter said the decision was made "to assure the speediest recovery of Romanian economy."

The Soviets left the door open for their satellites to request reductions when they cut Finnish reparations last week. Romania and Hungary acted on June 4, it was said.

[Each of the three nations originally owed Russia 300 million dollars in reparations. The cut for Romania in the amount outstanding will total about 55 million dollars; Finland's amounted to 70 million dollars. The cut for Hungary was not indicated.]

Flood of Buying Sends Up Prices On Stock Market

New York, June 8 (AP).—A flood of buying orders swamped the stock market late today and sent prices soaring, in some instances by more than $3 a share.

The advance whirled the price level up to the 21-month peak first reached this year in mid-May. Numerous issues sold at the highest prices for the year or longer.

The belief spread that the spring advance in the market was getting under way again and a climax was reached near the close of trading as buying orders came in from all quarters.

'Liar' Passed in Ottawa

Dominican Republic Diplomat Challenges Argentine to Duel

Ottawa, June 8 (U.P.)—Latin blood was boiling furiously in the diplomatic set here today as the Dominican Republic Consul General called the Argentine Ambassador "a liar" and challenged him to a duel.

Julio A. Ricart, of the Dominican Republic, and Juan Carolos Rodriguez, the Argentine Ambassador, already were taking verbal pot shots at each other. The diplomatic tempest concerned alleged insults to fair ladies, the Argentine Embassy's dogs and an entire gamut of social snubs.

Ricart wrote Rodriguez five days ago demanding an apology or a "duel on the field of honor" because he was insulted at an Argentine cocktail party in May and was not invited to a later Argentine reception on May 25.

This whole diplomatic turmoil began, Ricart explained, at the cocktail party. He "made some pleasantry about the dogs"—a sore subject currently to the Argentine Embassy.

The Ottawa Humane Society, spurred by rumors that the Argentines were mistreating their dogs, dropped in recently to investigate.

"I made a comment about the dogs and I received the answer from the Ambassador's wife that I belonged to a Negro country," Ricart said. "When the Ambassador's wife insulted me, if I was a little drunk before, I became perfectly sober."

Ricart said that Senora Rodriguez apologized later at the party for her remark and that he considered the incident closed until he was left off the invitation list for the Argentine reception. That's when he challenged Rodriguez to a duel.

Rodriguez declined the duel on the ground that he must "respect Canadian laws."

U. N. Asks Jews, Arabs To Halt War By Friday

Mediator Sets Zero Hour and Fixes Conditions For 4-Week Truce

Lake Success, June 8 (AP). Jews and Arabs have been asked by the United Nations to stop the Palestine war at 1 a. m. (EST) Friday.

Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. mediator, messaged from his Cairo headquarters today he had fixed the zero hour and laid down conditions under which a four-week armistice would be carried out.

Bernadotte gave the two warring groups until 7 a. m. (EST) Wednesday to accept or reject the cease-fire order.

He told them that if they rejected the cease-fire or accepted it with conditions he would refer the entire matter back to the Security Council.

"It is my earnest hope," he said, "that the decision will be accepted unconditionally."

Immigration Is Issue

United Nations officials said the immigration issue was the one big obstacle in the cease-fire terms.

While no one would attempt to anticipate whether the Jews and Arabs would accept the terms laid down by the U.N. mediator in Cairo, it was generally agreed here that neither of the warring parties would be entirely happy with the terms.

The truce details were released here shortly after it was announced in Washington that 21 United States military observers would leave immediately for the Holy Land.

Soviet delegates appeared surprised. They had no immediate comment. Unofficially, they made it clear that the whole question of military observers would be thrashed out in the Security Council, perhaps on Thursday at 1:30 p. m. (EST). Russia wants to send observers also.

Conditions Outlined

From Cairo, Bernadotte sent a message to the U. N. outlining these conditions which he had given to the two warring groups for observing the armistice:

1. No fighting personnel, including persons identified as belonging to miltary organizations as well as all persons bearing arms, shall be introduced into any of the Arab countries or into any part of Palestine.

2. As regards men of military age, the mediator shall exercise his discretion during the truce period to determine whether men of military age are represented among immigrants in such numbers as to give one side a military advantage and in such event shall refuse them entry. Those of military age who do enter Palestine will be kept in camps under supervision of U. N. observers.

Observers Provided

3. The mediator will exercise a check on all immigrants at the ports of embarkation and debarkation and shall place U. N. observers on ships bearing immigrants.

4. During the first week of the truce, the mediator may ban all immigrants.

5. Movement of troops or war materials from one country to another or close to the fighting fronts is prohibited for the four-week period.

6. All fighting fronts and lines shall remain stabilized during the truce period. There shall be no increase in fighting strength or in war materials on hand but routine replacement of troops may be undertaken.

7. War materials must not be imported into the country or territory of any interested party.

8. Relief to populations of both sides in municipal areas such as Jerusalem and Jaffa shall be ad-

Turkish Cabinet Falls as Result of Domestic Policies

Ankara, Turkey (Wednesday), June 9 (AP).—Premier Hasan Saka's government collapsed early today under mounting criticism from the public and its own political party over domestic economic policies.

President Ismet Inonu immediately asked Saka to form a new government.

Political circles said they believed the next cabinet would have new ministers in the economic, commerce, labor and possibly the agricultural ministries.

Shortages of staple foodstuffs, charges of irregularities in the export of grains and failure of the government to adjust Turkey's weak economic structure led to the cabinet's resignation.

New Ecuador President Sold Apples in N. Y. During Depression, Rebuilt Family Fortune

Galo Plaza Lasso, Ecuador's apparent new President, goes the American "log-cabin-to-White-House" tradition one better.

He sold apples on a New York street to keep alive during the Great Depression.

It was typical of the man, who, when appointed Ambassador to the United States in 1944, said: "I have never worn striped pants and I never will."

He could have written his father, General Plaza, former President of Ecuador, for funds. But he determined to make his own way even though the fruits of his labor were only depression apples.

Played Football on Coast

Plaza Lasso, 42 years old, a shade over 6 feet tall and muscular, could easily be typed as a "heavy" in a Western movie. With his graying, wavy hair and rugged features, women probably would term him handsome.

He walks with the litheness acquired in his teens when he played football at the University of California.

Later he studied agriculture at the University of Maryland, then entered Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, taking night courses while working as attache at the Ecuadorean Embassy by day.

That was in the turbulent twenties—the era of bootleg hootch and coonskin coats, of fun and flappers and the Varsity Drag. And Plaza Lasso enjoyed them all.

He enjoyed them so much in fact that his father, the general, suggested it might be a good idea to give up his roadster and similar accoutrements, go to New York and get a job on his own. That, coupled with the crash of 1929, added up to the apple selling venture.

Later he sold real estate "for the free lunches involved when showing customers about," and finally shipped out as assistant purser on a Grace Line ship.

Restores Family Fortunes

Returning to Ecuador in 1933, the former playboy settled down and married.

By hard work and determination he restored the family fortunes that had dwindled during the depression. He became owner of a huge ranch, a model for the country, because of use of modern machinery and up-to-date breeding and agricultural methods.

Inheriting an interest in politics from his father, Plaza Lasso set about to bring democratic reforms to his country.

The guiding light of the "Democratic Civic Movement," he routed the Conservatives and was elected Senator in 1947.

On his record as Ambassador, two points seem certain—he will be in accord with United States ideals and he will get things done with a minimum of debate.

Plaza Leads Close Race In Ecuador

GALO PLAZA LASSO
Wins in Ecuador

Quito, Ecuador, June 8 (U.P.)—with only 30 electoral districts still to be counted, American-educated Galo Plaza today was leading his nearest opponent in Sunday's presidential election by 2000 votes.

Results announced by the Supreme Electoral Tribunal gave the 42-year-old former ambassador to the United States 111,822 votes to 109,678 for Conservative Candidate Manuel Elicio Flor.

After the supreme electoral tribunal yesterday announced that Plaza had won, his 5000-vote lead was reduced considerably by unexpected strong support for Flor in remote districts.

Greek Rebels Hit in South

Athens, June 8 (U.P.)—Guerilla bands, fighting in southern Greece for the first time in months, moved southward today as government air and ground fighters closed in on them.

Rebel forces estimated at between 200 and 300 men attacked civil defense forces in the towns of Lekaina, Andravida, Amalias and Gastouni in the western Peloponnesus late last night.

The four towns held out for 12 hours, until fighter planes and army reinforcements from Patras and Kyparissia arrived. "Numerous" prisoners were taken by troops who attacked the guerillas at Lekaina, the government announced tonight.

The War Ministry announced that 40 persons had been arrested in the ports of Patras and Piraeus for aiding young Greeks to avoid service in the army by fleeing the country.

Detailed reports on the fighting in South Greece could not be obtained because the guerillas had cut telephone and telegraph wires soon after the 12-hour attack began.

Premier Signs Constitution

Prague, June 8 (U.P.)—Communist Premier Klement Gottwald today signed Czechoslovakia's new constitution, which former President Eduard Benes had refused to sign before his resignation yesterday.

Gottwald acted shortly after he called on Benes at the latter's country home. The subject of their talk was not disclosed. Gottwald reportedly may succeed Benes.

The official announcement said the constitution, approved May 9 by a Communist-purged Parliament, will go into effect as of midnight June 9. It will replace the constitution that Benes helped fashion in 1920.

A government announcement yesterday said that under the 1920 constitution the Premier is empowered to sign laws and summon the National Assembly if the country is without a President.

The new Parliament, handpicked by Communists and approved in "yes" or "no" voting May 30, thus will hold its first meeting Thursday in an aura of complete legality.

U. N. Measure Reported Out

American policies for strengthening the U. N., as follows:

1. Confirming the status of the U. N. in its New York site, with the necessary privileges and immunities for its staff.

2. "Seeking by voluntary agreements, interpretations and practices" to eliminate the Security Council veto on questions of peaceful settlement and the admission of new members.

Pushes U. N. Police Force

3. Pressing for agreements to provide armed forces for the U. N. and to control armaments and atomic energy.

4. "Encouraging and associating the United States with" arrangements of collective self-defense, such as the western European union; also making clear that America's right of self-defense under the Charter can be used in case of "aggression upon any member of the U. N. in another part of the world.

5. Consulting with other U. N. members about the possibility of amending the Charter "to enable the United Nations more effectively to prohibit, and prevent aggression or other breaches of the peace."

Only this last point, strongly opposed by the State Department, went beyond the policy declarations in Vandenberg's resolution. The House committee report insisted that this did not propose a specific amendment of the Charter; "it states the intention of the United States Government to examine the need and the possibility of amending the Charter."

The committee disclaimed any desire to upset the U. N. by "premature and ill-advised efforts." It added, however, that existing institutions were not perfect and that "we must not close our minds to their possible improvement."

Apart from its policy statements, the House bill wrapped into a single package the following concrete proposals affecting American relationships with the United Nations:

(1) Creating a new $20,000-a-year post of deputy representative to the United Nations, and enabling the United States Government to lend personnel to international organizations;

(2) Approving new privileges and immunities for U. N. officials; among them a provision exempting American officials of the U. N. from American taxes, but requiring them to pay the equivalent into a United Nations fund by means of salary deductions;

(3) Authorizing the 65-million-dollar U. N. headquarters loan.

"All of these proposals share a common objective, namely, the strengthening of the United Nations," said the committee report, explaining why all these were combined into a "single-package" bill.

French Cabinet Votes for New German Setup

Paris, June 8 (AP).—The French Cabinet today approved the six-power agreement to set up a separate western German state, and prepared to push it through an unfriendly Parliament by the end of the week.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault got unanimous Cabinet approval of principal provisions in the agreement during a five-hour session under President Vincent Auriol.

The agreement is not popular in France, for concessions to Germany are traditionally regarded without favor. But Bidault and Premier Robert Schumann began immediately to map their strategy for winning parliamentary approval.

Only a few items in the pact remain to be considered, mainly arrangements necessary for a currency reform in western Germany. These are to be cleaned up at a second Cabinet meeting Wednesday.

Bidault has been sharply criticized in the press and in Parliament for allegedly "weakly defending" French interests in negotiating the agreement. He is to defend his stand in a closed meeting of the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee Wednesday.

A communique published after today's Cabinet meeting said the administration would take the agreement before the Assembly Friday and Saturday for a full debate on foreign affairs.

The agreement to establish a separate federal government for western Germany was announced yesterday by the United States, France, Britain and the Benelux countries (Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg). The powers occupying Germany also agreed to retain their troops there until Europe's peace is secured.

If the government should be defeated in Parliament, it would be placed in an almost impossible situation.

Secretary of State Pierre Abelin, speaking for the government, said it has decided not to stake its life on approval of the agreement by demanding a vote of confidence.

But Bidault's political future depended on its approval.

'Potential Surpluses' Is Problem in Europe

Paris, June 8 (NYHT).—"Potential surpluses" in western European production were referred to today by W. Averell Harriman, American Ambassador-at-large for the Economic Cooperation Administration, as "the most urgent problem" facing the 16 Marshall Plan partners.

Harriman's warning surprised many observers by its optimistic overtones. The United States has been regarded here until now as the only producer of surpluses worth worrying about.

But the Ambassador-at-large asserted at a press conference that data recently assembled indicate "certain surpluses" are going to accumulate in some European countries unless the Organization for European Economic Cooperation succeeds very soon in getting intra-European trade moving.

Third Flood Hits Valley

Portland, Oreg., June 8 (AP).—The third wave of the Columbia River flood rolled into the main valley today—the twentieth day of battling against rampaging waters in the Pacific Northwest.

A 5-year-old child drowned at Portland and two bodies were recovered from shattered Vanport, lifting the number of Pacific Northwest flood dead to 30. The homeless totaled 60,000. Property damage was in the multi-millions.

The known dead at Vanport, destroyed in the first wave nine days ago, now is four. The Red Cross reported the list of unlocated Vanport persons was dwindling hourly. The list had 725 names yesterday. It was down to 545 today.

The third flood wave was riding from mountain tributaries, 1000 miles upstream, where the hottest sun of the season was melting snowfields.

It will be felt in the critical lower river area Thursday. By Saturday the river is expected to be back up nearly to the height of the first and most destructive crest.

That wave smashed Vanport, a city of 18,700, closed countless waterfront industries and burst into thousands of acres of rich farmland.

The second wave, which reached the ocean yesterday, added to the damage. All told, Army engineers estimate 414,000 acres in the Columbia basin have been flooded. Soil damage has been tremendous.

The third wave is expected to push the Columbia up to 30.1 feet Saturday, 15.1 feet above flood level, at Vancouver, Wash., and only two to three inches under the first crest.

It may go even higher.

New Soviet Restrictive Action Threatened in Berlin Area

Berlin, June 8 (AP).—The threat of new Russian restrictive measures against the western powers hung over Berlin today.

The latest tense feeling stemmed from an old dispute about Russian occupation of a Berlin radio station which is in the British occupation sector.

After negotiating with the Soviet military administration over the station for the past two years, the British have asked the Russians to "accelerate their vacation of the premises."

The Soviet news bureau responded that "since the communication lines of Berlin with the western zones run through the Soviet occupation zone, countermeasures are likely."

Maj. Gen. V. J. E. Westropp, British deputy chief of staff, said in his letter to the Russians that "ample time has now been given the Soviets to allow them to prepare alternative facilities to the Funkhaus (radio station) outside the British sector."

The British officer said a bunker in the station grounds was scheduled for demolition. He asked the Russians to set a date for turning over the bunker for destruction.

The Russians charged that the British are trying "to disturb normal radio activities in Berlin, particularly in the Soviet occupation zone."

The station is the most powerful in Berlin and is an important part of the Russian propaganda network.

The Russian statement did not specify what counter measures they may take. It said, however, that "the population of the western sectors of Berlin might suffer."

Heart Study Bill Passed by House

A bill to establish a National Institute for Research on Heart Diseases in the Public Health Service was passed by the House yesterday and sent to conference for reconciliation of minor diffrences with the Senate.

Under the bill, a National Advisory Heart Council would assist the institute in coordinating heart disease research of Federal and private agencies. Grants of Federal funds for approved projects would be authorized, and fellowships established for research and training in the institute and elsewhere.

A warning, meanwhile, was issued by the Commerce Department that the Nation's supply of quinidine probably will be insufficient this year to meet needs for treating heart ailments.

Noting that Congress ended controls over domestic distribution of quinidine and cinchona bark, from which it is derived, on May 31, H. B. McCoy, director of the department's Office of Domestic Commerce, urged that suppliers and distributors "voluntarily restrict deliveries to a pattern designed to meet the most urgent needs."

The heart institute bill was one of a group of health measures given unanimous consent approval by the House.

Red Stand to Help Set U. S. Export Policy

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer indicated yesterday that Russia's own attitude and actions will help determine what she may buy from the United States.

At the same time, he said he does not believe this country can control or build up the war strength of other nations through issuance or denial of export licenses.

Sawyer said the United States has no agreement or policy to prevent shipments of industrial goods to Russia and Soviet-dominated eastern Europe.

"We do not intend to place an embargo on shipments to any countries of eastern Europe," he said at a news conference. "We get benefits from the exchange of goods with them."

It had been predicted that the Secretary would disclose just what goods can and can't be sold to Russia under the new trade policy, but he did not do it.

And he left still very much in doubt the fate of about 21 million dollars worth of Soviet orders for American goods tied up by a virtual ban on industrial shipments to Russia clamped down March 1.

The State Department, meanwhile, revealed the sale of surplus munitions to Argentina. Until a year ago, Argentina was barred from buying American war goods.

Sold on March 19

The munitions, sold March 19, included "miscellaneous shells, directors, machine guns, gun mounts, eight finders and aiming circles."

The original value was $4,413,936. Argentina paid us $248,604.

The State Department report also listed the sale of 17 small vessels to Greece for $1,560,000. Also listed were sales of military supplies and equipment to China, the Philippines, Uruguay, Ecuador, Haiti, Guatemala, Belgium and Canada.

Sawyer's report on sales to eastern Europe had been long-awaited. Officials have acknowledged that millions of dollars' worth of heavy machinery produced by American firms on Russian orders is piling up storage charges in warehouses.

They said some firms are concerned about these charges, as well as payments. Further, Russia may sue because of down payments made on the goods.

"The policy with reference to shipments to Russia and eastern Europe is still not finally fixed," Sawyer told newsmen. "Each commodity will be licensed (for export) after consideration of various factors."

He did not say what these factors are. He said he did not think there is any special military veto on such shipments, but suggested that reporters check "military authorities" on that.

Sawyer's predecessor, W. Averell Harriman, had told a news conference earlier that the armed forces held a veto power over all shipments that "might contribute to" Russia's war potential.

Sawyer said the American policy must remain "flaxible." He said that later on he would make public the classes of goods, and dollar amounts, of items licensed for shipment to the Soviet bloc since March 1.

House Group Cuts Atomic, VA Funds

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended that the Veterans Administration quit spending 200 million dollars a year to teach veterans how to dance, fly an airplane or tend bar.

In all it cut the appropriation for VA $354,600,000 to $5,125,309,000, but said part of the cut may be restored later.

It also cut the Atomic Energy Commission $48,150,000 to $501,850,000. In so doing it bawled out the commission for "general extravagance" and accused it of taking "advantage of its strategic position in modern military defense to avoid facing the practical realities on less important and subsidiary elements of its budget."

Report Flays Commission

The committee's report angrily flayed ATC for its "refusal to furnish . . . information and appraisals of its various budgeted items."

The result, it said, is that the commission failed to establish "the confidence which the committee must have if it is to continue to supply these large grants of funds under conditions of secrecy."

Other Recommendations

In the same measure the committee recommended the following appropriations for other agencies:

The Office of the Housing Expediter, $15,172,100 — $5,327,900 under the budget estimate, and $9,026,900 under this year's allowance.

The Maritime Commission $68,360,775; a reduction of $26,960,225. It recommended, however, contract authority for 75 millions, which is $14,858,000 above the amount asked by the President.

The War Assets Administration was allotted only 50 million dollars instead of $106,912,000 asked. The committee's bill would abolish WAA August 31, and transfer its operations to other agencies. Its real estate would go to Reconstruction Finance Corporation, aircraft and parts to the Air Force, other personal property to the Bureau of Federal Supply. Liquidation of WAA would be assigned to the Treasury Department.

The Office of Defense Transportation was granted $340,000—a cut of $105,000. ODT expires next February 28, the committee pointed out.

"ODT, in justification of its continued existence, contends that if its functions were turned over to the Interstate Commerce Commission these functions would not be carried on as efficiently or rapidly and that more records would have to be kept," the committee said. "This argument appears to be not so much a justification for the continuation of ODT as an indictment of the efficiency of ICC."

The 8 per cent cut in the request of the Atomic Energy Commission created the greater stir. The committee specified that none of the cutback should be on military research. It should all apply, it said, to "nonweapon, nonbiological and nonmedical" phases.

Officials of AEC declined to comment. Chairman David E. Lilienthal was out of town. But other members held an afternoon session at which the report was discussed.

During the hearing Lilienthal had warned against any reduction in the budget. Atomic energy is so new, he asserted, that no one knows what branch of research may lead to vital new developments that might change the entire military and civilian picture. Cutting any section, he said, might prove "very tragic and catastrophic."

Commission witnesses warned that to give secondary priority now to research in the treatment of persons exposed to radiation rays might be tragic if atom bombs were dropped on this country.

Expansion Approved

The report recommended that AEC cut administrative expenses $6,400,000; and the cost of operating its towns, such as Los Alamos, N. Mex., Hanford, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn., by $2,700,000. Comparison with the cost of operating other cities, compiled by the Commerce Department, showed expenses in AEC towns "very much out of line," it said.

However, the committee approved the entire request for AEC to contract for a 400-million-dollar, five-year expansion program. This program is aimed at increasing production of atomic weapons "far beyond" present output.

Commission spokesmen indicated they may have to ask still more money during fiscal 1949 as the result of recent tests at Eniwetok. Other testimony revealed that the Air Force and Navy are working on atom-powered ships and planes. Demonstration naval vessels may be powered by nuclear engines in two to five years; nuclear planes later, it was predicted.

Veteran Administration witnesses revealed VA plans a 12 to 15 million dollar hospital in Chicago for cancer and arthritis research. It also plans 15 other new hospitals.

Regional Funds Limited

Appropriations for 13 regional VA offices were limited to nine months operations. Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray is now making a field examination which may result in closing regional offices, the committee pointed out. The report indicated this 18-million dollar cut may be restored later if these offices are not closed.

The committee emphasized it is not recommending any cuts in hospital or medical service. A cut of 50 million dollars in Army and Navy pensions, it said, will be covered by a balance in funds left over from this year's operations. "It will in no way affect the amount of pensions paid," the report stated.

The report granted the entire VA request for 43 million dollars in contract authority.

In cutting out 200 million dollars from such GI training as ballroom dancing and pleasure flying, the report said no tuition fees or other charges will be allowed for such training for veterans who enroll after July 1. Those now enrolled will be permitted to finish their courses.

Readjustment Allowances

Fifty million dollars was cut out of requests for veterans readjustment allowances—for partial or total unemployment benefits, sometimes known as the "52-20"—club—$20 a week for 52 weeks any unemployed veteran may get. No limitation on the program is called for—the cut to be made up from funds unexpended last year. VA officials pointed out that such payments have dropped off sharply in recent months.

The proposed bill would authorize the Maritime Commission to launch a 104-million-dollar merchant shipbuilding program to back up an expanded army and navy. The total was four million more than requested. Only 29 million was earmarked to be spent in fiscal 1949.

Armed forces witnesses indicated they want ship-carrying capacity for 900,000 troops. In carrying out the shipbuilding program, the committee provided that the Maritime Commission must consult with Defense Secretary Forrestal before going ahead "so that the maximum benefits to the national defense will be derived."

Radio Distress Signals Faked By 2 Boys, 16

Fake radio distress signals have kept the West in a dither off and on for seven months.

But they're all over now, thanks to the Federal Communication Commission's C-men.

Last November the word "Mayday" was broadcast on a frequency reserved for an airline.

"Mayday" is an international radio telephone distress signal. Along with the word came information that the plane broadcasting it was running out of gas. The signal then faded out.

Western airfields were alerted. Rescue parties were organized. No trace of such a plane was found.

The signal wasn't repeated frequently, but the point of origin was narrowed down by monitoring sets to the vicinity of Portland, Oreg.

The culprits: two 16-year-old boys in a dormitory of a private school. The FCC said they were operating unlicensed war surplus transmitting equipment.

The youngsters got off with a warning and dismantling of their equipment.

ADA Supports Aid Cut Fight

By the United Press

Americans for Democratic Action yesterday pledged its support to Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg in his fight to restore House cuts in the foreign-aid program.

In a telegram to the Senate leader, ADA accused the House of acting "to speed the timetable of the totalitarian advance" by chopping 26 per cent off the previously approved foreign-aid fund.

Vandenberg goes before the Senate Appropriations Committee today to appeal personally for the restoration of the $2,160,000,000 which the House knocked from the European Recovery Program and other foreign-aid projects.

The Secretary of State and ERP Administrator Paul E. Hoffman also are scheduled to appeal for the full amount originally authorized by Congress.

The ADA telegram was sent to Vandenberg by Chairman Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator and New Dealer. It followed similar statements of support from GOP Presidential aspirants Harold E. Stassen and Thomas E. Dewey.

The executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches adopted a resolution saying that "the good faith of this country is at stake" in providing funds for foreign aid. It warned that Congress would be "morally irresponsible" in cutting the first year's funds for European recovery after they had been authorized.

136 Bills Approved By House in 3 Hours

By The Associated Press

Rushing headlong toward adjournment June 19, the House passed 136 bills in the first three hours of yesterdays session.

Most of them dealt with claims of private citizens against Federal agencies or with legislation of a purely local interest.

Close to 50 other bills were refused clearance, some being killed outright and others postponed indefinitely.

along with the cut proposed by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.)

They are angry at what they consider a "double cross" of the GOP leadership Monday in supporting an amendment offered by Senator Langer to abolish State poll taxes for men in uniform. The Republicans, according to Democratic chiefs, agreed to shelve all of the Langer civil rights amendments. Instead the Senate adopted the anti-poll-tax proviso by a 37 to 35 vote, with GOP support.

Defeat of the five-year duration of the draft—strongly urged by defense chiefs—was attributed directly to the Southern Senators' desire to put a time limit on the anti-poll tax amendment. Their support is necessary to draft passafe—a fact which ruled out the other Langer amendments.

Senator Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.) supported Russell's voluntary segregation proposal in a brief speech late last night. Then the Senate recessed until 11 a. m. today under a unanimous consent agreement to vote on the amendment at 12:30. Several other controversial amendments remain, with a final vote unlikely before late tonight.

The Senate action of defeating Langer's other civil rights amendments was attacked yesterday by A. Philip Randolph, chairman of the Committee Against Jim Crow. Randolph declared Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) with "selling out" on two written promises to support military anti-segregation legislation. Taft's support of the poll-tax proviso was termed a "sop."

Morse Urges Cut

In urging a two-year limit on the draft, Senator Morse contended that military chiefs had been "overselling the emergency" and that Congress should review the entire question two years hence.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) argued that the five-year limit should be maintained, to permit reserve forces to be built up under the longer range plan. The bill is a flexible one, which permits annual review, he said. Congress can pass on the question of continuing the draft by controlling the size of the armed forces in yearly appropriations.

Under the two-year limit written into the bill, further drafting of men would cease in 24 months, unless Congress extends the bill, but men called in the last month would still serve out their two years.

Two Amendments Defeated

Earlier the Senate voted down two other amendments of Senator Morse. One—defeated 48 to 22 on a roll call—would have created a civilian board to handle conscientious objector cases. The other would have included osteopaths among other medical men subject to special registration and draft. It lost on a division.

As originally presented, the Lodge amendment provided for the enlistment of 50,000 rather than 25,000 foreigners in the United States Army. Senator Lodge agreed to cut the number at the suggestion of Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.).

Men to be enlisted under the proviso must serve five years, mostly outside continental United States, after which they would be eligible for American citizenship. Lodge said there are many young Polish, Czech, anti-Nazi German and Russian men who "would gladly serve." This would cut down draft calls, he noted.

The Massachusetts Senator declared that his plan has the approval of the Army. Earlier the State Department objected, he said, but this was due to a misunderstanding which has been cleared up. The Army, Lodge says, plans to use the foreign volunteers in Alaska, the Far East and Caribbean—not Europe.

He stressed the fact that the alien volunteers would not form a "foreign legion." They would not serve together in a "foreign language unit" but be spread around throughout Army units.

"I am confident," said Lodge, "that we will get wonderful citizens as a result of this process, that the screening which the Army will conduct will be far more thorough . . . than anything our normal immigration services could possibly do."

Under an amendment approved on the floor, the foreign volunteers could receive six months training in the United States.

Bill Asks King, Nimitz to Quit

A bill requiring the retirement by July 1 of five-star Admirals Ernest J. King and Chester W. Nimitz was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

The legislation, sponsored by the House Armed Services Committee, also gives the Army and Navy until July 1, 1950, to reduce their lists of four-star officers on active duty to the legal limit. Present law says each branch can have no more than five four-star officers after next July 1.

Representative Andrews (R., N. Y.) said the practical effect of the provision is to keep until 1950 six four-star officers who otherwise would have to be retired or demoted by July 1.

They are Gens. Mark W. Clark, Thomas T. Handy and C. H. Hodges, and Admirals H. K. Hewitt, Thomas C. Kinkaid, and Raymond A. Spruance.

'Point' Grads Hear Forrestal

West Point, N. Y., June 8 (U.P.)—Defense Secretary James Forrestal today told 301 West Point graduates they must help keep their country prepared to discourage any nation from seeking world domination.

A crowd of 5000 were gathered in the spacious academy field house to watch the colorful formal graduation exercises. This year's class was the smallest since 1938.

Forrestal told the new second lieutenants that it is their privilege to help maintain the military knowledge and readiness which will "discourage the ambition of any nation to seek world hegemony."

He reminded them that their professional studies do not end when they leave the military academy.

"No other profession requires so much formal graduate study by its members as the profession of the Army," he said.

Less than 2 hours after pinning on their new gold bars, 18 of the new second lieutenants paraded to the altar to be married.

Pinkney Tuck Named To Suez Canal Council

Paris, June 8 (U.P.)—Pinkney Tuck, former United States Ambassador to Egypt, was named as administrator of the Suez Canal today by the Suez Canal Co. administrative council. He will be the first American to serve on the council.

"The amount of American shipping through the canal at the present time justifies the appointment of an American administrator," the announcement said.

Dirigible Development Favored by House

The United States would revive the development of commercial dirigible-type airships under a bill passed by the House yesterday. The measure now goes to the Senate.

Except for limited military construction, the lighter-than-air craft industry has been virtually dormant since the German dirigible Hindenburg exploded at Lakehurst, N. J., in the summer of 1937.

The House bill authorizes the United States Maritime Commission "in the interest of national defense" to carry out a program of "development, experimentation, procurement and operation of lighter-than-air aircraft." It was introduced by Representative Clason (R., Mass.) and approved by the House Merchant Marine Committee.

Holy Land Truce Prospects Are Reported Growing Dim

Cairo, Egypt, June 8 (AP).—Even as Count Folke Bernadotte disclosed tonight that he had asked Jews and Arabs to stop fighting in Palestine Friday morning (1 a. m., EST), dispatches from Amman, the Trans-Jordan capital, said prospects for any truce were growing dim.

While all Arab states were reported standing firm against accepting Jewish conditions for a truce, a reinforced Egyptian spearhead was reported fighting to get out of a Jewish trap at Isdud, 23 miles south of Tel Aviv.

Israel's army said its patrols had penetrated Jenin, much fought-over Arab strong point in central Palestine, and "found it deserted." Jenin, the northern edge of the so-called Arab "triangle of strength," was entered by the Jews in hard fighting last week. Later the Arabs said they had driven the Jews out, and an Associated Press correspondent who visited the town Saturday found them gone.

Tel Aviv Bombed

A Tel Aviv dispatch said Egyptian planes bombed the center of Tel Aviv in relays all morning, and hit the tall office building housing Bernadotte's mission there. Bernadotte's aides said he has no office there, but a U. N. office is at that location.

Both sides were reported feverishly endeavoring to strengthen their positions while truce negotiations go on.

Dispatches from Amman said Trans-Jordan and Iraqi were sending stronger forces to build up a semicircular Arab ring around Tel Aviv.

Jerusalem dispatches said Jews were working hard to open a new lifeline road to Jerusalem and a landing strip for heavy transport planes just outside the city and were trying to keep both secret. Arab Legion gunners claimed to have opened fire on both.

Reports from Jewish sources in Tel Aviv said Arabs in the Arab-controlled parts of Jerusalem had been thrown into a panic by rumors the Jews had succeeded in bringing heavy artillery into the city.

Reported Trying to Flee

Arab civilians were trying to flee the city, Israeli sources reported.

A Jerusalem dispatch from behind Arab lines said four more churches had been damaged by Jewish mortar shells falling in the old city. These included the Holy Sepulchre. The lead roof had a hole a foot in diameter from a mortar burst Monday night.

Arab Nations' representatives and the Israeli cabinet were meeting tonight here and in Tel Aviv.

But Fawzi Mulki Pasha, Trans-Jordian Foreign Minister, was quoted in Amman as saying all Arab states were holding to their original conditions for the truce. This was taken to mean that they would not accept Jewish demands for continuance of immigration and lifting of the Arab blockade of Jerusalem during the truce.

Bernadotte said at a news conference here:

"I earnestly believe the proposals and interpretations set forth in my note of June 7 provide a just basis for a truce—just to both sides. I solemnly hope that these proposals shall fined acceptance and that the conflict in Palestine will come to a standstill ..."

9. All warlike acts, whether on land, sea or air shall be prohibited during the truce.

The Security Council on May 29 approved a resolution asking the Jews and Arabs to agree to the armistice. If this sixth move for peace fails, several Council delegates are ready to take sterner steps.

The Council also decided the U. N. mediator and its truce commission should have military observers to help supervise the truce. But the Council left up in the air the method of choosing these observers.

43 Dogs Found in Home Of Missing Worker

New York, June 8. (U.P.)—Police investigating the disappearance of a slaughterhouse worker today found 43 snarling, hunger-mad dogs and three dead ones in the mising man's four-room one-story house. The missing man, Herbert John, had lived alone with the dogs.

But Party Wins

Drew Loses His Seat In Ontario

Toronto, June 8 (AP).—The Progressive Conservative Party clung today to its control of the Ontario provincial government but its leader, Premier George Drew, lost his legislative seat in yesterday's elections.

Drew

Final standings gave the Progressive Conservatives 53 of the legislature's 90 seats on about 42 per cent of the popular vote. They won 66 seats in the 1945 balloting.

The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (CCF) passed the Liberals as the second party, winning 22 seats to 12 for the Liberals. In 1945 CCF got only eight seats. There is one Liberal-Laborite seat and two went to Labor-Progressives yesterday.

Drew was beaten by William Temple, the CCF candidate, in a close race in Toronto's High Park district. Drew said it was too early to say whether he would seek another seat so as to be able to continue as premier. This could be done by having one of the winning members of his party resign to permit Drew to stand in a by-election.

Two of Drew's 15 cabinet ministers also were defeated—provincial secretary Roland Michener and W. G. Webster, minister without portfolio.

Arab-Jewish Riots Kill 42

Casablanca, French Morocco, June 8 (AP).—French Air Force planes patrolled the skies above two Moroccan towns today as authorities reported order restored following vicious clashes between Arabs and Jews.

Police said 37 Jews were killed in Djerada last night and another five killed in Oujda. Ten of the dead were said to be children.

They said the outbreak at Djerada occurred after news of a fight between Arabs and Jews at Oujda reached there.

The police said a gang of Arabs surrounded about 70 Jews in Djerada and stoned them. Then they rushed in with knives and clubs.

One Frenchman was killed.

The fight at Oujda, a city of 65,000, began yesterday when a Jew and an Arab were reported to have quarreled about the Palestine war. Several stores were burned by demonstrators. Later the Arab engaged in the quarrel told police he was knifed by a Moslem, not a Jew.

Stamp Bill Advances

A bill authorizing a series of stamps commemorating the 300th anniversary of Annapolis, Md., was approved yesterday by the Senate Postoffice Committee.

U. S. Officers Will Assist U. N. Mediator

By The Associated Press

Seven United States Naval officers left Washington yesterday by plane to help keep tab on the manner in which any cease-fire arrangement is carried out. Fourteen other officers equally divided between the Army and Air Force are to be sent immediately from the American occupation forces in Europe.

The State Department said the truce team was requested by Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, United Nations mediator on the scene. France and Belgium are expected to provide similar groups.

The Navy group was headed by Capt. Solomo D. Willingham, Portland, Oreg. All the officers have been under stand-by orders since last week, in anticipation of the request.

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, said the original truce resolution of the U. N. Security Council made clear that either the mediator or the three-nation truce commission in Palestine had authority to ask for such assistance as might be required to make a truce effective.

Whether Russia will be invited to send observers is in the hands of the Security Council.

British Envoy Urges End to Name-Calling

Sir Oliver Franks, the new British Ambassador, appealed yesterday for an end of name-calling between the United States and Great Britain over the Palestine problem.

"On both sides of the Atlantic," he told a National Press Club audience, "there has been an atmosphere in which charge and countercharge have been made. Neither country is helped if bad faith is imputed. We should have an atmosphere without recrimination."

The Ambassador conceded that there were "differences of approach" but also common purposes in British and American policies over Palestine.

"We both desire an immediate cessation of hostilities," he said. "We both desire and wish to promote peace and stability in the whole Middle East, for if there is not peace and order and stability there is a vacuum.

"We both seek a just solution that will be enduring, and within the framework of the United Nations. I believe that if the United Nations mediator is successful, we shall be able together to find a common solution."

The Press Club speech was the new Ambassador's first since he took up his post on Massachusetts ave. He delivered it informally and extemporaneously, and showed no sign of fright at being questioned on touchy subjects.

He said it was time to get rid of what he called traditional concepts in Anglo-American relations—that Britain was an old country and the United States was a young one or that Britain was the center of an empire while the United States was "the friend of all those who struggle to be free."

The truth, he said, was that post-war Britain had moved "into an era of debate, experiment and controversy," and that since the 1945 election had been "seething with ideas, not yet fully formulated."

He argued that the most important purpose of the European Recovery Program was to restore confidence. He begged his hearers not to overlook "the spiritual elements in the program which are the hope of the world." But he declined to say whether the House cuts in appropriations had shaken confidence abroad.

All kinds of ERP issues, he said, could cause misunderstanding "if not handled with good will and good sense on both sides."

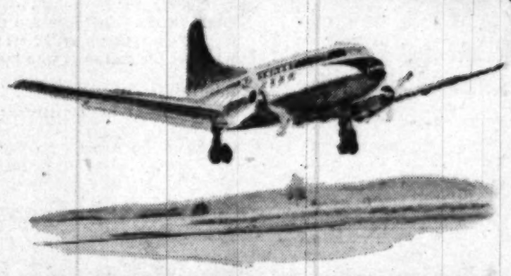
NORTHWEST AIRLINES SETS THE PACE
With New Routes, The Best Planes



Martin 2-0-2's in Service on Coast-to-Coast Routes June 1

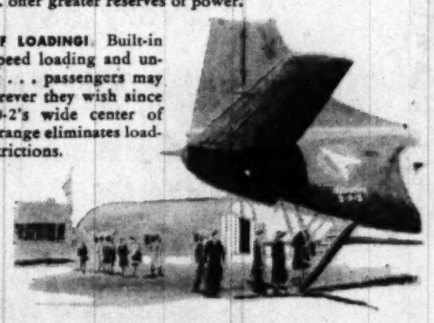
TOPS AMONG AIRLINERS! So efficient were Northwest's first 10 Martin 2-0-2's that the order for an additional 15 was well-nigh inevitable. Air travelers welcome the more comfortable seats with built-in pillows ... the warm-wall heating ... modern ventilation system ... the high speed that saves them time, time, TIME! Airline officials are enthusiastic over the low operating cost, the ease of maintenance, the ability to give better service and make a profit.

The Glenn L. Martin Company, Baltimore 3, Md.

Martin AIRCRAFT
Builders of "Dependable" Aircraft Since 1909

SHORT TAKE-OFF! Northwest's Martin 2-0-2's can take off at full weight, over 50 ft. obstacle, in only 2230 ft. ... the shortest distance of any postwar airliner ... can thus serve smaller air terminals ... offer greater reserves of power.

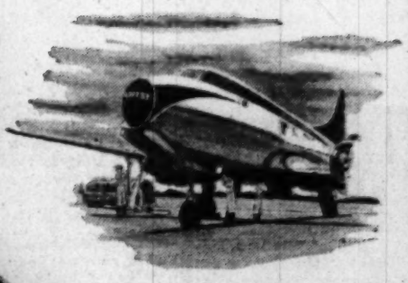
EASE OF LOADING! Built-in steps speed loading and unloading ... passengers may sit wherever they wish since the 2-0-2's wide center of gravity range eliminates loading restrictions.

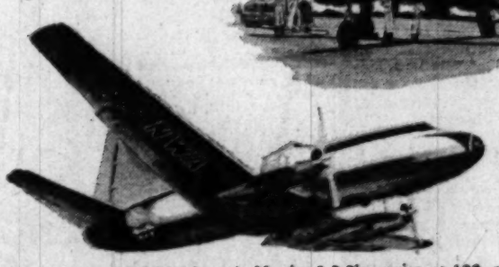


LAP OF LUXURY! Passenger comfort is stressed by tricycle landing gear, ending walking "uphill"... extra-large, non-fogging windows ... advanced sound-proofing ... new facilities for hand luggage.

NEW FEATURES include Mareng flexible fuel tanks ... more efficient Martin wing ... simplified pilot's controls ... heated wing, tail surfaces and propellers to prevent formation of ice.

SHORTER STOPS between hops are aided by the 2-0-2's numerous access hatches for inspection or maintenance ... faster pressure refueling underneath the wing from the ground.





HIGH PERFORMANCE! Northwest's Martin 2-0-2's cruise at 100 m.p.h. faster than the twin engine-planes they replace ... have gross weight of 39,900 lbs. ... can climb 1410 ft. per minute fully loaded ... have service ceiling of 25,900 ft. at full gross weight.

Auto Bomb Victim's Ex-Partner Freed

some possibility the bomb was planted during daylight hours before 11 a. m., when Denekas stepped on the starter of his Nash automobile and was mortally wounded in the explosion that followed.

Through questioning which began late Monday night and was still under way yesterday, Arlington Police have traced Denekas'

BOYD SIMMS
Released after questioning

movements throughout the day preceding his death.

In this process they have given virtually a "clean bill of health" to Washington Police Private Frank Strader, jr., estranged husband of Mrs. Strader.

Police officials said Strader's alibi checked out "practically one hundred per cent." According to Fourth Precinct officials, Strader worked the midnight to 8 o'clock shift Monday morning, covering two beats. He took his lunch hour 15 minutes at a time, making regular call-ins from his beat, police said.

Also questioned yesterday were Mrs. Strader, Mrs. Helen Denekas, estranged wife of the dead man, and Miss Odie Brown, 27-year-old waitress at the Clarendon Restaurant, who said she had known both Denekas and McDaniel since 1942.

In late afternoon, police quizzed Boyd F. Sims, 2207 S. 6th st., who formerly was employed by Denekas and McDaniel at the Old Dominion Neon Sign Shop. Sims was one of three complainants on a warrant sworn out for the two men after a check given Sims in payment of salary "bounced" at the Arlington Bootery. Denekas and McDaniel received 90-day suspended terms on the check charges.

When police released Sims an hour and a half later, he told reporters he was not able to throw any light on the case. He said he had not seen Denekas for a month. Sims declared he held no ill feeling against Denekas because of the "bad check."

Police quizzing also revealed that on Sunday, Denekas, accompanied by Mrs. Strader, had arrived at the Clarendon Restaurant at about noon. Mrs. Strader, who was employed there on a part-time basis, went to work. Miss Odie "Mazie" Brown said she served Denekas.

When he left Miss Brown said he told her he planned to go to Winchester to the automobile races. According to police, he was accompanied to the races by Miss Frances Conklin, 23, of 2205 N. Fairfax dr.; Charles C. Allison, 28, of 1301 N. Irving st.; Miss Anne De Martyn, 22, of 614 N. Dinwiddie st.; Chester C. Shepherd, jr., of 734 N. Abingdon, and John T. Boyd, 24, of 1103 N. Fillmore st., all of Arlington. Police said Denekas escorted Miss Conklin to the races.

Police questioned those who went to the Winchester races late Monday night. None were recalled for further testimony yesterday.

Police also questioned Mrs. Myrtle Ennis of 3906 N. Washington blvd., who said Denekas came to her home at about midnight Sunday night. Mrs. Ennis told reporters that after the arrival of Denekas, they went to a White Tower in Clarendon, bought something to eat and then returned to her place. She said Denekas left at 2:40 a. m.

She said she had been seeing the murder victim "regularly" for more than a year.

Mrs. Denekas was asked yesterday if she had ever met Mrs. Ennis. She said she saw her "once or twice."

Fishing Enthusiast Found Drowned in Canal

A light-hearted fishing enthusiast who laughingly offered to bring back to his mother a "whale, a black bass or a trout" when he left home last Saturday was found drowned yesterday.

The body of Thomas William Holt, 40, of 3411 Q st. nw., was recovered at 12:30 p. m. yesterday from the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal opposite the 4100 block of Canal rd. nw.

Police said the body, clad in shoes, pants and a shirt, was discovered by Howard S. Stoddard, of 609 S. Wakefield st., Arlington, Va. Although death was tentatively attributed to drowning, an autopsy will be performed today.

Identification was made through an Ohio chauffeur's permit found in the drowned man's billfold. The billfold also contained $1.12.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Marie Holt, said her son gave her some squabs when he left home at 9:30 a. m. Saturday to go fishing on Chain Bridge and asked her to fix them for his dinner.

Mrs. Holt, who shared the Q st. home with her son, is a charwoman on the tenth floor of the Shoreham Investment Building.

Holt had $15 or $20 with him when he disappeared Saturday morning according to his father, James A. Holt, retired gardener on the Robert W. Bliss estate in Georgetown.

Francis A. Barbee, who gave his address as 3621 Prospect ave. nw., said he saw Holt Saturday morning carrying fishing tackle and "a gallon jug of wine."

Mrs. Holt notified police of her son's disappearance Sunday night. He was a good swimmer, she said, and "free-hearted" with his money.

Holt was born in Huntsville, Va., and attended school in McLean. He entered the Marine Corps at 17 and served four years in China. He was a Marine Reserve from 1929 until 1933.

Eight years ago he moved to Ohio, returning to his parents' home in the District just before Thanksgiving, 1947. A roofer, Holt had been employed by N. W. Martin & Bros., in Rosslyn, Va., just 10 days before his death.

He leaves his parents; a brother, Robert, and a sister, Mrs. Nancy Stempihar, all of the Q st. address. Also surviving are a brother, Homer S. E. Holt of 6716 MacArthur blvd., Md., and four sisters, Mrs. Samuel T. Reynolds of 1129 Fowler st., Falls Church; Mrs. Verda Straughn, 6714 MacArthur blvd., Md.; Mrs. Jens Knudsen of Falls Church, and Mrs. Winona Trail, a patient in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Dorsey Retires From Smithsonian

Harry W. Dorsey, 73, retired June 1 after almost 60 years of service with the Smithsonian Institution, it was announced yesterday.

Dorsey

Dorsey rose from messenger to administrative assistant to the head of the institution. He recalls the days, he says, when Samuel P. Langley was his boss and used to make "rubber-band models of a flying machine."

Dorsey, who resides at 4107 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md., says he values most of all "knowing all those men of science and being associated with them as they developed such things as the airplane."

New Housing Bill Offered By Wolcott

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) las night introduced a new omnibus housing bill designed to spur private construction of at least one million homes a year, without public housing.

Wolcott

The Banking and Currency Committee chairman said he was ready to meet the public housing issue "head-on."

The Wolcott bill, not yet approved by the committee, is slated for House action early next week.

The measure is similar to the Senate-passed Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill in some respects. Eliminated, however, are provisions for slum clearance, urban redevelopment, rural housing aids and Government-sponsored research as well as low-cost Government-financed housing.

Confident of Approval

Wolcott said he was confident of approval of his measure by the GOP steering committee of the House.

A road block developed in the path of the House bill yesterday when it became apparent that Congress probably cannot adjourn on June 19, as originally planned.

This means that a petition to bring out the original TEW bill which was believed dead last weekend when it lacked the necessary 35 remaining signatures to bring up the bill before June 19 may now be brought to life.

Walter Reuther, battling chief of the UAW-CIO, last night said that it was "unfortunate" that House Speaker Joseph Martin "in his desire to achieve the Presidency would "thwart Senator Taft" by aiding Wolcott to block the TEW measure.

"It seems," added Reuther, "that Senator Taft is in a position to retaliate by keeping the Congress in session and thereby bringing the discharge petition into existence again."

Reuther said every effort would be made to secure the 35 more signatures needed.

Failure to include a rural housing provision may lead to farm support for the petition, it is believed.

The measure will be introduced as a House bill and will not even bear the Senate number S866 of the TEW measure.

Wolcott was asked at a press conference if this might possibly mean that proposed amendments to add public housing, slum clearance and rural housing aids to the measure might be ruled out on the ground they were not germane.

For his part, Wolcott said, he believed such amendments would be germane, although he could not forecast the parliamentary rulings that might be made.

"I think we're just going to meet this public housing issue head-on on the floor," Wolcott said.

The Banking and Currency Committee is slated to meet Thursday to determine whether or not it will give its approval to the Wolcott bill. Wolcott said it was fairly certain the committee would approve his bill.

The Wolcott bill would:

1. Continue the so-called Title VI home-loan insurance program under the Federal Housing Administration much as it originally passed the House last March. Provision is made for $1,600,000,000 for this purpose. Insurance would be up to 90 per cent of the value of new construction. Under the old law, which expired a month ago, insurance was based on cost of construction. Wolcott proposes to give the administrator leeway to use value instead of cost because of inflated building costs.

2. Modernization and new construction loans under FHA Title I would receive increased lending authority from 10 million to 35 million.

3. Veterans' cooperatives would receive FHA insurance up to 95 per cent of cost and other cooperatives up to 90 per cent.

4. Insurance companies and such big-scale investors in rental housing would be guaranteed an annual profit of 3.5 per cent on their investment.

5. Construction of multiple dwelling rental housing would be further encouraged by increasing the rate of depreciation that can be used for tax credits. The investment for tax purposes can be written off at the rate of 10 per cent a year for the first five years.

6. The lending authority of RFC will be brought up to two billion dollars and the Federal National Mortgage Association will be continued under RFC so that secondary mortgages will be underwritten by this agency. Half of the FNMA secondary financing will be available for FHA construction—the other half will be available to underwrite veterans' loans. The RFC will be able to underwrite veterans' loans under the GI Bill of Rights as well as under FHA.

7. In order to break up building rackets against veterans, the Wolcott bill provides that builders must take a 2 per cent discount if the secondary mortgages are to be made available.

8. Under the bill, a veteran can build a house costing up to $13,100 without any capital of his own, operating entirely on FHA and GI loans.

9. The present 7 per cent excise tax on trailers is removed.

10. The measure provides special grants in aid to legless veterans in order to build homes tailored to their needs.

Wolcott reiterated previous denunciations of the T-E-W measure as "socialistic."

Iowa GOP Rejects Gov. Blue, Gwynne

Des Moines, Iowa, June 8 (AP).—Gov. Robert D. Blue and U. S. Representative John W. Gwynne were defeated for Republican renomination in yesterday's State primary—results over which organized labor expressed "complete satisfaction."

Blue, who carried only 13 of Iowa's 99 counties also was opposed by the Farm Bureau and educators. The Iowa State Education Association said the results were "the expression of an enlightened electorate."

Gwynne's district included Waterloo, site of recent bitter packing house strike. He was dean of Iowa's congressional delegation of eight Republicans.

The primary saw a Republican turnout of more than 316,000 voters, close to the record high of 332,000 established in 1940. Nearly 650,000 votes were cast in the Democratic primary.

State Representative Williams S. Beardsley, a druggist-farmer from New Virginia, won over Blue in the latter's bid for a third term. Complete unofficial returns from 2469 precincts gave: Beardsley, 189,864, Blue, 125,985.

Gwynne was defeated by H. R. Gross, former Waterloo radio newscaster.

Beardsley will be opposed in November by Garroll O. Switzer of Des Moines who was nominated by the Democrats without opposition.

Governor Blue's last administration was marked by the passage of restrictive labor laws.

Commenting upon his defeat, the Iowa State Federation of Labor, in a statement, expressed "complete satisfaction" and Ben Henry, Iowa CIO chieftain said, "we're pretty happy about it."

The Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, which unofficially had supported Beardsley and conducted a State-wide contest to get out a heavy vote, declined specific comment on the Blue-Beardsley race.

U. S. Senator George A. Wilson easily won renomination on the Republican ticket over John N. Calhoun, Burlington attorney. He will be opposed in November by former Senator Guy M. Gillette who won the Democratic senatorial nomination handily over Ernest J. Seeman.

Vote by the Yard In New Mexico

CLINTON P. ANDERSON, President Truman's choice for Senator from New Mexico, looks over the yard-and-2-inch-long ballot in use at an Albuquerque polling place in the Democratic primary yesterday

Dixie Group May Nominate Truman Rival

Jackson, Miss., June 8 (AP).—A Southern States' Rights Democratic campaign committee decided today to offer its own candidate for President if President Truman is the national party nominee.

The committee said if Mr. Truman is nominated, States' Righters would hold a convention in Birmingham, Ala., July 17 to choose their own candidate.

States' Rights "demands" will be made upon the national convention, the committee said. If these are refused, States Rights delegates may walk out.

The strategy for a preconvention caucus to determine a common course of action by the States' Righters.

The campaign committee of the organization announced it had decided on this program of action:

1. A caucus of Southern Democrats will be held prior to the July Philadelphia National Convention either at Philadelphia or Washington.

2. Before the convention, national party leaders will be advised of the "demands" of the caucus.

3. In the event the convention nominates Mr. Truman or in the event "it fails to affirmatively pledge to uphold the constitutional rights reserved to the people," a conference of States' Rights Democrats will be held in Birmingham, Ala., July 17.

4. That conference will "suggest" a presidential and vice presidential candidate.

5. The States' Rights movement will then recommend to Democratic voters that they support the "suggested" candidates.

Final Alabama Count

Mobile, Ala., June 8 (AP).—A complete tabulation of votes in Alabama's runoff primary today increased to 14 the number of delegates pledged to walk out of the Democratic National Convention.

The lineup after Party Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey completed the count of official returns was:

Fourteen delegates pledged to bolt if the convention includes the Truman civil rights program in its platform; seven opposed to a walkout, and five uncommitted.

Democratic National Committeeman Marion Rushton said today he does not intend to raise any campaign funds for the national party.

"As long as the national party is in rebellion from us, the people I could ordinarily approach for campaign donations are now unapproachable," he said.

Pepper Backer Wins Key Florida Post

Punta Gorda, Fla., June 8 (AP).—Opponents of Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) failed today in an attempt to win control of the Florida State Democratic executive committee.

Alex B. Littlefield of Daytona Beach, who apparently had Pepper's backing, won the committee chairmanship over Frank D. Upchurch of St. Augustine, head of the anti-Pepper bloc. The vote was 64 to 51.

Kentucky Democratic Delegates Unpledged

Louisville, Ky., June 8 (U.P.).—Kentucky Democrats today named a 52-man uninstructed delegation to the national convention after Senator Alben W. Barkley delivered a preview of the keynote address he will deliver at the Philadelphia meeting in July.

Dewey Stops at Baltimore on Dixie Dash

Baltimore, June 8 (AP).—Governor Thomas E. Dewey arrived here tonight to meet Maryland's delegation to the Republican national convention.

The stop was the first of a quick trip the New Yorker is making through Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina in an attempt to pick up support at the Philadelphia convention this month.

Several Maryland delegates have said privately that they favor Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination. The State has 20 delegates, who cast a total of 16 convention votes. The delegation was not instructed for any particular candidate by the State Republican convention last month.

Governor Dewey went immediately to the Hotel Sheraton-Belvedere, where an informal reception was held. Host for a dinner given in his honor later was Representative Beall (R., Md.)

He will leave Baltimore Wednesday morning for Richmond, Va. He will go to Raleigh, N. C., Wednesday night.

Another aspirant for the nomination, Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, will seek to woo the Maryland convention voters into his column Thursday at a dinner arranged for him here by a group including Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Charles Markell, jr., and Frederick W. Brune.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, a third major contender for the nomination, will entertain the delegates Sunday at a buffet supper at his home in Washington.

Dewey Says He Agrees He'll Lead First Ballot

New York, June 8 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey says he agrees with predictions that the first presidential ballot at the Republican Convention will be about like this:

Dewey—"Something over 300 votes."

Senator Robert A. Taft—"Something like 250."

Harold E. Stassen—"Something like 150."

Dewey in a (CBS) radio interview last night commented on these published figures of what he called "impartial observers."

Concerning Your COAL FURNACE

IT IS just as important to have your coal furnace cleaned each summer as to have the oil changed in your car.

For example, soot in a furnace collects moisture and causes corrosion, which can result in expensive repairs. Soot acts as an insulator, and a 1/8 inch coat of it and fly ash may waste 10 to 20 per cent of your coal.

Let us "Summer Condition" your furnace now. This includes vacuum cleaning, sealing all leaks around doors and smoke pipe, painting doors, etc.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Support of Truman Projects in Congress Will Keep Peace, He Tells Montanans

receiving very strong cooperation from Congress.

"I came out here to see if we couldn't needle them a little bit and get some action on some of the things that should be done in this part of the world."

Mr. Truman also made a bid for the vote of Idaho potato farmers. He got off a joke that wowed his audience and doubtless made the State of Maine more rock-ribbed Republican than ever.

"I understand you grow a lot of potatoes here," he told the Idaho Falls crowd. "You also have a very loyal citizenship.

"During the war I was up in Presque Island, Me., making an investigation of an air field up there, and I heard that there was an Idaho boy in the guardhouse. I inquired as to why he was in the guardhouse. I was told he had been on kitchen police and he refused to peel Maine potatoes."

Mr. Truman had an awkward experience this morning when his caravan halted at Carey, Idaho. A flag was stretched across the road and next to it a banner which read: "Greetings, President Truman." An honor guard of decorated veterans was standing at attention.

Somebody handed Mr. Truman a floral wreath and then introduced a bereaved couple, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Coates. The President got the impression—how was not clear—that the couple had lost a boy in the war and that the local airport had been named in honor of the boy. Always sympathetic where fallen soldiers are concerned, Mr. Truman hauled off and made a little speech to the Coateses. He said their son had not died in vain, that he had given his life for his country.

Mr. and Mrs. Coates, standing alongside the President's auto, began to fidget. Somebody prodded Mr. Truman and told him he was making a mistake, and that it was a daughter and not a son who had died.

It turned out that the airport had been named after Wilma Coates, aged 16.

A year or so ago, Wilma went hedgehopping with her boy friend. The plane went into a spin and crashed, killing her.

When Mr. Truman finally got his facts straightened out, he told Mr. and Mrs. Coates that he was sorry for the mixup. They told him that it was all right, and thanked him for his solicitude.

"He should have been briefed on that," grumbled Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, the President's Army aide.

Mr. Truman, after a much-needed sleep at Sun Valley, was up at the cock's crow this morning.

The ride from Sun Valley to Idaho Falls was one that charmed President Truman. It took him through the Lost River Valley, a farm and grazing region along the Sawtooth Mountain Range.

An ardent tourist, Mr. Truman told a crowd at Arco, Idaho, how thrilled he was.

"I have had a very pleasant ride—seen a lot of things I have never seen before," he said. "Got a chance to see some dry farming, some irrigated land, and untold thousands of sheep.

"I saw some kind of animal down here on the left hand side of the road a while ago. I don't know whether it was a deer or an elk or what it was. It was so far away I couldn't recognize it. I probably couldn't have recognized it if I had been close up."

Every town had its flags flying. In some, the stores were closed for the occasion. Those that were open emptied quickly as the caravan hove into view, including the beer joints.

Mrs. Truman and Margaret accepted flowers and other gifts but made no speeches.

The newspaper girls along the way have found the First Lady and Margaret gracious, but determined to stay in the background. At Sun Valley, Mrs. Truman told a girl reporter that the newspaperwomen in Washington would be unhappy if she granted an interview out here. She did, however, say that she was glad she was traveling by rail and not by air.

Before the presidential party reached Sun Valley, there was much romantic speculation over who would be Margaret's escort. The local people thought that the logical choice was Joe Burgy, sports director at the resort and evidently a very handsome fellow.

Joe, however, saw Margaret only from a distance. She stayed with her mother most of the time and turned in early.

'Easy on Spurs,' Truman Is Advised

As a former horse artilleryman, Representative Scrivner (R., Kans.) offered President Truman—his old commanding officer—some advice yesterday on the use of spurs.

Scrivner referred to the recent gift to the President at Grand Island, Nebr., of a pair of spurs, which the President said he might find handy for dealing with Congress. Scrivner said in a statement:

"In World War I, President Truman was an officer in a horse-drawn artillery regiment. I was a Pfc. (private first class) in that same regiment—a driver of a lead pair.

"Captain Truman, 129th Field Artillery, knew what President Truman, U. S. A., shouldn't forget.

"A lightly, judicially applied spur to a horse—lead, swing or wheel—may be a good thing. But when that horse is 'gigged' too sharply, it can become a bucking, kicking, biting, stamping package of viciousness, capable of unseating its rider.

"May a former lead driver respectfully advise the former battery commander to use those spurs lightly and judiciously."

8% Pay Increase Offered by GE

New York, June 8 (AP).—General Electric, reversing an earlier stand against a wage boost, today offered an 8 per cent increase to 125,000 workers.

Officials of the CIO United Electrical Workers Union, which represents employes in 92 GE plants across the country, said they were taking the offer "under consideration."

The company said its offer—the first it has made in lengthy negotiations—would amount to increases of "9 cents to over 15 cents an hour." Previously, GE opposed wage boosts as "inflationary." Recently, however, the company proposed talks on wages after settlements by General Motors and Chrysler.

GE said the boost would become effective "when accepted."

The offer followed a union proposal for an 11-cent hourly increase, tying further adjustments to the cost of living index of the United States Department of Labor.

The UE also proposed a flat increase of 13 cents an hour without any "escalator" index adjustment.

Originally, UE asked for "substantial" increases without specifying the amount. Present weekly take-home pay averages $55.99, according to the company.

House Boosts Rail Pensions

Legislation raising railroad pensions 20 per cent and cutting railroad unemployment contributions passed the House yesterday, 380 to 0. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Under the measure, a sliding scale for employes contributions to unemployment insurance would be substituted for the present 3 per cent contribution.

As long as the reserve in the insurance fund is 450 million dollars or more, the individuals' contribution would be one half of 1 per cent. The rate would increase one half of 1 per cent for each 50 million dollars the fund fell below that figure. It would go to 3 per cent when the fund slumped to 250 million dollars.

Representative Wolverton (R., N. J.), who sponsored the measure said the fund now stands at approximately 900 million dollars. He said the bill is supported by the Association of American Railroads and by several railroad labor groups.

Strike Votes Slated At Goodrich Rubber

Akron, Ohio, June 8 (AP).—A strike vote will be held June 16 for about 13,500 workers at the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. plant here, George R. Bass, president of the Goodrich CIO-United Rubber Workers local, said today.

A decision to ballot followed collapse of negotiations in Philadelphia Saturday on the union's demand for 30-cent-an-hour pay increases.

The company's last offer was 8 cents an hour on a one-year contract. The union's reduced demands called for 15 cents under a one-year contract or 11 cents with an "escalator" clause adjusting wages on a cost-of-living basis.

Congress May Convene Again

have to return to consider if it fails to complete action next week:

Civil rights legislation, a Government pay increase, Republican "compromise" legislation extending Atomic Energy Commission terms for two years, House-approved legislation abolishing the Federal oleomargarine tax, a highway program, the tidelands bill restoring State control of submerged coastal oil lands, Communist control legislation and an equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

Taft said Senate leaders later will confer with the House high command on "whether or when we will return."

Taft then visited Martin's office briefly. Martin said no conclusions were reached during the visit, that Taft merely wished to "keep us posted" on Senate developments. He said Taft told him "it is probable they cannot get through."

The "slow" sign on GOP adjournment plans followed a tattoo of Democratic criticism of the Republican legislative record, picked up and amplified by the President on his Western tour.

In Omaha, Mr. Truman had called for passage of a long-range farm program. That was added to the GOP "must" list yesterday. Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (R. I.) and some other ranking Democratic legislators had demanded that Congress stay in session until it completes action on housing, health, Federal aid to education and other domestic issues.

Yesterday Representative George H. Bender (R., Ohio), one of Taft's leading supporters in his race for Ohio's favorite son blessing, reminded the Senator in a letter that Bender's bill abolishing the poll tax in Federal elections overwhelmingly passed the House. Bender urged Taft's Senate policy committee to get the bill before the Senate.

"Action by the Senate now will put an end to the poll tax once and for all," Bender wrote. "I feel strongly that the Republican Party cannot afford to face the country in November without at least one major accomplishment in this Congress in the field of civil rights legislation."

The political implications of an encore session of Congress were many. Some Republicans feared it would enable Democrats to stack the GOP's Philadelphia platform pledges against the long list of unpassed major bills pending in Congress and demand passage at once. By postponing the summer session until after the Democrats meet, some Republicans thought they would have ammunition to hit back, on civil rights and other issues.

Some recalled the Reorganization Act provision that Congress adjourn by July 31. There was a loophole in the Reorganization Act deadline, however. It called for adjournment by that date "unless otherwise provided by Congress."

Operators Accept Lewis' Challenge, Draft Coal Pact Offer

By Harold W. Ward
Associated Press Reporter

Soft coal operators yesterday accepted John L. Lewis' challenge to make a contract offer in an effort to avoid another strike after July 1.

The mine owners said nothing about the nature of the proposals they will make, but they asked for another 24 hours to go over them. There was no indication whether the proposed contract will be ready in that time to try on Lewis for size.

Conferences between Lewis and the operators' negotiating committee now are scheduled to resume this afternoon.

Lewis opened the current contract talks Monday by saying the United Mine Workers had no wage proposals but "assuredly expect improvements."

Lewis also said the miners "will expect guarantees incident to the honoring of the current agreement in the matter of its welfare provisions."

The welfare fund, now being raised by collections of 10 cents a ton, brought another legal move by Lewis yesterday.

During the lull in negotiations, Lewis' attorneys went to Federal court and filed an answer to the petition of operator Ezra Van Horn for an injunction. Van Horn seeks to block any payments from the $50,000,000 welfare fund under a pension system compromise that ended the recent strike. The plan was approved by Lewis and the third trustee, Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), over objections from Van Horn as operator trustee.

Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough will hear arguments on Van Horn's petition Saturday, June 19.

In his answer, Lewis furnished to the court copies of the minutes of meetings of the trustees at which unsuccessful efforts were made to set up a pension plan.

"I am making these minutes available for inspection by the court," Lewis said in an affidavit, "so that the obstructive, delaying and frustrating acts and conduct of the plaintiff may be fully, completely and finally disclosed and revealed to the end that the court may see and observe the naked truth of plaintiff's pernicious actions."

Lewis accused Van Horn of trying to "mislead and deceive" the court by using only excerpts of the trustee meetings.

Lewis contended that the welfare fund is a charitable public trust rather than a private one and that therefore the rule governing public trusts applies. This permits expenditures by a majority of the trustees, rather than all three of them, he said.

Van Horn argues that under the Taft-Hartley Act the employer representative—meaning himself—must agree to any payments for pensions. The act says that payments from a welfare fund must be approved by the employer when it is financed by that employer.

VA Hospital Sought Again in Nevius Site

Another effort to authorize construction of a veterans' hospital on the highly controversial Nevius tract in Arlington is likely to be made today—but once again it is given little hope of success.

The new attempt is expected through amendments to the Veterans' Administration appropriation bill, which is set to come up on the House floor. The Government now owns the tract, but there is no authority to use it for a hospital.

Yesterday, the House Appropriations Committee took no action on lifting the construction ban they had placed on the 25-acre Nevius tract last June, when Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.) opposed its use for a hospital on the ground that far cheaper land was available.

Representative Smith withdrew these objections May 26, according to records of subcommittee hearings released yesterday. On that date, records showed, he took the position that inasmuch as the Government had already paid a Federal court award of $1,600,000 for the land, construction might as well proceed.

Representative John Phillips (R., Calif.), subcommittee chairman, declared yesterday that the Government should have never bought the land in the first place and that the land can be used for some other purpose.

Scholar Chooses Sarah Lawrence

ANN ROLLER
Makes up her mind

Girl, 15, Offered Three College Scholarships

Pretty and brilliant Ann Roller, 15, who will be graduated this month from Eastern High School may have set something of a local record. She was offered three four-year college scholarships.

Bryan Mawr offered her a $500-a-year scholarship.

The University of Chicago offered her a $750-a-year scholarship.

Ann, who lives at 6209 Kilmer st., Cheverly, Md., hardly looks like the bookworm type. Her hair is raven black, her eyes flash with a hint of laughter and her smile is as warm as a July sun.

In addition to the three scholarships, Ann also will receive the Bausch & Lomb Award for excellence in science.

Ann (who states her correct age as 15 and a half) finished her senior year at Eastern with straight As, except in Latin.

member of the National Honor Society, organized the CARE campaign at the school, was on the staff of the yearbook last year, was on the staff of the school's Spanish newspaper, was treasurer of the Spanish Club and a member of the Chemistry and Physics Clubs and the Y-Teens.

She has been a Saturday student at Corcoran Art School for three years and two of her paintings have won prizes.

Recreation Unit Debates Segregation

A controversy over use of public buildings by nonsegregated groups developed yesterday at a meeting of the District Recreation Board.

Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, Negro secretary of the board, insisted that regulations which the board claims restrict the use of playgrounds to racially District groups do not apply to use of public buildings.

She said she knew of instances where mixed audiences attended evening functions in public schools prior to the time the recreation board was established seven years ago. Board Chairman Harry Wender said he "assumed" the board was functioning under the "identical" regulations observed by its predecessor.

Segregation Policy Voted

The question arose over an inquiry from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People about the board's policy on the community use of school buildings. The board voted, with Mrs. Hunter dissenting, to inform the organization that the "general policy" is to restrict certain school properties to use by whites and others by Negroes.

Members pointed out that a hearing on Recreation Department policy of operating buildings and grounds will be continued before a committee of the Board of Education at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Board Officers Reelected

The board voted unanimously to join United Community Services, Inc., which is being organized to combine the activities of the council of social agencies and the Community Chest.

All board officers were reelected, including chairman Wender, vice chairman James E. Schwab and Mrs. Hunter, secretary. They've held office since the board was founded.

It was annouced that the board's annual meeting with civic groups to consider recreation and playground needs in connection with forthcoming budget estimates will be held tonight at 8 in the board room of the District Building.

Franks' Bow

Sir Oliver Franks got off to an excellent start when he made his bow yesterday to an American audience as Britain's Ambassador. This was refreshing, for his predecessor, Lord Inverchapel, never got off to any start at all. The new Ambassador is free from any of the inhibitions of the career diplomat; he has, moreover, an obvious relish for his mission and an untrammeled and well-endowed mind for his tremendous task. One has to go back to Lord Lothian for an Ambassador with such a warming ease on the platform and such a gift of eloquence. We are not demeaning Lord Halifax. But Lord Halifax, who was a great Ambassador, had a shyness and an aloofness which melted in private but which did not make his platform a congenial setting for him. There is an exactness about Sir Oliver's thinking processes which is united with lucidity of expression and a sort of modest poise in presentation. It appeared to be the conclusion of the listening newspapermen of the Capital, who crowded the National Press Club to hear him, that the new Ambassador is destined to be an influence for good in Anglo-American relations.

And, God knows, these relations stand in need of improvement. Premier Attlee, ostrichlike, says he is unaware of any rift, but Sir Oliver did not take refuge behind any such negation. At present the main issue between the two countries is Palestine, and Sir Oliver admitted it and discussed it. His audience, which no doubt had the subject in mind, clearly appreciated the plunge he took in a speech intended merely to introduce himself to the American public. What he had to say was in the nature of things speculative and exploratory. In this respect he is not in the same unhappy position as Lord Inverchapel. Lord Inverchapel was himself a Zionist who, having spent the formative years of his diplomatic life in the Middle East (when T. E. Lawrence, Wingate and Wauchope were practicing a statesmanship that somehow seems to have been forgotten), found this one of several handicaps he suffered from in representing Mr. Bevin in Washington. Sir Oliver, free from prepossessions, intends to be an interpreter's house between one country and the other. It is the role which conforms to what Bagehot calls the "efficient secret" of being a good ambassador, and Sir Oliver gave the impression yesterday that he has the necessary aptitudes for it.

Unimpaired Draft

The Senate exhibited a sound sense of proportion in voting down restrictive amendments to the draft, though the two-year limit imposed may make selective service a football in another political year. The civil rights issues introduced by Senator Langer are important in their place, and it is a pity that Congress could not be induced to consider them earlier. They definitely do not belong, however, in so vital a piece of legislation as the draft, especially since the main purpose in submitting them was to delay action on the larger question. Even the anti-poll-tax item which the Senate accepted was extraneous, though fortunately the fight was minimized by the fact that such a provision was in effect for members of the armed forces during the war.

On the other side the Russell amendment to require segregation when draftees desire it is completely indefensible on both moral and practical grounds. It would be a retrogressive as well as an unprecedented step in our military history. It is to be hoped that here the Senate will consider first things first and leave racial adjustments to the armed forces. Absence of formal restrictions will permit, if the services are so disposed, a gradual abolition of separate units and integration to make the most efficient use of manpower.

In one other respect the Senate acted wisely by approving the Lodge amendment to permit the enlistment of 25,000 foreigners in the armed forces with the provision that citizenship may be granted after five years of service. The amendment as adopted avoids the mercenary implications of a foreign legion and at the same time holds out new hope to physically qualified men among Europe's displaced persons who are seeking to make a home in this country.

When all the side issues have been shorn off, however, the Senate still has to vote on the main problem, the draft itself. That ought not to be postponed beyond today, for the House plainly is waiting upon Senate action before bestirring itself. Each additional delay gives Rules Chairman Allen another excuse for procrastination as well as detracts from the remaining time available for other important legislation.

Crisis Diplomacy

Inconsistencies in the recent conduct of the United States in its world affairs are bound to plague the peacemaking. Tabering off ERP (as a wit has put it) at the birth of its operation came on top of the biggest military appropriation in American history. And now the ERP, which is aimed at setting up a real continental economy in Europe, has been succeeded by a six-power agreement on Germany initiated by the United States which looks to the revival of German nationalism. That is a blunt way of putting it, but in no other terms can the pact on Germany be described. The first reaction will probably be in the country which is most sensitive about a risen Germany, viz, France. France, swearing for months to her people as well as to the world she would ne'er consent, has consented. To be specific, Foreign Minister Bidault has signed the agreement, but the indications are that he will find the going hard when he tries to get support from the French Assembly. Mr. Bidault has evidently succumbed to American pressure, coupled with a security pledge from America from which Mr. Taber already has extracted a few teeth.

Ever since the Marshall Plan was bruited The Washington Post has felt that the argument even for the loosest kind of federation in Germany, which it had hitherto advocated, had become highly questionable. But at this time a scheme for a German government is obviously premature. Our diplomacy, if it were seized with the continental spirit of the Marshall Plan, would be trying to turn German eyes to and enlisting German cooperation in Paris, the headquarters of the Marshall effort, not to Frankfurt. It is said that a government in western Germany is necessary so as to dovetail the western German economy. But, since Germany is the workshop of western Europe, and since Germany is the most backward of all Europe's economies, the prime job is to knit western Germany to western Europe. In this respect, of course, the agreement on the Ruhr—putting the distribution of coal under a six-power authority—is certainly a beginning, in that a veto could be exercised by the Paris group. But even here the authority is still on one leg, lacking power over production as well as distribution. And in any event the forward step in the Ruhr is overshadowed by the political pact providing for a federal government open to the rest of Germany.

It would seem that here is an example of propaganda rather than policy. In Washington it is frankly described as an "answer" to the Russian "challenge" in Germany. What is needed, rather, is an answer to the European "challenge"—in thinking and action on continental reconstruction. Paris in the new situation is of far more importance than Frankfurt. As the Ministers President of Germany say about the Ruhr, European controls are necessary not only of the Ruhr but also of key industry elsewhere in Europe. And this answer to a Russian challenge in Germany may invite an embarrassing riposte. Even to think at the present moment of a western German government is to undermine the logic of our continued presence in Berlin. It would not be at all surprising to see on the heels of the present agreement a proposal from Moscow that we should quit Berlin. Against the new background the suggestion would have point and validity.

In the large the entire project smacks of a tendency sheepishly to follow an old and discredited policy—to look back instead of forward. Britain sought between wars to build up German nationalism, and America financed it. Sir Brien Robertson, Britain's chief in Germany, has lately been courting the spirit of nationalist Germany in sundry speeches throughout Germany. The aim is to make a strong Germany as a buffer against Russia. All the signs are available that for this purpose American money, when the time comes, is ready to rush in. A new conception in tune with the times is required, the conception of Europa, and we had thought that the framework had been supplied by the Marshall Plan. Instead of that, this pact, even if it does not provoke a crisis in Paris, seems bound to provoke one in Berlin, so catering to the prevailing crisis diplomacy. The cause of western reconstruction, let alone consistency of policy, called for different treatment, and the day will be rued, we venture to say, that the United States engineered this unfortunate enterprise.

Loudspeaker Freedom

Does the right of free speech, which is one of our basic constitutional freedoms, give a crusading zealot a right to set up a loudspeaker system and proclaim his doctrines in a public park to the annoyance of people who are seeking peace and quiet? The Supreme Court has said in the Samuel Saia case that it does. To this newspaper the decision seems to be far-fetched, as it did to four members of the court.

In a series of historic decisions in recent years the court has left no doubt that freedom of speech is protected against encroachments of State and local governments by the Fourteenth Amendment. Lovell v. Griffin and Hague v. CIO are landmarks in the history of civil liberties. In the first the court struck down an ordinance requiring a license for the distribution of literature; in the second it upset an ordinance requiring a license for a local assembly in the streets or parks. The court pointed to these decisions in throwing out the ordinance of Lockport, N. Y., requiring a license from the chief of police for setting up a loudspeaker in a public place. The majority thought that the ordinance, which failed to lay down specific rules for the control of sound devices but left the issuance of licenses to the discretion of the chief of police, was unconstitutional on its face.

If the court had been dealing with actual freedom of speech in this case, the decision would probably have been unanimous. Justice Jackson contended, however, that freedom of speech was not involved. Rather, the question was whether a representative of Jehovah's Witnesses, or any other proselyter, may create a nuisance in a public park without restraint by city authorities. Justice Frankfurter, with the concurrence of Justices Reed and Burton, referred to the offending amplified speeches as "aural aggression" and lamented the court's slight regard for the "precious freedom of privacy."

Justice Douglas' opinion for the majority leaves no doubt that the Lockport ordinance was open to abuse. The weakness of the court's decision, in our opinion, is that the ordinance was not abused in this case. There was no discrimination against any religious sect. There was no suppression of speech or of ideas. There was merely curtailment of an unnatural blaring noise in an area set aside for the recreation and relaxation of the people. "Only a few weeks ago," Justice Jackson said, "we held that the Constitution prohibits a State or municipality from using tax-supported property 'to aid religious groups to spread their faith.' Today we say it compels them to let it be used for that purpose."

Failure Of Leadership

The most immediate problem in l'affaire Taber is to get the House back on the beam of the national policy which it so overwhelmingly approved when the issue was fairly presented by the ECA bill. Beyond that, however, attention ought to be given to the factors which make such erratic flip-flopping possible. The trouble arises from the handling of basic policies by two different factions in the House. The ECA bill was taken to the floor by the Foreign Affairs Committee with convincing arguments based upon our national security and our responsibilities as leader of the democratic world. The niggardly appropriation bill or the ECA was taken before the House by Mr. Taber's Appropriations Committee with an appeal for economy and a shut-in concept of the world problem. In these circumstances it is not so strange that many political-minded members, favoring both world recovery and economy, should vote for both these incompatible measures.

The chief trouble, in our opinion, arises from the submission of such an issue to the House outside the context of global policy on which responsible voting must be based. In other words, this fiasco in the House is largely a failure of leadership. Congressman Herter ably sketched the problem recently. Congress must, he said, retain the appropriating power. That power lies close to the heart of democracy. And good management requires concentration of the study of appropriations in a single committee that is not burdened with other legislation. The Appropriations Committee must necessarily consider the Government's spending policy as a whole. Its viewpoint is certain to differ, therefore, from many conclusions reached by other committees giving special attention to foreign affairs, agriculture, public works, etc. The tragedy of the situation is that the House has devised no means by which such differences can be reconciled without danger of undermining important policies on which Congress has put its stamp of approval.

This difficulty would be greatly minimized if the House and the Presidency were controlled by the same party. The President could then bring congressional leaders of his party into line with Administration policy or at least work out with them a policy that would be mutually satisfactory. Without this cohesive tie, the House is broken up into splinters, each one of which tends to win approval of its proposals with little regard for consistency between one and another. It is for this reason that the La Follette-Monroney Committee proposed majority policy committees in both the House and the Senate. The Senate created such a committee. As former Speaker Rayburn pleaded with his colleagues to save the ECA program, he may well have experienced twinges of conscience for his part in rejecting the plan for majority and minority policy committees in the House.

Supplying ECA with funds is obviously a matter of high policy that should have had the attention of the entire House leadership. An alert and responsible leadership would never have invited the House to scuttle its own policy; nor would it have permitted the Appropriations Committee to do so. The issue would have been resolved at a higher level than the Appropriations Committee; that is to say in a leadership conference or in a majority policy committee if such a body existed. The present lack of cohesive direction puts a premium on irresponsibility and unnecessarily exposes the House to the kind of shocking performance in which it has just indulged. If the House is to restore its prestige and avoid this sort of irresponsible seesawing in the future, it will have to centralize its leadership and bring all the force of that leadership to the consistent support of its major policies.

WISDOM

Wisdom is more by far
Than the acquired skill
We call our hindmost sight
Which fixes dreams at will
And memories and thought
On longitudes of time
Whose ageless plotted chart
Reveals man's steady climb.

Wisdom is journeying
Through strange, uncharted seas
On keels no man has laid
In drydock memories,
Through channels where new thoughts
Loom up as islands known
And alien harbor-dreams
We recognize our own.

Controlling Communism

I think that Realist (letter published June 3) is being an idealist when he claims that it is unnecessary and useless to make laws to control Communists.

The following is a quotation from a Leland Junior High textbook entitled Right of Free Speech. Mr. Hurban, the former Ambassador from Czechoslovakia, put it something like this once. He said, "We Czechs and Slavs were never afraid of our Communists. Whenever they started to grow and gain votes, we knew there must be something wrong. We tried to find out what it was; for we knew that our Czech people were a sensible lot of folk. We usually found that the conditions complained of by the Communists could be improved by a sound law. Every time we made an improvement the votes drifted away from the Communists. We used our Communists as a sort of barometer to test our social legislation. That's what a great Slav, a believer in democracy, said once."

This book applauds this as a defense of freedom of speech. I suggest that Realist recognize the reality that has come to pass since this book was written; namely that Czechoslovakia is now under Communist control. The idealists appeased, and now where is the freedom they failed to safeguard?

Gift To Stalin

Drew Pearson recently wrote a letter to Stalin requesting the Russian Premier to allow Americans to send in a Friendship Train to the Russian children. Pearson concluded: "We will know exactly where we stand with Russia. We will know and can tell Europe that the shoe is on the other foot and that it is Russia, having rebuffed this act of friendship, which is the real warmonger."

I thoroughly disagree with this conclusion. When you offer a gift, surely the other fellow has a right to refuse without having his motives impugned. If I am compelled to accept every gift offered what happens to my privacy? For we all know that many gifts are given as a means of forcing an entry, and finding out all about our private business to be used in the interest of the gift-giver and not for our benefit. Most gifts have an underlying motive.

There may be a number of reasons why Stalin would refuse a gift without wishing to make a declaration of war. Perhaps the Russian children are not as much in need of food as some others. Or perhaps Stalin doesn't like columnists, newspaper columnists that is, and mistrusts suggestions coming from them.

Perhaps he has heard of the Trojan Horse and is not prepared to accept gifts at their face value. The role of Lady Bountiful is very intriguing. Sometimes these good-hearted givers are not really giving of their own but are giving me the shirt off your back.

I certainly do not feel that his refusal of a Friendship Train would be equivalent to a declaration of war.

Junior Police Corps

I wish to call your attention to the drive for funds initiated by the Junior Police and Citizens Corps. This organization has been created, with practically no funds at all, by Pvt. Oliver Cowan, who is still an officer of the Metropolitan Police Force. At the same time his work is getting national recognition on an increasing scale.

Officer Cowan accepted, of course, the old idea of fighting juvenile delinquency by directing the youth's energies into socially acceptable channels. His genuinely new contribution consists in the fact that he utilizes, for his purposes, the existing organizations of neighborhood gangs. Realizing that youngsters need, besides activity, recognition more than anything else, he just took over the gang and turned it the other way around.

Thus, a gang organized to smash street lights was turned into one destined to protect street lights—and it worked! No more streetlight smashing in that area. The system is as striking in its simplicity as the oath of admission administered to new members: "I promise to keep out of trouble and to help keeping others out of trouble." More power to Oliver Cowan! And just $25,000 for his corps!

Foreign Language Study

Apropos the criticism of the Voice of America broadcast in a foreign language, this is another example of the laxness of the American people to learn a foreign language.

I doubt if a similar situation could occur in any other country—I doubt that any other country would entrust a foreigner to broadcast a program of information about said country. Children of other countries study foreign language for six to eight years—the emphasis is to master the language as an instrument of communication.

When will the adminstrators and the curriculum makers in the United States sponsor a program of foreign language study which may equal the prestige of the United States in the fields of technique and industry?

Disabled DPs

I would like to draw your attention and the interest of those who decide our fate to the question of DP children and aged people.

The physically strongest, specialists and professional people, will make their living even under the most unfavorable conditions. But they who have suffered most are those who have lost their breadwinners in consequence of war—their husbands, their sons, or who are crippled themselves.

I know a little 6-year-old girl. Her father was taken by the Communists during the first Soviet occupation of Latvia. She and her mother were ordered to Germany by the Nazis a few years later. Recently the Russians deported the mother, leaving the little girl at the mercy of a German farmer. It recently has been possible to deliver the girl to her grandmother, living in the American zone.

Or I look at my neighbors. There are two women—Anna and Elsa. Anna has a son of 9, Elsa a girl of 7 and a boy of 5. Both lost their husbands during the war. Both know housekeeping, but they have no specific profession. Who will agree to take them?

Another neighbor lost an arm in the last days of the war. He had been deported forcibly to Germany, but as he is an invalid no emigration commission wants to take him. He does not request anything more than just the sort of work he can do. He can ride a bicycle, do certain kinds of work in shoemaking and can carve beautiful things out of wood. But he is an invalid, and as such nowhere wanted.

The glance of all the Christian world is turned on the United States of America. Liberation and a good example are expected from them, and it is their attitude that will decide reactions to the DP problem of others, too.

Enforcing Gambling Laws

We have had much good reading about the "scare" thrown into local gamblers by the current grand jury investigation into their large business. First reports were that they were lying low, leaving town, some crossing borders into Canada and Mexico. Now come reports that their courage is reviving, that they are returning, that they think the "wind will blow over," and that some of them are even seeking new customers.

I would not cast any doubt on the desirability of eliminating commercialized and illegal gambling, but I think your readers might be interested in the opinions of Brand Whitlock on methods of accomplishing this. He was our distinguished minister to Belgium during World War I, later endearing himself to half the world as Ambassador to that famished country. Before this he had been mayor of the city of Toledo, Ohio.

When the Federation of Churches of Toledo publicly called upon him to enforce the law against gambling and vice, he replied in a letter that has become historical among thoughtful students of the different ways to prevent crime. I quote one passage, which seems pertinent to the current drive on gamblers:

"It is easy to utter words and to employ phrases, such as 'law enforcement,' etc. In what does the 'enforcement' of a law or statute consist? It consists, according to one opinion, in the following:

"In a city there is a man, called a mayor because he has been voted into an office by a majority of the people; there is another man called a director of public safety chosen by the mayor; there is still another man, called a chief of police, selected in a different manner, and there are still others, more numerous, selected in still another way, called policemen.

"There are still others, called officials, each with his distinct title, such as judge of the police court, turnkeys, superintendent of the house of correction, guards, gaolers, etc.

"All of these men, though called officials, are nevertheless men, and the only real distinction between them and other men is that they have what is called 'authority,' that is there are those called subordinates, who do what they are told to do.

"Thus the mayor tells the director of public safety to enforce a law, whereupon the director of public safety tells the chief of police to enforce a law, and then the chief of police tells the policemen to enforce a law. The policemen thereupon, seeing an individual violating that law, or hearing that he has violated it, seize him, lead him before the judge, tell the judge that he has violated the law, and the judge tells other men, called by different titles, to take the man to the house of correction, and there deliver him, with a paper on which there are certain written directions and the impression of a seal to a prison keeper, who is to lock the man up for a certain number of days.

"This process is what is called 'enforcing a law,' and it is supposed that by it the man who violated the law will be prevented from violating it again and that other men, who have been thinking of violating it, or intend to violate it, will be deterred from doing so and that still other men, who were bad or are about to become bad, will be kept good. It is considered and believed that this will be the effect, because it has been so stated and written and printed in books."

Facing The Home Folk

By Malvina Lindsay

Verdict On Congress

MANY A MEMBER of Congress no doubt wishes he could pull down an iron curtain in his glass house during these present hectic days of bill passing and buck passing. For the mood of the voters back home, whom he must face sooner or later, is uncertain. If some politically embarrassing bills get lost in the last-minute jam, will many people notice it? Will they care?

The general feeling among politicians seems to be that they won't, that they are as politically apathetic as in 1946 when they made a comparatively small showing at the polls. They have jobs and they are eating fairly well, it is argued, and they are still engrossed in their personal postwar affairs. What's more, they've had their taxes reduced—at least the more vocal of them. Why should they bother watching Congress—or its lobbyists? Why should not legislative obstructionists expect to get away with any amount of high-handed sabotage?

YET SOME warning signs are beginning to show up. These indicate there may be more voters looking into candidates' voting records than have been counted on.

Most significant is the recent action of a great church body, the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., in censuring Congress for repudiating its pledge to provide housing for veterans. The church's General Assembly also took a definite stand on other social legislation—some of which is likely to remain bottled up—and called on its Division of Social Education and Action to provide voting records of members of Congress to be studied in individual churches "prior to the November elections."

Another group likely to look into housing legislation—or more likely the lack of it—will come from the approximately 6½ million families, including many veterans, that are living doubled up and from the millions of others living in inadequate quarters.

Also failure to pass the Federal aid-to-education bill would set a great many people, parents as well as educators, to thinking, especially in September when 2,570,000 new first-graders, as estimated by the Census Bureau, will be ready for school. The number of beginners will be 300,000 above last year as the wartime baby crop is now turning into a school tide that is expected to reach its peak in 1953. Yet poorer communities are not prepared to educate these children without Federal aid.

Voters on fixed incomes who are bearing the brunt of inflation, and the many white-collar workers who have not profited by union wage increases also might be expected to be more politically curious this year than usual.

ANOTHER unpleasant prospect for the legislator who has contributed to congressional delay and inaction is that of facing the large nonpartisan organized women's groups which are aggressively backing international cooperation and social welfare advance. Never before has there been such an army of these. Women's National News Service, which recently made a survey of the strength of these groups, found a groundswell of membership had taken place in the last few years.

Among the groups with substantial gains are the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Association of University Women, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, the League of Women Voters, the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace—all committed to definite legislative programs.

Most of the big national women's groups have been working vigorously for international legislation, such as ERP and the reciprocal trade agreements. Many have also backed Federal aid to education and housing and health measures. Among these women there is less straight party voting, more tendency to judge a candidate on his personal voting record.

It will not, of course, be possible to run down all the villains in the plot, should Congress end with a record of obstructionism toward foreign policy and domestic social legislation. But there may be more amateur sleuthing for them than is generally expected.

Palestine Partition

In regard to the letter of Mrs. Henry Greene of June 4, may I suggest that, after reading your wise and moderate editorial of June 2 about Palestine, she might be willing to change her last word. Not feudalism but fanaticism is the enemy of democracy and enlightenment. It is not material that some Arab states are feudal nor that many Jews are Communists. The problem is whether Dr. Weizmann and King Abdullah can control the fanaticism of, let us say, Mr. Ben Gurion and the Mufti.

I would not like to be provocative but surely to many of us "the forces of darkness" are not the Arabs but the wild Irgun, killing the unoffensive, undefended, women and children of Deir Yassim. And as for the Stern gang!

I fear it will be long before the Arabs are willing to accept partition but I am sure the Jews would be happier here in America. Using the checkerboard method of partition with which we have become familiar by the maps of the proposed state of Israel, let us see how great an area of New York and New Jersey have a Jewish majority, and offer it as the Jewish homeland.

We would thus establish our moral leadership of the world, and free ourselves of the suspicion of advocating for Palestine treatment we would not like ourselves.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Edge of the Abyss

LONDON.—"For some days, we were on the edge of an abyss," an official here remarked recently. He was discussing the Soviet-sponsored and American-supported United Nations proposal for sanctions against the Arab states. The proposal was defeated in the Security Council but it may be reintroduced at a later date. And it is worth recording the unanimous conviction of the British officials concerned that the proposal threatened to force the Middle East into the Soviet sphere of influence, together with the reasons for this conviction.

These reasons mainly concern Iraq. The economic position in Iraq is already desperate. If imports from the West were stopped, even the present appallingly low standard of living in Iraq could not be maintained. And solid information available to the British Intelligence Service indicated that the Soviets were fully prepared to take advantage of this situation.

As soon as sanctions were imposed, a violent political explosion in Iraq would have been inevitable. The pro-Soviet political group in Iraq, more powerful than in any other Middle Eastern country except possibly Iran, was clearly preparing to use this explosion to its own ends, with Soviet support. Soviet support, according to the intelligence reports, was to take the form of a Soviet gold loan.

This loan had already been promised to pro-Soviet Iraq leaders, even while the discussions in the United Nations were in progress. It was to be made available after the sanctions were imposed, in exchange for certain concessions to the Soviet Union. There is no doubt at all that these concessions would have assured effective Soviet political control of Iraq.

THE RESULTS were wholly predictable. Extension of effective Soviet influence to Iraq would mean the bypassing of the whole Anglo-American holding line to the Soviet Union's south, in Greece, Turkey and Iran. Moreover, with Iraq fallen to the Soviet sphere, other Middle Eastern countries would certainly soon have followed suit.

Pakistan, also subject to sanctions under the Soviet resolution, and where the economic situation is as desperate as in Iraq, could only have turned to its powerful northern neighbor. Iran, it was believed, would have been the next to go. In short, the process of destroying the whole western position in the Middle East would have been well begun, and the western nations faced with a wholly catastrophic strategic defeat.

All this may sound alarmist. Yet it is, in broad outline, the serious British estimate of the situation which was repeatedly communicated to Washington in the days during which the Palestine issue was being debated in the United Nations. This British estimate may have been incorrect or exaggerated, although the report of the proposed Soviet gold loan to Iraq was considered solid information here and seemed clearly enough to indicate Soviet intentions.

At any rate, the repeated warnings from London were for some days not even acknowledged by Washington, which seems at this distance a remarkable example of moral cowardice. Acknowledgment was finally forthcoming from Washington only after a special meeting of top British political and military leaders was convened and their unanimous estimate of the dangers of the situation forwarded to Washington.

ALL THIS is now water over the dam. Yet it serves to illustrate the immense dangers implicit in the whole Palestine situation. Few here will defend in detail the policy on Palestine which has been until recently pursued by stubborn British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin. No one proposes that Washington should slavishly follow London's lead on policy toward the Middle East or any other area.

But there is a general conviction here, shared by responsible American observers, that Washington has consistently disregarded or shoved under the rug the ugly facts of the situation in the Middle East. The central fact is simply that the Soviet planners clearly intend to use the Palestine issue, first to drive a wedge between the British and American partners, and second as a means of extending Soviet power into the Middle East.

The Middle East is an agonizingly sensitive spot in the whole painful British postwar position. When the boot is prodded the British reaction is apt to be tinged with hysteria, simply because the loss of the British Middle East position would spell immediate disaster for Great Britain. Yet in the long run the extension of Soviet power into the Middle East would be equally disastrous to the interests of the United States.

American policy must be formed in the light of that harsh reality. Fortunately, a realistic joint Anglo-American policy is not impossible, since the bull-headed Bevin policy has been shelved by the British. A determined joint effort to achieve an agreed settlement between the Israeli leaders and Trans-Jordan's King Abdullah may yet provide the solution to the explosive and tragic problem of Palestine.

French Fears On Germany

IN THE rush of our election-year politics the meaning of the political storm in France is likely to be lost sight of. But it is just possible that the gathering storm has greater significance for the future than anything that will happen on this side of the water.

Childs

Back of the agitation and the fear that cut across all political lines is the tragic history of the period between the two wars. Then, as now, France lived in terror of the rebirth of German might.

That same specter is back of the threat to the government of Premiere Robert Schuman and the position of Foreign Minister Georges Bidault in that government. The balance has been precariously held between the Communists on the extreme left and the De Gaullists on the right. If the agreement on a central government for western Germany has shattered that balance, then the cost is too high.

Some concessions were made to the French in London. The production of the Ruhr is to be controlled by a board on which western Europe and the United States will be represented. Firm commitments were made for the long-time control and occupation of Germany.

But for Bidault returning to face the hostility of the Left and the Right this is not enough. It is the shadow rather than the substance.

Bidault had hoped to be able to match the agreement on Germany, with its provision for a central government, by an assurance of arms from the United States to build up new French divisions. That was to have been the substance of security to quiet the fears of the French people.

SOME WEEKS ago a kind of lend-lease of United States arms—surplus arms, at any rate—was seriously considered. This hope was held out to the French and to the other nations of western Europe.

At that time a French military mission told American military planners that the urgent need was for 30,000 rifles to be used in putting together at once two new French divisions. It had previously been indicated that surplus rifles were available.

After some deliberation the French were told that it would be impossible to arrange the transfer of the rifles. Undoubtedly, the difficulty of obtaining congressional approval for such a move was a paramount reason. But United States military men also hinted that in view of the growing tension in relations with Soviet Russia, not even surplus armaments could be spared.

For Bidault and his colleagues in the Schuman government, trying desperately to hold the middle position, this was a hard blow. They know that France today is virtually defenseless. And, more important, they know the underlying desire of the French people is to avoid a war at almost any cost. A war would mean occupation, and the horror of the years after 1940 is still terribly vivid in the memory of the French.

BACK OF French doubts and fears is a suspicion of United States motives. The French opposed a central government for western Germany with a constituent assembly. They argued at London for building up the political strength of the separate German states.

In the view of the French, a centralized government also will mean a centralized industrial-economic system, and it is here that the gravest French doubts enter.

There is a belief that banking interests in New York are out to make a killing in Germany. With dollars they could acquire German interests for very little. Such investments would show enormous advances within a short time as German industry recovered under the spur of the Marshall Plan.

With that American stake in the German economy, the cards would be stacked against western Europe. Or so the suspicious French believe.

In many respects, French policy on Germany has been tragically shortsighted since World War II. It has often seemed to be merely a repetition of the worst errors committed after World War I.

French stubbornness has made the position of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military commander in Germany, doubly difficult. But after all this has been said, French opinion and the threat of an upheaval in France are real. The threat happens to coincide with the action of the House of Representatives in lopping a billion dollars off the recovery program. The combination of the German agreement and the House blunder can chill the beginning recovery and cooperation. If that happens, it will be difficult or impossible to build it back again.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Give Their Opinions on 'Must' Bills Before Congress

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 8.—Voter opinion, as reflected in Nation-wide surveys by the institute, favors six out of nine major bills now being considered by Congress.

Republican leaders in the House and Senate, in order to speed up legislative machinery during closing days of the Eightieth Congress, have set up a goal of "must" legislation. The proposals given top priority are the draft, renewal of reciprocal trade agreements and displaced persons bills.

Other important measures pressing for passage, but which will have to take their chance in between appropriation bills, include United Nations Charter revision, Federal aid to education, civil rights, repeal of margarine taxes and long-term housing and farm programs.

In recent weeks the institute has tested public sentiment on all these issues except for the displaced persons and housing and farm legislation. A summary of the most recent polls on the other issues follow:

DRAFT—While 70 per cent of voters think Congress ought to pass a draft law, when it comes down to a choice between universal military training and the draft, twice as many would choose UMT as the way to build up our armed forces. If a draft has to come into being, the public believes 18 months, rather than the two years.

RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS—Informed voters overwhelmingly want Congress to renew the Trade Agreement Act which empowers the President to arrange reciprocal trade agreements with individual countries. Among people familiar with the subject the vote is better than eight to one for extending the program.

CIVIL RIGHTS—It is unlikely that President Truman's civil rights program as a whole will be considered unless it is tacked onto another bill, as Senator Langer, North Dakota, threatens to do in connection with the draft. Outside the South the weight of voter opinion favors the program, but Southern voters oppose it in the ratio of 9 to 1.

U. N. CHARTER REVISION—Voters agree in general with congressional efforts to set up a policy for the United States to follow in trying to make the United Nations more effective. The public would favor almost any plan to speed things up. Voters particularly want a limit put on the use of the veto; those with opinions actually vote almost two to one in favor of eliminating the veto. Sixty-five per cent also would approve a mutual defense alliance with western European countries under the U. N. Charter, which is another policy Congress is considering.

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION—A majority of American voters believe the Federal Government should help States finance their school systems. Already passed by the Senate, the Taft bill would distribute about 300 million dollars annually to the States in school aid. Fifty-one per cent of voters approve this step, but one in three thinks that the cost of education should be borne entirely by individual States.

MARGARINE TAX REPEAL—Seven out of 10 voters want all Federal taxes and fees on margarine repealed as would be done under a bill passed by the House and waiting Senate action.

Senators Ask $50,000 for Trusts Probe

By The Associated Press

A Senate Commerce subcommittee voted yesterday to find out whether a concentration of economic power in this country is throttling competition, and whether the antitrust laws are being enforced.

A resolution calling for a $50,000 inquiry said that problems growing out of an "increasing" economic concentration are raising "serious threats for the success and survival of our form of government."

Representatives of industry, agriculture, labor and consumers would be called as witnesses.

The subcommittee was set up originally to inquire only into the recent Supreme Court decisions involving basing-point price systems and their effect on consumer prices.

The unanimous decision to enlarge the scope of the inquiry followed testimony by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) and Federal Trade Commission officials. It is still subject to approval by the full committee, which meets tomorrow, the Senate Rules Committee and the Senate.

The Senate Judiciary Committee also has announced plans for a similar investigation through a subcommittee headed by Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.). It would cost $15,000, if approved. Whether only one, or both, of the investigations will be authorized will be decided by the Rules Committee.

Members of the Commerce group include Senators Capehart (R., Ind.), chairman; Brewster (R., Me.), Hawkes (R., N. J.), Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), and McMahon (D., Conn.).

Wherry, Virden in Hot Dispute Over Steel

A Senate Committee hearing on steel shortages touched off a hot dispute yesterday between Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) and John Virden, Commerce Department official.

At one point, Virden accused Wherry of not telling the truth.

Wherry is chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee which is looking into the scarcity of steel. Virden is director of the Commerce Department's office of industrial co-operation.

Virden, a Republican industrialist from Cleveland, resigned recently when it was disclosed his daughter was working for Tass, Russian news agency. He withdrew the resignation after President Truman urged him to stay on the job.

The Wherry-Virden exchange started after Wherry told representatives of a dozen steel producers that unless they work out a way to ease shortages on a voluntary basis, "you're going to have allocations." That would mean some form of government rationing or set asides.

Wherry said the shortage is "getting worse instead of better."

"It's getting better," Virden said.

"It's getting worse," Wherry reiterated. Then he added:

"It looks to me as though the first thing we have to do is convince the Department of Commerce that small business is facing hardships."

"Don't say that for the record," Virden told him.

"I am saying it for the record," Wherry shouted.

"You won't be telling the truth if you say that for the record," Virden said.

"I know them probably better than you do. We're looking out for them, too."

They calmed down later, and Wherry said he wanted to give Virden 10 or 20 days more to talk over the problem with steel industry representatives and try to come up with a voluntary location problem.

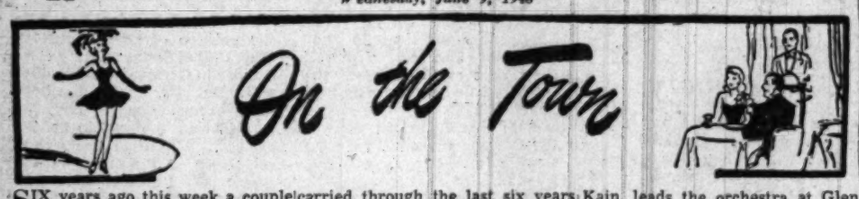
AMERICAN AIRLINES



SIX years ago this week a couple of young men bought a restaurant which at one time had been a well-known and well-liked dining spot here. They redecorated it, made some changes in the kitchen and service, then reopened and hoped for business. They made it an iron-bound rule to serve the best food they possibly could. People started getting the habit of lunching and dining there, a habit which has carried through the last six years to make Olmsted's one of the best known restaurants in town. This week it is offering new culinary treats to celebrate the anniversary of James Brahms' and Leonard Mitchell's buying the spot.

Nini Baker

On Friday evening a couple of searchlights will flick on to announce the opening of the Roger Smith Starlight Roof for the season. It's the only hotel roof garden in the city that features both dining and dancing. According to a press release, just about the time the stars peep out (who ever heard of peeping stars) so will Sammy Seymour and his orchestra. They'll be doing a lot of novelty vocals this year with Nini Baker featured. Nini also does the arranging for the band.

The Lotus show, which goes into its second week tomorrow night, features Gino Daro and Corda another dance team that banks on the public's sense of humor. They do a satire on ballroom dancers. Joey Dean, a mighty mite of rhythm, does a fast tap routine. For our money the slip of the show was in giving minor booking to Arline and Dowling, an acrobatic team. In their neatest stunt, Dowling places a log on a table, then balances a board on top of that. Then Dowling balances on the board and lifts his partner Arling over his head. A neat trick.

THIS item comes out of the life-is-strange file. The other night a young man walked up to Paul Kain, leads the orchestra at Glen Echo, and whispered in his ear. Paul promptly got down, handed the young fellow the baton and stepped aside while the newcomer led the orchestra through "Love Walked By." Now to make this all wind up in best fictional style the band and audience would have to applaud the guy while he calmly walked out the door followed by half a dozen agents trying to sign him up for the movies. The audience and orchestra did applaud, but there were no agents handy with wetted pens and fat contracts. The thing that was whispered in Paul's ear was that the next day the young man was going to have an operation and he wasn't too sure of the results. Since he'd had the lifelong ambition to lead an orchestra he asked Paul. Or so the story goes.

The Balalaika closes Saturday night. During the summer Mischa Bess will redecorate the club and it'll open this fall as a continental type theater-restaurant, but with the same name. Ira Ari, the headliner there, is featuring a new "Zomba" dance this week. It's no relation to the Zombies, in human or liquid form.

Evelyn Balfour, the Watergate Inn handwriting analyst, has become quite a fad at that spot. She recently did Mrs. Truman's handwriting. Wonder if she learned anything about their home for the next four years.

House Votes D. C. Sales Levy and Low-Bracket Income Tax Exemption

it a 1 per cent sales tax, and to exempt clothing.

Finally they staved off a roll-call on passage after the standing vote failed to show a quorum. When the quorum point was raised, House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), started to count, and there was a minor rush toward cloakroom doors. Martin announced those leaving were going to be counted. He found 227 members present, more than a quorum. That sidetracked efforts for a roll call.

The sales-tax plan exempts food for home consumption, medicine, and some other items. The House added to the proposed list of things exempt from the tax three other items—soft drinks, coffins and caskets.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) and District Fiscal Affairs Chairman George J. Bates (R., Mass.) led the drive for passage of the new tax plan. Each reminded the House of their fight 10 years ago which helped defeat District sales tax legislation then.

They were joined in the drive for approving the sales plan by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House District budget writing subcommittee, Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) and Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) of the House District Committee.

Sharpest fight to kill the sales tax was launched by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), District Committee member, who asked the House to substitute for the committee bill his plan for hiking the District income tax rates and extending its coverage to persons who now escape the levy. But his move was defeated by a standing vote, 65 to 16.

Club Dues Exempted

Representative Bates won approval for a technical amendment in the income-tax section to take the levy off club dues, while retaining it for the income from club activities like the sale of food and drinks that are in competition with business.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) sponsored the exemption for soft drinks in the sales tax. Rep. Alfred L. Bulwinkle (D., N. C.) sponsored the sales-tax exemptino for coffins and caskets.

Representatitve John E. Fogarty (D., R. I.) asked that the 2 per cent plan be scrapped and that the sales tax be applied at the rate of 1 cent on each dollar of purchase, with items less than $1 tax free. The bill, modeled on Maryland's sales tax, would exempt items costing 13 cents or less; the tax would be one cent on items costing 14 to 50 cents inclusive, two cents on items costing 51 cents to $1 inclusive, and one cent for each additional 50 cents of purchase price or fraction of it.

Fogarty lost his proposal on a voice vote. Later another voice vote killed his bid to exempt clothing from the sales tax.

Representative John McCormack (D., Mass.) obtained House approval for a technical amendment to insure that services of nonprofit hospitals would not be subject to the sales tax.

The sales-tax plan is designed to raise 6.5 million in new revenue in the fiscal year starting July 1 if it takes effect about September 1 to cover the costs of a pay boost. It would raise about 13.5 million in a full year of collections. The difference is explained partly by the late date of starting in the coming year, partly by the fact that collections for the last three months would not be available to the city until the following fiscal year.

The income-tax revision would give the District a system in which a high-bracket income tax would be coupled with the sales levy.

Under the new income-tax plan each taxpayer would get a basic $8000 exemption, compared with the present $1000 exemption. For a spouse the credit would be $500 compared with $1000 now, and for each dependent the present credit of $500 would continue. As in present law, the taxpayer could claim itemized deductions for taxes paid, contributions, interest and the like, or he could claim a standard $500 credit, whichever gave him the better break.

Rates now are 1 per cent on the first $5000 of taxable income, increasing by one half of 1 per cent for each additional $5000 of income, to a top rate of 3 per cent on taxable income over $20,000. The new rates would start at 2 per cent on the first $7000 of taxable income, go to 2½ per cent on the next $5000 and to 3 per cent on taxable income over $12,000.

Jap Empress, Daughters May Become Christians

Tokyo, June 8 (U.P.).—Mrs. Tamaki Uemura, president of the Japanese YWCA, said today she expects and "has high hopes" the Empress Nagako and the three imperial daughters will embrace Christianity.

Mrs. Uemura said she is an ordained Presbyterian minister and has been giving religious lessons to the princesses since last September and to their mother for the past two months. She made it clear that neither Emperor Hirohito nor Crown Prince Akihito had attended her classes.

Fiduciary Use Heightened by New Tax Laws

By S. Oliver Goodman

Complicated tax laws have played an important part in the increasing trend toward the use of fiduciaries, according to J. E. Denmark of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Speaking at a conference yesterday of the American Institute of Banking in Buffalo, Denmark said that during the past 30 years trust business in this country has experienced a remarkable growth.

"Perhaps the most important reason is that people have become more trust conscious as they have become better acquainted with the facilities afforded by corporate fiduciaries for handling estates, trusts and other fiduciary accounts," he added.

Another speaker at the forty-sixth annual convention of the A. I. B. was Joseph M. Dodge, president of the American Bankers Association, who said that "in too many cases banks and businesses have grown more rapidly than the people in them."

"Many individuals tend to think that they should move up automatically with the large increase which has come about in the size of their bank or business from economic forces, even when they have done little outstanding to warrant it," Dodge stated.

"Those who intend to progress must be sure to develop themselves as individuals and personalities as they add to their knowledge and experience. There comes a time when technical knowledge and ability are not enough. With equal abilities, the most favorable personal factors will tend to carry the decision."

A delegation from the Washington Chapter, A. I. B., is attending the Buffalo convention.

Elliott

motion of Joseph W. Elliott to international and agency representative were announced yesterday. Both will make their headquarters at the National Airport. Newman formerly was EAL reservations manager in Boston and New York and later in the general offices. He will live with his parents in McLean, Va. Elliott joined EAL in 1946 and has held various positions in the local traffic department. He lives in Alexandria, Va.

BIDS INVITED: You may never have heard of the road, but the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad has invited bids to be received June 22 for $17,570,000 in general mortgage bonds, maturing in 1979. P. B. & W. is a leased unit in the Pennsylvania Railroad system, and proceeds from the offering will pay off an obligation to the lessee company.

COSTS: Major housing projects throughout the country will not be started by insurance companies until construction costs are lower, a recognized spokesman for the industry disclosed. The Institute of Life Insurance, reporting on a Nation-wide survey, said: "Virtually all plans by life insurance companies in the United States for large-scale, new low-rental housing or even moderate rentals are in abeyance." The general view is that present construction costs would require such high rents that, although people would probably pay them this year and next, they might not pay them later than that.

SHOE PRICES: Retail shoe sales this year are lagging behind last year's pace and increased prices are blamed. Said George B. Hess, president of the National Shoe Retailers Association, at a Tanners Council meeting this week: "The public is convinced that shoe prices are too high and I am afraid that we are killing off consumer interest and buying potential every day because of our price structure." Hess, who is a Baltimore shoe retailer, said consumer resistance was also manifest in the way his firm's affiliated shoe repair shop is jammed with business.

GHOULISH FIGURES: Insane as it may seem, there are some businesses that are worth more dead than alive. Recently, in Washington two finance firms went into liquidation and their security holders received far more than the market of their stocks several months before dissolution. Another case is pointed out by Clifford H. Ramsdell, associate editor of Railway Progress. Estimated scrap value of all rail in the track of Rutland Railroad, he pointed out, is $3,675,000 while total market value of all Rutland securities on a recent date was $843,000. In addition, the Vermont road had equipment valued at $1,163,000 and net current assets of $873,000.

Rock Island Votes First Dividend on Common

Chicago, June 8 (AP).—The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad has voted its first dividend, 75 cents a share on common stock, since reorganization. The dividend is payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 18.

The board of directors also voted two quarterly payments of $1.25 each, on preferred stock, payable September 30, to stockholders of record September 10, and payable on December 31 to stockholders of record December 10.

Hospital Visitors Learn of Its Needs

Emergency Hospital held "open house" yesterday, and interested visitors learned a hospital's troubles are not always financial.

The hospital needs nurses, nursing students and women volunteer workers almost as badly now as it did during the war-shortage years, said its administrator, James G. Capossela.

Emergency, Capossela declared, ended 1947 with a balanced budget. In fact, said the administrator, "we had several thousand dollars surplus." He was less optimistic about 1948 finances, but emphatically stated the hospital would not consider a public fund-raising drive.

The nurse and nursing-aid problems, however, are stacking up into one big headache that can be remedied only by a change in public attitude, said Capossela.

It's not unusual, he said, for Emergency to start the day with 20 fewer nurses than are needed.

"Can't Seem to Get Them"

"We just can't seem to get them," he declared.

The shortage, he said, can be expected to get worse if response to the hospital's present recruiting program for student nurses is a criterion. Emergency Hospital, he said, seeks 40 girl high school graduates to enter its nursing school in September, but so far has lined up but 20 prospective entrants.

"I can't understand it," he declared. "The nursing profession today offers grand opportunities, better than it ever has before."

Decline of interest among volunteer women workers is more understandable, but just as hard on the hospitals, he said.

More Volunteers Needed

"We need more volunteers, and we need them badly," declared the administrator. "The public must realize that hospitals are theirs as much as the staffs that run them, and unless the public helps we can't do our job properly."

During the peak of war patriotism, said Capossela, Emergency, in the two volunteer services remaining, had as many as 122 nurses aides serving monthly a total of 3500 work hours, and 322 WVC's contributing over 5000 hours a month.

Today, said Capossela, the nurses aides work-month there averages between 700 to 1000 hours, which is closely matched by volunteer work of the hospital's own group.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 8 (AP).—Influences in the grain futures market were mixed today and rallies were difficult to maintain. At the outset, wheat advanced on reports that the Production and Marketing Administration was in the market for flour.

Later hedge selling by mills against purchase of cash wheat, and reports of rapid advancement of the northern Texas harvest reduced early gains.

Corn and oats followed the trend of wheat. Soybeans were independently strong and advanced the 8-cent daily limit on reports of sales of soya flour to the Army.

At the finish wheat was unchanged to ¼ lower, July, 2.29@2.29½. Corn was ½ higher to 1¼ lower, July, 2.16¾@2.16⅞. Oats were ½ to ¾ higher, July, 93⅜@93¾, and soybeans were 4½ to 5½ higher, July, 4.22.

Delegates Visit U. S. Libraries

Mor ethan 15 Government libraries were visited yesterday by delegates to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Special Libraries Association, now in session here.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer and Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan welcomed the visitors to libraries in their respective departments. At the Smithsonian Institution, Secretary Dr. Alexander Wetmore, greeted the delegates.

The tours were part of a two-day Federal Library Institute, a feature in the convention program.

In the evening, the delegates attended a "Who's Who in SLA" party at the Hotel Statler. An award was presented to H. W. Wilson of New York, founder and president of the H. W. Wilson Co., published of library bibliographical indexes and catalogues. The firm is marking its fiftieth anniversary.

Today "general" sessions will open at 9:30 a. m. in the Federal room of the Statler. Delegates will receive reports of standing committees. At 12:30 p. m., Mrs. Olive Clapper, author and widow of Raymond Clapper, will address a luncheon meeting.

At 6 p. m. a joint dinner sponsored by librarians of newspapers and publishing firms will be held at Hotel Burlington. Scheduled speakers are Relman Morin, chief of the Washington bureau, Associated Press, and Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, director, legislative reference service, Library of Congress.

Beaver Meat for Britain

London, June 8 (U.P.).—The housewives of hungry Britain today were offered Danish beaver meat at $2 a pound.

First reports said that beaver meat was as nourishing as whale meat, without the fishy taste.

Baltimore Transit Co. Asks Fare Increase

Baltimore, June 8 (AP).—Stating that its financial condition is now critical, the Baltimore Transit Co. asked the Public Service Commission yesterday for authority to increase its fares to 15 cents a ride, or two rides for a quarter. A flat 10 cent rate has been in effect for the last 17 years. In filing the application, President August B. Baneke said the company has been losing an average of $4300 a day since the first of the year.

2 Killed in Army Blast

Dover, N. J., June 8 (U.P.).—Two men loading 150-pound photo flash bombs were killed today in an explosion at the United States Army Picatinny Arsenal here.

Highlights Are Announced For Watergate

A stellar program for the four-week Watergate Concert series this summer was announced yesterday.

Occasion was a luncheon at the Hotel Burlington, called by the Board of Trade's cultural development committee to honor residents who helped to underwrite the series and to say farewell for awhile to Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony.

The concerts, to be held Wednesday, Friday and Sunday evenings beginning July 4, will feature such artists as Dorothy Maynor, soprano; Agi Jambor, Hungarian pianist; Albert Spaulding, violinist; Todd Duncan, baritone, and Claudio Arrau, Chilean pianist. The annual Gershwin memorial program will be held July 9, with Sidney Foster at the piano.

Tickets will go on sale today at the Symphony box office and Kitt's Music Store, 1330 G st. nw.

George S. Titus, chairman of the cultural development committee, announced that efforts to underwrite the series have brought in within $1000 of the $15,000 goal.

School Plan Is Adopted

A proposal to use Arlington elementary schools to accommodate an overflow of new junior high school pupils was appproved by the County School Board last night.

The board acted after school officials pointed out that about 230 pupils who are scheduled to enter the seventh grade next fall cannot be accommodated in the already crowded junior high school.

Under the approved plan four rooms in the Thomas Nelson Page School and four more in the Woodrow Wilson School will be used for junior high school classes starting in September. They will accommodate pupils moving up from the sixth grade in six other elementary schools.

The proposal to utilize part of the two buildings was approved over an alternate plan which called for the use of two classrooms each in four other elementary schools.

School officials said the plan will necessitate some redistribution of pupils now attending the Page and Wilson schools but they will be sent to other schools closest to their homes.

More than 150 parents whose children are effected by overcrowding in the junior high schools sat in on the meeting and a majority expressed approval of the new plan.

3d D. C. Home Man Dies After Binge On Poisoned Drink

A third man, John Higgins, 76, died yesterday at Gallinger Hospital at 3:55 a. m. as the result of a weekend drinking binge at the District Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains.

Four inmates of the home drank a mixture of wine and denatured alcohol, police said.

Two of them, William Schultz, 78, and Daniel Ferris, 70, died Sunday. The fourth man, Charles Chappelle, 60, is in a serious condition at Gallinger.

Va. ABC Drive In Alexandria Gets Results

The Virginia State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's drive in Alexandria to "clean up or close down" hole-in-the-wall liquor places is showing results, an ABC inspector said yesterday.

Inspector W. W. Duncan, jr., said he had found only two violations of ABC regulations in the past month among the more than 200 licensed liquor establishments in the Alexandria area.

Of 150 of the establishments which have had licenses renewed recently, only hotels and "bona fide" restaurants have received wine on-sale licenses, Duncan said. Tightening up on wine on-sale licenses, he said, was part of the drive against "undesirable" drinking places fronting as restaurants.

New licenses must be obtained before July 1.

Duncan also said the State ABC board has received a recommendation from Hearing Officer John Sebrell, jr., to revoke the license of Lyles' Billiard Parlor, 415 King st. Final action will be taken at a hearing in Richmond June 15.

Bank Prober Turns Robber

Pocatello, Idaho, June 8 (U.P.).—A Federal bank examiner, who turned holdup man for two hours and was caught because he lisped, pleaded guilty today to a bank robbery.

Rudolph B. De Packh, who said he had been connected with banks for many years, held up the First National Bank at Grace, Idaho, and escaped with $3860 yesterday.

The bank was one which he had visited at least four times in the past 18 months as a Federal examiner. Alvin Whitehead, cashier and one of three employes locked in a vault for an hour and a half, recognized De Packh by his lisp and despite his disguise of coveralls and dark glasses.

"I know Federal laws as well as anyone," said De Packh, 37. "I'm better off if I plead guilty."

He said he almost took enough to settle some Nevada gambling debts and a $500 deficit which he said he had at an Elko, Nev., bank.

Thomas L. Eagan of 6400 Maple ave., Chevy Chase, Md., has been elected president of the Heating, Piping and Air Conditioning Contractors' National Association, it was announced yesterday.

Eagan is president of the Morris and Eagan Co., 2143 K st. nw., and is chairman of the board of the Boys Club of Washington. He is past president of the Rotary Club and the Early Birds Breakfast Club, and a member of the board of trustees of the Sidwell Friends School.

Vandenberg Tops Gov. Dewey, 21-14, in Ad Club Straw Poll

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) topped Gov. Thomas E. Dewey by a vote of 21 to 14 yesterday in a straw poll conducted at a meting of the Advertising Club of Washington.

At the session held in the Statler Hotel, viewpoints of the major parties were presented by Senators Ralph O. Brewster (R., Me.) and Brien McMahon (D., Conn.).

The straw vote, gave nine votes to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, seven for Harold E. Stassen, six each for Senator Robert A. Taft and President Truman, and one vote each for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Senator Joseph W. Martin, Henry A. Wallace and Gov. Earl Warren. One write-in vote was cast for radio performer Arthur Godfrey.

Senator McMahon accused the Republican Party of emasculating reciprocal trade proposals, playing into the hands of Russia by cutting foreign aid funds, attempting to put the Atomic Energy Commission on a patronage basis and burying essential minimum wage, housing and educational bills in the "mausoleums" of congressional committees.

Senator Brewster combated every major assertion made by McMahon and said the Republicans could not be expected in 18 months to undo the evils performed by the New Deal in 14 years.

McMahon said that the 80th Congress in his opinion, was guilty of "a callous disregard of the best interests of the people of the United States."

"Congress seems to have devoted its attention to the cause of special pleaders and special interests," he added.

Brewster countered that on the foreign aid score, Congress has the duty to examine the rquests to see whether any paring can be done and still carry out the purpose of the aid. He said that on the atomic energy issue, he was inclined toward two-year appointments, and as far as Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal was concerned, he said, "There is the possibility that in the next four or five years, we might want someone who has somewhat more sympathy with the traditional policies of the Nation."

As for the presidential candidates, he said the Republican Party offered a choice among many shades of opinion. As to the Democrats, he said President Truman's record was one of uncertain policy, and Eisenhower was a "pig in a poke politically."

Catucci Elected Grand Knight of Carroll Council

Henry G. Catucci, 32, has been elected Grand Knight of the Carroll Council 377, Knights of Columbus. Youngest Grand Knight in the group's history, Catucci is regional international manager of Western Union Telegraph Co., and lives at 2913 North Capitol st.

Colonel AWOL From Hawaii Post Surrenders Here

A 44-year-old lieutenant colonel, who had been absent for 24 days without leave from his Hawaii station, has surrendered at the Pentagon here to the Provost Marshall of the Military District of Washington, authorities revealed yesterday.

He was identified by the Army as Lieut. Col. Robert J. Venerable, of Skowhegan, Me., attached to the Fifty-first Quartermaster Base Depot at Oahu.

Authorities said Venerable left Honolulu on a commercial airliner for New York—without explanation. He was being held last night at Fort Myer, pending further investigation, the Army said.

Movieland Club Blast Kills 1, Burns 6

Los Angeles, June 8 (AP).—Hillcrest Country Club, a favorite among movie prominents, was blown up today by an accumulation of gas. One man was killed and six others burned, two critically.

With a roar heard for miles, the roof of the clubhouse blew off at 8:05 a. m. (PDT). Fire spread quickly, and destroyed most of the one-story, white colonial structure. Club Manager John Steinberg estimated the loss at $175,000.

Fire and police arson squad probed the smoldering wreckage hours later seeking other bodies. Club officials said they believed all employes had been accounted for.

Only a few members were in the club. One, Clarence Myers, was hospitalized with a back injury.

Olin Dutra, former National Open and PGA champion, now pro at the golf club, narrowly escaped. A pupil had called him just before he started up to his dressing room, directly over the locker room, which was a shambles of twisted steel. Some lockers were blown 50 feet onto the course.

A gateman at Twentieth Century-Fox moving picture studio, across the street, was knocked off his feet. A housewife two blocks away said she was jarred out of bed. The dead man was identified as John Steichen, 47, a storekeeper.

One on the Aisle—

Silent Chuckles From Chevalier

By Richard L. Coe

A PICTURE OF delectable flavor brings Maurice Chevalier back to the Little. "Silence Is Golden," they're calling it ("Le Silence Est D'Or"), but the laughter is silvery and the idea blithe and mellow.

The setting is Paris at the turn of the century, when movies were just getting under way on Montparnasse. Its tone is gentler than a similar period of Hollywood covered last season by Betty Hutton in "The Perils of Pauline," but some of the humor's from the same source.

This picture, made in 1946, has had something of a history. It won Chevalier and Writer-Producer-Director Rene Clair the grand prize at the 1947 World Film Festival in Brussels. In New York last fall, when it was called "Man About Town," it appeared with a running commentary in English, spoken by Chevalier, as an aid to the French dialogue. This new effort to popularize foreign-language films evidently didn't do so well, for it now shows up with its original title and with the familiar English subtitles in place of Chevalier's sound-track translations. I didn't see the New York version, so I can't say how successful that novel translation attempt was.

As it stands now, though, "Le Silence Est D'Or" is beguiling stuff, never naughty in what it shows you, though the soundtrack is assuredly more amusing than the subtitles suggest. Made by a master celluloid magician, it's long on telling its story in pictures and with brilliant use of the cutting scissors for the fadeouts. Style in a director is something the cursory filmgoer is likely to miss; the DeMilles, Capra, Stevens and Ernst Lubitsch (rest his soul), touches are invariably recognizable. So, too, is the Clair, when it is employed on the Paris he knows so well.

"LE SILENCE EST D'OR." RKO release produced, written and directed by Rene Clair. Photography by Armand Thirard. Music arranged by Georges Van Parys. At the Little.

THE CAST:

Emile	Maurice Chevalier
Jacques	Francois Perier
Madeleine	Marcelle Derrien
Lucette	Dany Robin
Duperrier	Robert Pisani
Curly	Raymond Cordy
The Cashier	Paul Olivier
Celestin	Roland Armontel

The Gay City of Light

In the city of light—a Paris that changes unchangingly—we find Chevalier as a director of the early flicks. He's not rich, just busy. When he's not at his sleazy studio, he's taking stock of the ladies and passing along his advice to a young studio worker who resents his own shyness and longs to have the aplomb of the middle-aged Maurice.

The story rolls along most leisurely, Clair taking his time to reveal that the little lady who impresses Chevalier as the exception to the rule that all women are worthless pets is the very one on whom his pupil practices the love lessons taught by Maurice. Chevalier even assigns his lady protege a love scene opposite his mustached pal. It takes a visiting potentate to make the middle-aged man realize that youth must have its way, that the young love is for the young lover.

In its mellow way, the story's treatment touches on the amusing things of life, Paris life in the early 1900's: the violinist who plays that happy little melody nightly at a sidewalk cafe (would that Washington had them!); the finesse a gentleman must use in becoming acquainted with a lady on a bustop; the unvarying habits of studio workers who prefer a game of cards to less sedentary activity; the amusing decor of apartments of 40 years ago. By Clair's darting camera, all these things become material for smiles and chuckles.

Chevalier, who would look like a Jonathan apple in Technicolor, seems even younger than he did on the National stage last fall, but it's with something of a shock that you realize when it's all over that he's not sung a single song. He doesn't have to. His style of serio-comedy is bewitching without his "Mimi" and fits perfectly with Director-Writer Clair's.

Added note on "Le Silence Est D'Or" (ladies' division): Costumes for this one are by Christian Dior; the period of 40 years ago and congenital fashion-blindness make further comment impossible.

KEITH'S, where "Another Part of the Forest" opens today, will be having schedule trouble Thursday . . . It will have exclusive pictures here of tonight's Graziano-Zale middleweight championship battle as soon as they arrive Thursday morning . . . But, natch, no one knows how long the pictures, or the fight, will last.

"TAWNY PIPIT" is in its last three days at the Hippodrome . . . The return engagement for this will thus add two weeks to the one week the comedy had originally . . . Three weeks isn't bad, but a film like this one should have lasted longer . . . It's one of the reasons theaterfolk go bald; in that racket you never know.

HOLDOVERS are set this week for the Playhouse and the Dupont . . . At the former, "The Search" goes into its seventh week, seven, they say, is a lucky number . . . Up at Dupont Circle, "The Mill on the Floss" and "Our Mr. Shakespeare" will remain a third week.

"POST ROAD," the Wilbur Daniel Steele-Norman Mitchell comedy, will be given tonight through the sixteenth, with no Sunday performance, by the new Key Players . . . directed by Edward O. Kelly, the Key group will play in the small courtyard theater of Productions, Inc., at the rear of 2118 Massachusetts ave . . . The group has hopes that this will be the first of many future offerings . . . Curtain time is 8:30.

THE HUBBARDS RETURN: Fredric March, with Ann Blyth, in "Another Part of the Forest," opening today at Keith's. This Lillian Hellman story takes up the Hubbard family, of her memorable "The Little Foxes," 20 years before the action of the earlier drama. The cast includes Dan Duryea, Edmond O'Brien, Florence Eldridge, John Dall, Betsy Blair and Fritz Leiber

Charges Dismissed On Liquor Ads

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board dismissed charges yesterday against the Calvert Liquor Shop, 2312 Wisconsin ave. nw.

The liquor store and Morris Stirman, jroprietor, were accused of advertising illegally that it would sell an extra bottle of a certain brand of liquor for 13 cents with the purchase of each case. This, it was alleged, was a violation of regulations forbidding the use of prizes, premiums or other special inducements for the purchase of liquor.

The advertisement appeared May 13 in The Washington Post and the Washington Daily News.

Board Chairman Alan W. Payne abstained from voting on the matter on the ground that he wished to study it further. But the other two members voted for Stirman, in contending that the advertisement did not offer a special inducement within the meaning of the law but was merely a legal reduction in prices.

Win Election In Fall Church

Va. Elects City Officials

City Council in deultory voting.

A total of but 626 voters took the trouble to cast their ballots in the issue-less election. The number is but slightly over one-tenth the votes cast in the Democratic primary in April.

Voted in, to take office in September, were: Marshall J. Beverley, 554 votes; Roy C. Bragg, 547; Albert A. Smoot, 545, and Leroy S. Bendheim, 540. They will serve for one year, after which the whole seven-man city council will be voted upon.

Of 30 write-in votes recorded, the highest number was tallied by Mrs. Nora O. Lamborne, who received five.

Yesterday's voting in Alexandria was the first under an at-large plan voted by referendum last March. Previously, council members were voted in under a ward representation system that designated them to represent specific areas of the city.

Falls Church Vote Close

Falls Church elected yesterday the first woman in 12 years to its town council.

Mrs. Merrill Lee Chanel, employe of the accounting department of Trew Motor Co. in Arlington, was elected from the town's First Ward, defeating incumbent Councilman James E. Durant. The vote was 228 for Mrs. Chanel, 223 for Durant.

In the town's Second Ward, incumbent John H. McCarthy, who was unopposed for reelection to the council, received 253 complimentary votes. In the Third Ward, Boyd A. Case, with 240 votes, was elected over Lee M. Rhoads, who had 213.

Mayor Albert Orme, unopposed for reelection, received 390 complimentary votes.

New Moves Made To Stay Execution Of Baxter Griffin

Two new legal moves to stay the execution Friday of Baxter Griffin, 42, convicted of fatally shooting Lee Hunter, 23, of 1718 9th st. nw., on February 5, 1947, have been made, according to Griffin's attorney, John W. Holtzworth.

Holtzworth said a motion for stay of execution was filed Monday in the United States Court of Appeals and another petition for executive clemency was directed to President Truman yesterday.

District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff refused last Friday to grant postponement of the electrocution date, after denying a motion based on the claim that fresh evidence had been discovered. President Truman refused to grant executive clemency on June 1.

Recount Ordered in GOP Vote for Rep. Douglas

Los Angeles, June 8. (U.P.)—The county board of supervisors ordered today a recount of Republican ballots in two precincts of the Fourteenth Congressional District where Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, a Democrat, was shown by an unofficial tabulation to be victor on both major tickets.

Benjamin Hite, chief deputy registrar, said there is no way of telling whether the recount will upset her on the Republican slate and give that party's nomination to Wallace Braden, her opponent.

Hite said the errors were "honest mistakes". He said that in one precinct 408 ballots were counted although only 235 were cast.

Montgomery Starts Beetle Fight Monday

A $15,700 Japanese beetle control program for Montgomery County will be started Monday to combat the destructive beetle horde now beginning to appear.

County Agent O. W. Anderson said yesterday most of the fund will be spent in spraying trees and shrubbery along streets and roads.

The State and Federal governments will provide the difference between the $15,700 and $10,000 appropriated by the county for the project, Anderson said.

At a meeting yesterday in Rockville, Montgomery commissioners discussed proposed legislation to empower the county to enter into a "partnership" with the town of Rockville for financing a $496,000 sewer system expansion in Rockville. Officials estimated the county's share would be $314,500 with Rockville paying $181,500. The expanded system would serve residents outside the Rockville town limits.

Montgomery Board Weighs Rezoning Plea

Rezoning to permit erection of a 800-unit, two-millon-dollar apartment project was taken under advisement yesterday by Montgomery County commissioners.

Backer of the project, which would be located on Old Bladensburg rd. between Carroll ave. extended, and Piney Branch rd. in Takoma Park, was named as the Rolling Park Land Co.

The firm asked reclassification from residential A to residential C of 53 lots. At yesterday's public hearing, two nearby property owners opposed an additional request for rezoning five lots from residential A to Commercial D.

The petition was one of eleven petitions, all taken under advisement, heard yestereday by the commissioners.

Dalstrom Seeks To Set Aside Fine, Driving Charges

The Commissioners were asked yesterday to set aside a trial board's conviction of Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department superintendent of machinery, on improper driving charges and remit his $125 fine.

Paul E. Jamieson, Dalstrom's attorney, also asked that a nine-day suspension without pay, which cost Dalstrom an additional $150, be removed.

The accusations, which resulted in Dalstrom's conviction May 19, resulted from his arrest on drunken driving charges April 11 after the Fire Department sedan he was driving hit the rear of another auto at 38th st. and Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor.

Dalstrom was acquitted of the drunken driving charge, but was fined $50 for reckless driving in Hyattsville Police Court April 19.

House Passes Extension Of Soil Conservation

The House passed today a bill to extend the soil conservation payment program to January 1, 1950. Under present law it would expire January 1, 1949. The measure now goes to the Senate.

350 Attend Hearing on Zoning Plan

Final public hearing of the proposed master zoning plan for Prince Georges County was held last night at the Hyattsville armory with more than 350 county residents present.

The plan, drawn up by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, would rezone the county in line with its present population of 150,000. The present ordinance has been in effect since 1930, when the county's population was 60,000.

County residents were asked to mail suggestions on land affected by the new zoning plan to the MNCPPC in the future. The commission has held 18 public hearing in as many communities since October, 1946.

Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning for Prince Georges County regional office, said that if the proposed ordinance becomes law public notices of zoning changes will be made on large yellow signs at the site of the change.

Present at last night's hearing were representatives of every town and city in the county and spokesmen for local civic groups. A floor discussion followed reading and explanation of the zoning plan by Tuemmler.

WCTU Elects Mrs. Coates

The District of Columbia Woman's Christian Temperance Union reelected Mrs. Caroline E. Coates as president at their 74th annual convention held in Foundry Methodist Church yesterday.

Other officers elected at the two-day conclave were Mrs. Guy F. Glossbrenner, first vice president; Mrs. Henry F. Sawtelle, treasurer; Mrs. Barbara Edie, recording secretary, and Mrs. Bertha Forshee, assistant recording secretary.

The chapter adopted a series of resolutions which included an appeal to the United Nations to open their sessions with prayer.

Other resolution protested "the Government plan to spend 900 million dollars for tobacco to be sent to countries where people need food and clothing" and urged Congress to enact into law the Capper Bill (S. 265) which prohibits liquor advertising.

Walter Burns, Washington lawyer and former National guard colonel who resigned from the service in October 1941, addressed the group at a night session

Burns charged that in some instances, Army officers and enlisted men are railroaded to mental wards if they incur the displeasure of their commanding officers.

Woman Teller Indicted For Embezzlement

Malone, N. Y., June 8. (U.P.)—Eileen Boyer, an attractive 39-year-old bank teller, was charged today by a Franklin County grand jury with embezzling $114,300 which she allegedly spent over nine years for living expenses and "a lot of expensive hats."

Health Office Probe Voted In Alexandria

Alexandria City Council last night voted to ask the Virginia State Board of Health to make a "full survey of activities and conditions of the Alexandria Health Department."

The action was taken on motion of Councilman R. Samuel Luckett. It followed publication last week of a report by the Alexandria League of Women Voters critieal of the city's health setup.

Reporting on the results of a year-long study, the league criticized general insanitary conditions in the city's low pay for public health nurses, little use of X-ray equipment at the Health Department, and lack of child and maternity clinics.

League President Mrs. Martha Pfeiffer formally presented the report to the council last night and asked it to take acton. The council's reply was the request for the State probe.

The council also:

1. Eliminated a tax on manufacturers from the city business license tax ordinance. Manufacturers had complained they were taxed twice, once for producing and again for selling. It was estimated this will deprive the city of $15,000 in revenue this year.

2. Agreed to meet in special executive session next Tuesday to discuss city finances after Councilman Luckett had ponted out that only one third of the assessed real estate taxes had been collected in the first five months of the year.

3. Deferred for further study final action on a city fire code.

County Asks Bids on La Salle Road

Bids for grading, drainage and bituminous surfacing of LaSalle rd. from Queens Chapel rd. to Chillum rd. in Prince Georges County have been asked by Prince Georges County Commissioners.

Sealed bids will be received until 11 a.m. June 29.

The commissioners also asked sealed bids to be received until the same time for materials and work on approximately 140 miles of county roads to be repaired under supervision of County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman and for construction of 1000 feet of road to connect Baltimore Pike with Ammendale rd.

The County Commissioners denied W. Landon Turner, agent, a permit to use of a tract of land on New Hampshire ave near the District Line for a heating, plumbing and roofing business, with a sheet metal works.

The commissioners approved appointment of William T. Baden of Brandywine as road foreman for the fourth maintenance district at a salary of $2300 a year.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 8.—Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale will start swinging in a ring built over the pitcher's box at Newark's Ruppert Stadium tomorrow night and the middleweight championship of the world could be either won or lost with a home run, it is suggested.

POVICH

"That's a short right field fence in the Newark Park and both Rocky and Tony are pull hitters," pointed out Francis Albertanti of the ballyhoo department.

In any event, all indications point to the ending of the fight by a knockout. Graziano and Zale have fought twice and neither battle lasted beyond the sixth round. They swapped knockdowns in the first fight when Graziano went down twice and came up once enabling Zale to walk out of the ring with his title intact. And a year later in Chicago, Graziano got off the floor to win Zale's crown.

There has been some debate as to the identity of the New Jersey referee in whose charge will rest the final verdict if the fight goes the 15-round limit, but the referee's chief job will be to hold up the winner's hand sometime inside of seven rounds. That's the best guess.

TOMORROW AT NOON, the two fighters will go through the perfunctory weighing-in exercises at Newark's City Hall and listen to a lecture on the necessity of fighting a clean fight. It will be a very friendly meeting on the scales between Graziano and Zale, and commenting on that Mr. John Carmichael of the Chicago News said the other day:

"I have been watching fighters weigh in for years, hoping to see one of 'em slug the other, but it never happened."

Whereupon, Mr. Albertanti flabbergasted Carmichael with the interjection, "Oh, yes it did, once."

Pursued for details, Albertanti related that it happened when Packy McFarland and Leach Cross weighed in at the Old Journal office years ago. "Packy slugged Cross right in the puss. It happened after an argument at the scales."

In later years, Albertanti relates, he asked Cross why he didn't slug McFarland, and Cross laughed it off.

"It wouldn't have done any good. I couldn't lay a glove on him when we got into the ring that night," he said.

A YEAR AGO WHEN Graziano went into the ring at Chicago with Zale for the second time after being knocked out in New York, there was some doubt about Rocky's zest for battle against a guy who could hit as hard as Zale. But he appeased the skeptical by getting up off the floor to win Zale's title.

Graziano, in fact, was winning their first bout when all of a sudden he forgot who he was fighting. He had recovered from a first-round knockdown to dump Zale on his pants in the second round, and from that point he was handing out an unmerciful beating to the champion when it happened.

Rocky shoved Zale away after breaking from a clinch in the sixth round, and with a show of contempt stood around with both hands down around his belt as was his habit when he was fighting preliminary kids. As we were saying, Graziano forgot to remember he was in there with a champion. The opportunity was too inviting for Zale. He doubled up Rocky with a left to the body and then sent him down with a right to the chin to save his title.

THE TOURNAMENT of Champions people who are promoting the fight and making a brave pitch to break the monopoly of Mike Jacobs, weren't moved yesterday when television sponsors offered $75,000 for the video rights to the fight. It was a $35,000 lift of the previous offer but it was scorned nevertheless. There will be no television broadcast.

"There are too many television sets in New York now," was their position. "It would cost us $150,000 in admissions. This is a test. If the fight draws the $400,000 we think it will draw, it will prove that television has been hurting our gates more than we knew."

"The promoters won't start breaking even on the fight until the gate reaches $325,000, they say. Graziano and Zale will take $180,000 out of the till in purses. But the promoters say they will be satisfied with any profit. After all, they say, they've just begun to set up shop in opposition to Madison Square Garden.

Rocky, 11-5 Tonight to Win From Zale Again

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

Newark, N. J., June 8.—Youth and a brain-scrambling right hand make Champion Rocky Graziano a strong favorite over rugged body-punching Tony Zale tomorrow night in the third chapter of their series at Ruppert Stadium.

Most folks think their middleweight title brawl can't possibly go the scheduled 15 rounds.

Pre-fight odds favoring the Rock from New York's Lower East Side dropped off a point at the end of final drills. They fell from 5 to 12 to 5 to 11 and even 1 to 2 in some circles. It is not a big betting fight.

Arrival of Zale supporters from Chicago and his hometown of Gary, Ind., and a burst of sunshine brought an upswing in ticket sales. The weatherman predicted clear skies and cooler temperatures for the fight, scheduled for 9:00 p. m. (EST).

The Tournament of Champions, Inc., a new promotional group formed to compete with Mike Jacobs, predicted a $350,000 house and an attendance of some 21,000. With Graziano reportedly guaranteed $120,000 or 40 per cent and Zale assured of $60,000 or 20 per cent, the outlook for a profit was not bright. Another $30,000 has been pledged to charity.

Circumstances make Graziano the "hungry" fighter. The Rock figures things like this. He has been through a district attorney's investigation. He has been suspended and freely criticized in all quarters. Now he has somebody in the ring on his home grounds. He hopes to make up for all this with his fists. Zale just happens to be in the way.

Zale, too, has every incentive. At 34, eight years older than Graziano, this probably will be his last chance to regain the crown he wore so proudly from 1940 until last July. If he doesn't win, he may retire. If he doesn't win, there will be no more pay days like the total of $231,860 he already has received for two brawls with the Rock.

For the records, Graziano has refused to name a knockout round. Zale has said he'll end it in three. Zale is expected to come out swinging for an early knockout and Graziano says he'll be ready to counter with more of the same.

The fighters will use eight-ounce gloves instead of the six-ounce mitts they wore in their previous scrape. There will be no judges and the final decision will rest on the referee.

New Jersey adheres to the no foul rule. A round can be lost on a foul but the fight cannot be lost that way except in the case of repeated, deliberate low blows. A fighter, however, can be disqualified for hitting a man while he is down.

Boudreau's 'Foul' Homer Beats Bosox

Boston, June 8 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians tonight blanked the Boton Red Sox, 2-0, on Manager Boudreau's disputed two-run homer into the right-field seats in the fourth inning.

The vast majority if 33,032 paid fans and the Red Sox all claimed the ball left the playing field on the grandstand side of the foul pole but Umpire Charlie Berry held fast to his decision that the hit was a home run.

A half dozen fans sitting in the vicinity of the right field foul pole emphatically told a reporter the ball hit by Boudreau was "foul" by 10 feet.

Griffs Still In 4th Place; Ed Stewart Hits Homer

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

On the verge of being evicted from their recently acquired fourth-place lodging, the Nats had to call on Sheriff Tom Ferrick to save their home for them last night.

Flashing his authority in the ninth when the Browns had occupants on first and second with none out, the burly rescuer quelled the uprising after the invaders had scored once, but in time to save a 6-5 triumph for the Nats in the series opener.

Ferrick moved in to complete what Milo Candini had started and he did it only after injecting a genuine scare into the 6275 observers. Candini, who entered the game in the fifth after Starter Sid Hudson gave way for a pinch-hitter, had pitched a single to Catcher Les Moss and walked Al Zarilla, batting for Relief Pitcher Clem Dreisewerd.

Ferrick's first offering was to the liking of Bob Dillinger, who paddled it into left for a single to score Andy Anderson, running for Moss. Tom hitched up his belt a notch and then retired Sam Dente, Gerry Priddy and Whitey Platt in order.

Tigers Crowding

That not only saved the game for Candini, who was credited with his first success of the season, but it also saved fourth place for the Nats, who were about to be crowded out by Detroit, 2-1 victors over Philadelphia.

The photo-finish activity in the ninth was in keeping with the theme of the game, which saw the Nats tie the score three times and then register twice in the seventh to take command for keeps.

Starter Bryan Stephens bore the brunt of that uprising, lasting only long enough in the inning to be tagged with the loss.

Until Washington's big seventh, Stephens was rocking along with a seven-hitter, although the two clubs were tied, 4-4. One of those hits was Ed Stewart's homer over the right-field wall in the second inning, which tied the score at 1-1.

Change of Hurlers

Candini started Stephens' downfall by legging out an infield hit after Evans had fanned. Eddie Yost shot a single into center and Al Kozar planted a single into the same region to score Candini with the tie-breaking run. Kozar's hit also expelled Stephens and brought out Southpaw Clem Dreisewerd.

Coan greeted him with a bloop single to left to score Yost with Washington's sixth, and, in the light of later events, highly necessary run. Stewart fanned and Mickey Vernon ended the four-hit two-run spree by grounding out.

After Stewart had wiped out their 1-0 lead in the second, the Brownies jumped on Hudson for two more tallies in the fourth, successive triples by Paul Lehner and Chuck Stevens and Moss' single doing the trick.

Thumb Injured

The inning was doubly costly to the Griffs in that Jake Early bunged up his thumb grabbing a foul tip off Bryan Stephens' bat and had to be replaced by Evans. X-rays will be taken today to learn the extent of the injury.

The Browns held their 3-1 leadership only until the Nats got their licks in. Vernon's double, Carden Gillenwater's triple to left center and Mark Christmas's single tied it up again.

Back charged the Missourians, however, in the sixth, to vault into a 4-3 lead, but the Nats countered in their half of the frame to tie it again when Gillenwater's single scored Vernon. That's the way it stood, until the seventh when the Nats unloaded four of their 12 hits to wrap up the give-and-take fray.

Newhouser Beats A's, 2-1, For 5th in Row

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP).—Hal Newhouser chalked up his fifth straight pitching victory and his sixth of the season tonight as the Detroit Tigers handed the Philadelphia Athletics their fourth successive setback, 2-1.

Newhouser, who has dropped four decisions, checked the Athletics with seven hits—all singles—as the Mackmen's losing streak was extended to their longest of the season.

Nats Make Trade . . .

Pieretti and His Accordion Go to Chisox for Harrist

The Nats traded a pitcher, pinch-runner and an accordion player to the Chicago White Sox yesterday for just another hurler.

The three-in-one man the Nats sent to Chicago for Right-hander Earl Harrist, is Marino (Chico) Pieretti, also a righthander. It was a player-for-player deal with no money involved.

Pieretti appeared in eight games for the Nats this year and was charged with two defeats against no victories. Harrist, used principally as a starter, has one win and four losses this season.

At 27, Harrist is a year older than Pieretti. In contrast to the banty San Franciscan, the Nat newcomer is a 6-footer who scales over 200.

Manager Joe Kuhel figures a change of scenery will help both hurlers. He's counting on Harrist to take his regular turn for the Nats, supporting Walter Masterson, Early Wynn, Mickey Haefner, Ray Scarborough and Sitd Hudson.

Pieretti left the club last August to undergo an operation to remove a broken chip in his elbow. An accomplished accordionist, Chico enjoyed his best season with the Nats in 1945 when he won 14 and lost 13. He was obtained from Portland of the Pacific Coast League that year.

In 1947, Pieretti won two and lost four while Harrist had a three and eight record with Chicago.

Yanks Nose Out Chisox, 3-2, On Brown's Single in 12th

New York, June 8 (AP).—Bobby (Golden Boy) Brown's single with one out in the 12th inning scored Yogi Berra from second with the run that gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox tonight.

A crowd of 36,888 saw Karl Drews hurl four hitless innings in relief to lift the Yanks into a tie for second place with the Philadelphia Athletics, who lost to the Detroit Tigers.

Berra, batting for Gus Niarhos, in the Yankee twelfth, singled and took second on a sacrifice by Drews, who gained credit for his second triumph when Brown followed with a line drive into center field. Berra just beat Dave Philley's desperate throw and scored over the Sox protest that Yogi failed to touch the plate as Ralph Weigel tagged him.

Perry Scores T. K. O. In 8th Over Englishman

Newark, N. J., June 8 (AP).—Aaron Perry, 151½, Washington, D. C., gained an eight-round TKO over Laurie Buxton, 144½, Watford, England, tonight in the feature 10-rounder at Meadowbrook Bowl when Zuxton's manager refuse to allow him to continue.

When Zuxton went down from a savage right under the heart for the fourth time in the eighth, Perry clouted him again and Referee Paul Cavalier gave the Englishman a 5-minute rest period. Harry Curley, Buxton's manager, then refused to let him continue and Perry was awarded a TKO in 1 minute of the frame.

Bums Barely Trip Reds, 6-5

Cincinnati, June 8 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers scored six runs in the first two innings today but needed some nifty relief pitching by Willard Ramsdell to whip the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5.

Ralph Branca started for the Dodgers but blew up in the third and yielded five runs. Ramsdell took over in the third and stopped the Reds cold the rest of the way, giving up only two singles. The victory was the knuckleball artist's first of the season.

Nats Sign Kelchner, Georgia Shortstop

Larry Kelchner, widely sought shortstop of the University of Georgia, has signed a Nat contract, Farm Director Ossie Bluege announced yesterday.

Kelchner, 22, will report to the Nats' Charlotte farm club. He bats left-handed and is considered a power hitter. He batted over .350 for Georgia.

The Bethlehem, Pa., youth was scouted by Cecil Travis, Nat scout for Southern States. The amount paid him for signing was not revealed, but Bluege said Kelchner was a "bonus" player, meaning he received at least $6000

Pounditout Doesn't—

Gift Colt Can't Look Scribes In the Eye; Runs 10th in Debut

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP):—Pounditout made his racing debut at Belmont Park in the first race today but he did nothing to make his owners—the New York World-Telegram's sports department—throw their typewriters away for a life of ease.

The bay son of Impound-Floradora Girl was a gift from Alfred Vanderbilt to the scribes before he was even foaled, but the sports department had to foot all the bills.

The colt received his name through a contest conducted by the paper for its readers. Pounditout, recently recovered from a case of bucked shins, faced 17 other maiden youngsters of the $8,000-$5,000 claiming brackets today.

Away well, the newspaper horse just couldn't keep close and wound up in a tight fit for tenth position. He was grouped in the "field" with four others.

As many of his owners as could be spared saw their "baby" sport the black and white silks, and while he succeeded only in making their faces a bit red, they got a bigger kick out of it than watching a Citation in the Belmont Stakes.

The scribes race in the name of "Rolling Press Farm."

Pounditout and the other field horses were lumped

Pat O'Sullivan Leads Golfers

Douglaston, N. Y., June 8 (AP).—Patricia O'Sullivan, 1947 Connecticut State champion, fired a three-over-par 76 today to take the first round lead in the 54-hole medal play Eastern Women's Golf Championship.

Defending Champion Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., encountered trouble with her tee shots and wound up with an 82 that put her into a tie for ninth place.

Mrs. Ruth Torgerson of Garden City, N. Y., was second low in the field of more than 80 with 39-39—78.

Third was Mrs. Gordon Park, the former Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N. J., who shot a 39-40—79. Two tied for fourth with 80. Mrs. William Kirkland, jr., of Locust Valley, N. Y., had a 41-39. Mrs. Jerome Herbert of Purchase, N. Y., had 40-40.

Kay Byrne of Rye, N. Y., former New York State champion, tied with Mrs. Harry B. McNaughton of Port Washington, N. Y., and Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore for sixth with 81.

Rutgers Routs Maryland by 8-1

New Brunswick, N. J., June 8. Rutgers baseball team set down Maryland, 8-1, here today for its twentieth win in 22 games this season. It was Maryland's tenth loss of the year.

The Terrapins' only run came in the fourth. Ed Crescenze, leading off, slammed a double down the third base line and scored an out later when Al Tuminski got a long infield single.

Sentelle Loses Again

Sentelle softball team, whose 16-game winning streak was snapped Sunday, yesterday lost its second in a row, bowing to Kavakos, 4-2, at Edgewood Playground. Abe Levitan held the losers to four hits.

Philco 4-2 Loser

River Terrace defeated Philco, 4-2, for its fourth straight victory yesterday at Rosedale. Bobby Miller pitched a three-hitter and won the verdict when Dixie Lacovey tripled with the bases loaded.

Wilson Net Victor

Woodrow Wilson defeated Roosevelt, 8-1, yesterday in an Interhigh tennis match at Pierce Mill. The win was the fourth in six league matches for Wilson.

Long Shot Pays $15.00 In Thriller

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 8.—In a thrilling four-way photo finish Blue April, owned by J. T. Harris of Fredericksburg, Va., was up in the last stride to win today's Silver Spring purse.

The five-year-old mare, who Harris says "is just beginning to learn how to run" stuck her nose on the wire in time to nip E. P. Price's Virginia Beach, the odds-on favorite in a field of six.

Also in the picture were Wayne Kendrick's Psychic Fancy, and F. E. Westenbergos' Army Belle. J. W. Elkins's Lady Lou and Mrs. H. S. Grinder's Ringside Table also were prominent in other stages of the keen battle.

With the crowd playing Virginia Beach as if the race had already been run, Blue April paid a healthy $15, in making it two straight victories. With Jockey Lamar Bauer, 22-year-old Havre de Grace, Md., youth aboard, the winner was clocked in 1:23 3/5 over a drying out track for the 6½ furlongs.

Foul Claim Disallowed

This was the third straight defeat for Virginia Beach after being installed the favorite. Jockey Ray Arduini, of Washington, put up a strong ride on the high class filly but she just couldn't resist the closing punch of Blue April.

A foul was claimed in the race by Jockey Eddie Anyon, who rode Ringside Table. He had some claim against Blue April, but the stewards lighted the official sign.

Psychic Fancy set the early pace, with Virginia Beach close up. Blue April was far back. At the far turn the field bunched behind Psychic Fancy's pace and Blue April came on the inside, being partially blocked.

Blue April Rushes In

In the stretch, Virginia Beach took a slight lead and then the battle began in earnest. In the final drive, Blue April drifted out but was up in the last jump under some powerful urging by Bauer.

Favorite players got a better break in the seventh event, the day's second best offering. Jockey Mike Sarno rode Dr. A. S. Moore's Gal Royal to victory at a $5 mutuel. A. L. Leith, jr.'s, New Start was second, with C. H. Lamparter's Electron third in the field of eight. The winner was clocked n 1:51 3-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Brewers, All-Stars Play Monk Fraser Benefit Today

The Heurich Brewers, defending District sandlot champions, meet the Unlimited All-Stars today at 5:30 p.m. on the West Ellipse in a benefit game for the family of the late Ralph (Monk) Fraser. One dollar "donation" tickets will be sold all day at the Atlas and Lowe-Campbell sporting goods stores. No tickets will be sold at the game.

Vic Gauzza, "czar" of sandlot baseball in Washington and close friend of the late New York Giants outfielder, will toss out the first ball. Harry Wolfe, who pitched for Danville, Va., last year, will start for Heurich. Ben Harrell of the D. C. Fire Department will probably be on the hill for the All-Star team.

Max Baer Returns As Wrestling Ref

Local fans will have an opportunity of seeing Max Baer in the ring tonight at Turner's Arena, when "Madcap" Maxie referees a championship wrestling match between Frank Sexton and Gino Garibaldi.

This will mark Baer's first local appearance since the late thirties when the former heavyweight boxing champion did a song-and-dance routine on the stage of the Capitol Theater.

Other bouts on tonight's card include a two-man team match with Marvin Mercer and George Flynn opposing Farro Rinaldo and Sandor Kovacs; and Jesse James, a local matman, faces Francois Miquette. This latter bout will open the show at 8:45 p. m.

Riegel Has 69 In Open Drills

Los Angeles, June 8 (AP).—National Amateur Champion Skee Riegel today toured the Riviera Country Club course in 69, two under par, as practice firing continued for the National Open golf tournament.

Sam Snead, who had a practice 67 yesterday, was even with par 71. He was matched by Ellsworth Vines, Johnny Bulla, and Vic Ghezzi.

Gene Sarazen, two-time winner of the tournament, made a surprise appearance. He had previously announced he would have to pass up the event because of illness of his daughter in the East. Sarazen played in a foursome with Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret and Crooner Bing Crosby.

Army-Navy Women Win 2d Place in Team Matches

Last-Place Woodmont Ties Manor

Army-Navy defeated Congressional, 5½ to 3½, yesterday at Kenwood Golf and Country Club to grab second place honors in the Women's District Golf Association first team tournament.

Kenwood, which drew a bye, clinched the trophy last week with a seven-week total of 45½ points. Army-Navy wound up with 36½. Indian Springs, which did not field a first team this year, won the trophy in 1947.

In other matches yesterday, third-place Chevy Chase defeated Washington, 6½ to 2½, and last-place Woodmont surprised by holding Manor to a 4½ to 4½ tie. Trailing Kenwood and Army-Navy in the final standings were: Chevy Chase, 29½; Manor, 27; Congressional, 23; Washington, 15; and Woodmont, 12½.

Yesterday's two outstanding games were turned in by Mrs. Walter R. Stokes of Manor and Mrs. Hugh Nicholson of Chevy Chase. Mrs. Stokes was five over par with 39-41—80. Mrs. Nicholson had 41-41—82.

CHEVY CHASE, 6½; WASHINGTON, 2½. Mrs. Hugh Nicholason and Mrs. Alandra Platt (CC), 2 points against Mrs. George Bailey and Mrs. Frank Mirth, 1; Mrs. Y. E. Booker and Mrs. Arnold Wilcox (CC), 2 points against Mrs. H. H. Goodman and Mrs. L. C. Ingersoad, 1; Mrs. Woodley Thomas and Mrs. J. B. Patterson (CC), 2½ points against Mrs. L. W. Dennis and Mrs. W. I. Horner, ½.

ARMY-NAVY, 5½; CONGRESSIONAL, 3½. Mrs. E. P. Moore (A-N), 0 against Mrs. D. H. Henderson and Mrs. J. W. Godfrey, 3 points; Mrs. F. F. Little and Mrs. W. F. Parsons (A-N), 2½ points against Mrs. George Jani and Mrs. Harland Chapman, ½; Mrs. M. J. Torlinski and Mrs. John Conklin (A-N), 3 points against Mrs. Elliott Handson and Mrs. E. B. Brumfiel, 0.

WOODMONT, 4½; MANOR, 4½. Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith and Mrs. Henry Goodman (W), 0 points against Mrs. W. R. Stokes and Mrs. R. D. Watson, 3; Mrs. Theodore Feyser and Mrs. Gilbert Hahn (W), 2 points against Mrs. Gale Pugh and Mrs. George Martin, 1; Miss Ruth Simon and Mrs. Milton Harris (W), 1½ points against Mrs. J. B. Daily and Mrs. H. L. Lacey, ½.

Manor Women Win Second Team Title

Manor scored a 9-0 victory over Kenwood yesterday at Chevy Chase Golf and Country Club to win the Women's District Golf Association's second team trophy.

Needing only 3½ points to clinch the title over second place Prince Georges, the Manor team came through convincingly to run its final point total to 45.

Other matches saw Prince Georges defeat Congressional, 7-2, and Belle Haven defeat Washington, 5½-3½. Behind Manor in the final standings were: Prince Georges, 37; Washington, 27½; Belle Haven, 23; Chevy Chase and Congressional, 19½ each; and Kenwood, 17½. The tourney lasted seven weeks.

MANOR, 9; KENWOOD, 0. Mrs. H. Davies and Mrs. Roy Brooks (M), 3 points against Mrs. J. J. Bullock and Mrs. R. G. Gable (K); Mrs. Ralph Zuber and Mrs. Frank Anderson (M), 3 points against Mrs. R. Keebler and Mrs. Philip Yeager; Mrs. Al Leda and Mrs. W. W. Welch (M), 3 points against Mrs. C. C. Redding and Mrs. E. C. Alwood.

PRINCE GEORGES, 7; CONGRESSIONAL, 2. Mrs. Charles Frowsefelers and Mrs. Ina Kintz (PG), 3 points against Mrs. J. B. Bagnall and Mrs. William Hill, jr.; Mrs. Fred Chalmson and Mrs. James Kinder (PG), 1½ against Mrs. Charles B. Monroe and Mrs. John S. Myers, 1½; Mrs. F. Cramen and Mrs. Ramey (PG), 2½, against Mrs. Daniel Moorman and Mrs. T. S. Hinkel, ½.

BELLE HAVEN, 5½; WASHINGTON, 3½. Mrs. Jack Howard and Mrs. Michael Meehan (BH), 2 points against Mrs. A. G. Simmonds and Mrs. H. K. Hopkins, 1; Mrs. Al Brooks and Mrs. George Cosaler (BH), 2½ points against Mrs. E. X. Murphy and Mrs. H. Willey, ½; Mrs. Al Brand and Mrs. Walter Densmore (BH), 1 point against Mrs. Roy Bristor and Mrs. R. L. Hutchinson, 2.

Commissioners Approve Hoyer As Laurel Race Starter

Approval of Dave Hoyer of Beaver Dam, Wisc., as starter for the 20-night harness racing meet at Laurel Raceway, beginning June 21, was announced yesterday by J. William Graham, secretary of the Maryland Racing Commission.

Other officials for the meeting and officers of the new $600,000 pari-mutuel race course also were approved by the State racing body.

Permenant track officers are: President and general manager, Richard H. Hutchison jr.; vice-president, Richard H. Hutchison sr.; secretary-treasurer, Tom Claggett jr.; director, Lawrence B. Sheppard and racing secretary, Edwin T. Keller.

Officials for the meeting include: Presiding steward, Wayne Groves, of Cleveland, Ohio; paddock judge, F. M. Ketcham of Alexandria, Minn.; associate judge, George Cook, Silver Spring, Md.; announcer, Vernet S. Keller, Johnson, Vt.; clerk of the course, Glenn W. Rublee, Enosburg, Vt.; and pari-mutuel manager, Joseph J. Blemline, Baltimore.

Highs Try Again Today

If it doesn't rain, if they don't play to a tie and if Coolidge beats Anacostia, the interhigh baseball championship will be decided today at 3:15 p. m. at Griffith Stadium.

The two teams have been thwarted twice in their efforts to reach a decision, a 2-2 tie having resulted from their game last Friday, and rain having postponed their scheduled meeting of last Monday.

Coolidge, unbeaten in the double elimination tourney, can walk off with its third straight baseball title by simply winning today. However, Anacostia has been licked once, and must win today to preserve its title hopes. If today's game ends in Anacostia's favor, the championship game will take place at the Nats' ballyard Friday.

Right-hander George Sengastack, conqueror of Tech and Eastern in the playoffs, will be on the mound for Anacostia. He'll probably be opposed by Lefty Ben DuVall.

Marshman Enters Midget Car Race

George Marshman, Philadelphia pilot, and Tony Bonadies, from the Bronx, are the sixth and seventh Offenhauser drivers to enter Friday night's midget automobile racing competition at the West Lanham Speedway.

Dee Toran, Mike Joseph, George Fonder, Walt Fair and Charlie Miller already had enrolled, while an eight Offy pilot to be announced will complete the field.

Colonials Off For Tourney

In winning 13 of their 17 regular season games, the 1948 Colonials, have averaged almost 11 hits and nine runs a game.

Also competing in the tourney starting tomorrow are North Carolina and Georgia Tech. It is a double elimination affair, the winners and losers of the first round meeting Friday, with the finals Saturday.

Nat Farmhand Hurls No-Hitter

Bird, toiling for Bridgeport which gained a 1-0 decision, is there on 24-hour option from Chattanooga.

Son of Mrs. Kathleen Bird, 4103 W st. nw., the 23-year-old hurler stands 6-feet-3 and weighs 185. He worked with the Nats in spring training after receiving his Navy discharge and was sent to Chattanooga for further seasoning.

Bird's victory was scored in the 7-inning first game of a double-header. The young righthander walked five and struck out two.

Johnny Adams Signs

Announcement of the signing of Tackle Johnny (Tree) Adams for the 1948 season was made yesterday by the Washington Redskins.

Adams, 255-pound former Notre Dame lineman, will be playing his third season for the local pros. He is one of a half dozen 'Skins making their home in Washington.

Federal Pay Raise Dispute May Bring Congress Back Again

These are among the major developments yesterday on Capitol Hill of concern to Federal workers:

A dispute between the Senate and the House on a bill to raise Federal salaries may compel the Congress to meet again after the GOP convention.

Senator Taft said the pay bill was one of the reasons why Congress may not be able to complete its work a week from Saturday, the date that had been fixed for adjournment.

The GOP Senate leader, after a two-hour luncheon session of the Senate policymakers, refused to speculate on how much of an increase Federal workers might be voted. However, he did say that pay schedules had been debated.

From other sources it was learned that a compromise bill along the lines reported here yesterday was favorably received by the policy group. That bill would provide:

A flat $400 pay raise to each of the 475,000 postal employes; an average increase of $360 to each of the 825,000 Federal and District workers whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act; the present $10,000 ceiling on Classification Act salaries would be lifted to $11,260, and a few employes could be raised to $13,560 on the prior approval of the Civil Service Commission, and the salaries of Cabinet members and other officials would be increased an average of about $5000 each.

The minimum increase for this big bloc of workers would be $260. Each of the 825,000 employes would get at least that much. But the compromise bill calls for revision of the Classification Act which would add an average of $100 to the salary of each employe under it. Some employes would not get any part of the average; others would get less than $100, and still others would get more than the average figure.

On the House side, there was a report that its Rules Committee will meet this week with the intention of reporting out a bill to raise salaries of postal employes only. Any such move will be fought by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and other committee members who will insist on similar treatment for all Federal workers.

Meantime, the Government Employes Council which claims to represent 500,000 Federal workers who are AFL members, reaffirmed its demand for an $800 increase for all employes. It said the blame for failure to enact pay legislation before Congress adjourns will rest squarely on the shoulders of the GOP leaders.

WAR ASSETS would be abolished and some of its activities and personnel would be transferred to Air Forces, RFC, and the Bureau of Federal Supply on August 31 under a bill reported to the House yesterday by its Appropriations Committee.

WAA employees who would be transferred would not acquire permanent job rights in those agencies. Their rights would not be greater or less by the transfer.

The proposed transfer, if carried out, would compel WAA to make a major lay-off both here and in the field. It has 2,000 employes here and about 20,000 in the field. Officials estimated yesterday that the staff would have to be cut in half by October 1.

MARITIME also would have to shake down its personnel, under its budget. The agency is in the process of hiring about 500 temporary employes to audit back accounts. This project, which was approved only a few weeks ago by Congress, would have to be abandoned under the committee bill. In addition, from 50 to 75 older employes would have to be fired.

VA: Its Department of Hospital and Medicine would have funds to hire upwards of 15,000 additional employes under the annual budget for the Veterans Administration.

The bill would make no immediate change in other VA activities. However, the committee gave the agency funds to continue its 13 branch offices through next March 31. VA Administrator Carl Gray will report to the committee by next December 1 on whether he believes those offices should be continued, merged, or abolished.

OHE: The Office of the Housing Expeditor would get funds to hire

Board Is Warned On Montgomery School Fund Cut

Curtailed Program And Teacher Unrest Would Be Result, County Heads Told

Dissatisfied teachers and a curtailed educational program will result if a recommended cut in Montgomery County school budget is approved, the Montgomery County Board of Education yesterday told County commissioners.

The warning was contained in a sharply worded letter to the commissioners approved by the school board at its meeting in Rockville.

The letter was drawn up after a delegation of 25 teachers representing the Montgomery County Education Association appeared to protest a cut of $544,501 recommended by County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr in the school's budget request of $3,429,969. A major portion of the cut is in money earmarked for pay raises for teachers.

If the cut is allowed, "the Board of Education cannot meet its obligation to place the teachers on the salary schedule which was publicly approved and adopted last year," the letter said.

And the board, the letter asserted, will be unable to hire the 50 additional teachers asked for in the budget to take care of an anticipated enrollment of 2300 students in September. This "will mean greatly enlarged classes with an accompanying decrease in individual attention," the letter said.

School board members pointed out limitations of last year's budget prevented the board from placing 70 per cent of teachers on the salary schedule. Those who did not reach the proper level, the letter said, were teachers who qualified for higher salaries by virtue of experience, service and training. Teachers in low salary brackets were granted placement.

The board said, if the cut goes through, it will be forced to abandon kindergartens, special teachers in music, art and physical education in the elementary grades, driver training and a program of placing nonteaching principals in charge of schools. Services of guidance and college counselors and vice principals in high schools will be reduced, the board said.

In other actions, the board:

Set the opening date of school for September 13 and the closing date June 17.

Decided that tuition rates for nonresident students for next year will be set at the rate that it costs to educate a pupil this year.

Granted school officers and supervisors the same sick leave now given teachers, 10 days a year cumulative to 30 and after 10 years of service an additional 10 days cumulative to 30.

Adopted a policy for community use of school buildings to "permit the fullest possible use" providing programs "do not result in damage to school property, interference with the school program, profit to an individual, disturbance to the citizens living near the school, or raise controversial issues in the community."

Asked Assistant Superintendent Richard E. Carpenter to look into the possibility of setting up portables to relieve overcrowding at the Lynnbrook, Pleasant View and Woodland schools.

Approved opening of bids Thursday for additions to the Sherwood and Pleasant View schools.

Received a report from a committee that has been studying the Montgomery County Junior College recommending that the college become a permanent part of the county's education program.

License Lack Costs Driver 5 Days in Jail

David V. Yarborough, 40, of 2901 K st. se., was sentenced to serve five days in jail yesterday upon conviction of the fourth charge of driving without a license brought against him in the last year, besides suffering forfeiture of collateral of $100 for failure to appear for trial on the charge in the Municipal Court.

Park Policeman N. H. Heller testified before Judge Nadine L. Gallagher that about 2:30 o'clock on the morning of May 30 he saw a truck near Yarborough's restaurant at Alabama and Pennsylvania aves se. and upon recognizing the driver as a man picked up before for not having a driver's license trailed the vehicle and forced it to stop.

Heller said he found Yarborough sitting on the right side of the driver's seat with his arms folded and that the man alleged the driver had gone back to the restaurant to turn off the bug exterminator.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King recalled that driving without a license cost Yarborough $50 in October, 1947; $100 last January, and $300 last February, and suggested a jail sentence. Judge Gallagher considered imposing a sentence of 20 days in jail, but made the punishment only five days after Defense Counsel Clifford Allder argued that the shorter confinement would be adequate punishment.

Pepco Hints New Hike at Rate Hearing

May Ask More Even if Increase Sought Is Given, Dunn Tells PUC

Potomac Electric Power Company may be forced to seek an additional rate increase beyond the boost now being asked, a company official admitted at a Public Utilities Commission hearing yesterday.

The admission came from Pepco Vice President and Treasurer R. Roy Dunn during the second day of hearings on the company's request for a rate increase that would add 10 cents a week to the average home electric bill.

Dunn said in his opinion the requested increase "is not sufficient to produce . . . sufficient earning power" to attract investors needed to help finance Pepco's 86-million-dollar expansion program.

PUC Member James Lauderdale, during cross-examination, asked Dunn if that meant the company "intends to come back (for another rate boost) in the near future?"

Dunn replied that the company would have to see what effect the present increase, if granted, would have on its finances. Later he added that it was "possible" that "more money" might be needed.

PUC ordered a recess until July 6 at the end of yesterday's session. Motion for the recess was made by PUC Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison to give representatives of the Bureau of Federal Supply, the Building Owners and Managers Association, and other interested parties time to study Pepco testimony.

Both Lauderdale and PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan questioned the value of some of Dunn's comparisons of Pepco finances with those of other public utility companies. Flanagan called figures based on an average of 217 companies "rather far-fetched" because of the wide variety of companies included.

He described these averages as an "conglomerate assortment of figures" and said they would not be "much of a guide" in the case except "as information."

Dunn's contention that the rate increase was needed to improve the company's earning power and thus attract investors was echoed by Edward Hopkinson, jr., of Philadelphia, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

He said the "situation as to Pepco is much more serious than that of the industry as a whole."

The Washington Post

Ward H. White, 34, whose thoughts even as flames seared his body were for the safety of his 7-year-old son, died at 4 a. m. yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital.

White, part owner of the Monarch Motors Garage, 6223 Blair rd. nw., was cleaning a car with gasoline in the garage at about 6 p. m. Monday.

Suddenly—nobody knows yet exactly what happened—the garageman was enveloped in flames. He shrieked in horror and agony.

White's son, Robert, was on the other side of the car. He started to run to his father's side.

"Go away! Go away!" screamed the father in warning. "Get out of here!"

The youngster, obeying, ran from the garage screaming. A neighbor, Carl Appelman, of 111 Rittenhouse st. nw., ran to the garage and while White lay on the floor of the garage extinguished the flames with rags.

White was taken to Walter Reed in a fire rescue squad ambulance. All of White's clothing, except his shoes and belt, had been burned from his body.

Despite his serious burns, he was able to talk to police at the hospital. He said he didn't remember whether he had been smoking. However, his son told police he had stepped on a cigarette thrown away by his father shortly before the flames erupted.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death yesterday but the fire marshal's office and the District safety inspector's office were continuing investigations to determine the cause of the tragedy.

The body of White, who lived at 1315 Peabody st. nw., will be returned to his home town of Bluefield, W. Va., for burial.

In addition to his son, Robert, White is survived by his divorced wife, Mrs. Vivian White; another son, John A. White; his father, Robert A. White, of Bluefield, and three sisters, Mrs. Scott Johnson and Mrs. Blanche Farley of Bluefield and Mrs. Kay Lefler of Covington, Va.

In a similar accident yesterday, Le Moyne Rennard, 29, of 3034 Knox st. se., was burned when an automobile gas tank he was repairing with a soldering iron in the rear of his home exploded at about 11:15 a. m.

Rennard suffered flash burns to the neck and upper part of the chest. His condition at Casualty Hospital was reported good.

Rail Crossing Warning Plea Is Renewed

A near-fatal train-auto crash in Bethesda on Monday led Montgomery County Commissioner Wesley E. Sauter yesterday to renew his plea for "adequate" warning devices at grade crossings.

Sauter, the commissioner for the Bethesda District, said he had sought installation of flashing or ringing signals at the grade crossing 16 months ago. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, he said, promised to install the devices but so far has failed to do so.

The crossing is three blocks north of East-West hwy., near Rock Creek. On Monday, a backing B. & O. freight train rammed an automobile driven by Fred L. Smith of Walkerville Md. Smith escaped serious injury but two occupants, Ralph B. Smith, 58, father of the driver, received fractured ribs and Clarence Huffer, 65, of Frederick, Md., a concussion.

Backs Segregation

Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution urging continuance of segregation at District Recreation areas. Meeting at 1536 16th st. nw., the group also recorded approval of proposed regulation of television transmitter installations and licensing of practical nurses.

Navy's Plea For Barracks Is Rejected

Interior Demands Proof of Defense Program Need or Possession October 1

The Department of Interior has politely but firmly rejected the Navy's plea to retain use of two temporary barracks on the polo field of West Potomac Park, it was learned yesterday.

The department, whose National Park Service has been trying for a year to reclaim the site, left the Navy only one "out" to its decision: Proof by the Navy that it needs the barracks there as "imperative in carrying out the national defense program."

Unless the Navy can make that position "clear" to the Interior Department, said Acting Secretary William E. Warne, the barracks must be vacated in time to start reclamation work there on October 1.

Warne notified Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan by letter last Friday, rejecting a Navy request to retain use of the barracks "at least till June 30, 1949."

Warne said the Park Service wants to use the land to relocate the rose gardens that had to be dug up to make way for appoaches to the new 13th st. Potomac bridge. The position, he indicated, is not purely aesthetic.

The Engineers Corps, said Warne, is prepared to raise the land level with material dredged from the Georgetown Channel. Granting the Navy its requested extension, said Warne, might cost the Park Service "considerable hardship" and "possible loss of allotment of funds."

More than 1,000 enlisted men and about 850 Waves quartered in the two barracks between the Tidal Basin and the Potomac River must be found new quarters if the barracks are razed, the Navy has said.

Lowry N. Coe New President Of Bar Group

Lowry N. Coe, 51, an attorney here for the past 25 years, yesterday was elected president of the District Bar Association for the 1948-49 term.

Coe

Coe, who succeeds George E. McNeil in the office, received 542 votes. The two other candidates, James R. Kirkland had 492 and Phillip W. Austin, 55 votes.

Results of the election, held from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. at District Court, were announced last night at the annual meeting of the Bar Association at the Mayflower Hotel. Other officers chosen were:

Preston C. King, jr., first vice president over George D. Horning, jr., the other candidate; Cyril S. Lawrence, second vice president, against Richard L. Tedrow and Irene Kennedy.

Kenneth N. Parkinson was re-elected treasurer. The other candidate, was James M. Ernest. Elected treasurer was W. Cameron Burton, against Raymond Sparks and Horace J. Donnelly, jr.

Three directors were chosen. They are F. Joseph Donohue, Albert F. Adams, and Alfred Goldstein. Delegates elected were Francis W. Hill, jr., John J. Carmody, and Wilbur L. Gray.

Incoming President Coe, a native of West Arlington, Md., has lived in the District since 1900. He was graduated from National University School of Law in 1922 and entered private practice. He is presently associated with Lawrence Cake and Matthias Mahorner, jr., with offices in the National Press Building.

Coe is a member of the American Legion, Washington Board of Trade, Masons, Lions Club and other groups. He makes his home with his wife at 4516 Verplanck pl. nw. They have three children.

In other action at last night's meeting, the association postponed consideration of the report of its Civil Rights Committee until its next meeting; adopted a resolution calling for enlargment of its election board from five to seven members to speed elections; admitted Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) to honorary membership and presented long-time Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas L. (Tommy) Doyle with a $100 savings bond in appreciation of his service.

Effective Date Set Tentatively July 1; Must Conform With Other Federal Hikes

The House yesterday tentatively approved a $500 pay boost for Washington police and firemen to take effect July 1.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said both the amount of the increase and the effective date for it would be made to conform with any general Federal and District pay boost before final enactment.

The pay bill applies to White House and Park Police, along with Metropolitan Police and District firemen.

It was one of 15 District measures approved in a bill-a-minute special House District day.

Earlier, the House approved and returned to the Senate for review of new amandments a bill hiking workmen's compensation payments in the District under the Longshoremen and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Board of Trade officials estimated the bill would increase the present annual payments by District employers by about 35 per cent over the present total of $3,500,000 a year. Benefits would be boosted from the present minimum of $8 and maximum of $25 to $12 and $35, and the duration of payments increased. The over-all maximum payment for injuries goes up from $7500 to a top of $11,000 per individual.

With the pay bill, the House also voted to increase the pension scale for widows and children of District firemen and policemen, and also to boost the rate of contribution to the fund from 3½ to 5 per cent. The new pension rates are $100 a month for a widow and $25 a month for a child. The widow of a man killed in line of duty would get $125 a month. Children's payments would run to age 18. Present law gives widows $60 a month and children $10 a month to age 16.

Both bills went to the Senate.

Other bills cleared by the House and sent to the Senate would:

1. Permit direct admission of chronic mental patients to St. Elizabeths Hospital, by-passing the present stop they have to make at Gallinger.

2. Make United States citizenship a basic requirement for a District license to practice under the healing arts law.

3. Let the District fix monthly fees for amusement places to cover the cost of police and fire protection necessary for them.

Would Boost Barbers' Fee

3. Expand the list of authorized investments for District insurance companies to let them enter the housing field. The Senate has approved the plan, but House amendments sent the bill back to the Senate for review.

4. Boost barbers' license and examination fees to a new scale ranging from $5 to $20.

5. Let the District issue a chiropractor's license to Samuel O. Burdette of 2335 Green st. se., waiving the usual examination.

6. Revise the present law on testimony in suits involving legally incapable persons. The Senate has cleared the bill, House amendments returned the bill to the Senate.

Eastern Ave. Bill Changed

7. Let the right of legal action for and against an individual survive his death. The bill cleared the Senate last year, but House changes returned the bill to the Senate.

8. Boost to $34,000 the Senate-approved figure of $29,000 for paying Eastern ave. property owners for the costs of improvements they have to make as a result of the Eastern ave. extension. The bill goes back to the Senate.

9. Authorize the District to waive examinations for certain electricians so that they can continue "substantially" the same line of work they were doing before the examinations were established.

House approval sent three bills to the White House. They would:

1. Remove the present $10,000 ceiling on damages for death by wrongful act.

2. Make a $1 fee cover the cost of recording and releasing auto liens, in place of present separate 50-cent charges for each operation.

3. Give Government hospitals the right private hospitals have to get liens against compensation payments made to accident victims to insure settlement of hospital bills.

In another action, Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) obtained House approval for sending the 99-million-dollar District budget bill to conference. The bill was cut by the Senate about 1.6 million dollars below the House total. Horan heads the House conferees; Senator Dworshak (R., Idaho) heads the Senate conferees.

Would Restore Key Mansion

Meanwhile, the House Rules Committee sent to the floor a bill authrizing $65,000 for restoring the old Francis Scott Key Mansion as a memorial to be located near M st. just east of Key Bridge. The building was removed from the site it occupied west of Key Bridge on M st. to make way for the express highway project.

Earlier, the House during a call of the unanimous consent calendar side-tracked bills to:

1. Authorize the Government to give two Negro residences, the Lucy Diggs Slowe and George Washington Carver Halls, to Howard University for use as dormitories.

2. Authorize a new office building for the Federal Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance, now located in Baltimore, to be built in or near the District.

Liquor-Price Bill Delayed

3. Let the Government get additional land for the Mount Vernon Memorial Parkway near Alexandria in exchange for specified dredging rights for the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co.

House action on the proposed District liquor price fixing bill was deferred yesterday until next Monday. The bill was withdrawn temporarily because the printed House report on it had not been delivered.

Gambling Probers Mark Time

Next Step Awaited While Fay Confers With His Aides; Woman Arrested

Next step in Washington's gambling probe was entirely a matter of speculation yesterday.

Last witness called in the inquiry was Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett, who testified Friday following the appearance of a long line of precinct commanders. The investigation is still believed to be in its preparatory stage, and as yet no top gamblers are known to have appeared.

For the past two days, United States Attorney George Morris Fay, who launched the probe of which he calls the "100-million-dollar-a-year gaming racket" here, has been holding conferences in his office with his chief assistants, John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray.

While it was considered likely that Fay might want to question some of the 49 people arrested in the large scale raid Saturday on a gambling casino near Laurel, Md., both the office of Maryland's Governor Lane and States Attorney Daniel Murray jr., of Howard County, Md., said they as yet have received no requests along this line.

Operating Lottery Charged to Woman

Mrs. Elizabeth Simmons, 38, of 742 50th st. ne., yesterday morning was arrested by vice squad detectives on a charge of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Police said an undercover man made a numbers play with her at that address, and that when arrested she had in her possession marked money and numbers slips. U. S. Commisioner Needham C. Turnage released her in $1,500 bond for a hearing June 15.

Drivers Face Loss Of Permit With Bail

Motorists who forfeit collateral in serious traffic violation cases will be told by police precinct clerks that they are liable also to revocation or suspension of driving permits.

This was revealed yesterday after Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett told the Commissioners he would order the new procedure to stop confusion in cases where drivers forfeit collateral.

Some drivers, who believe they've "satisfied the law" through collateral forfeit or fine payment, have complained when they later receive revocation or suspension of their permit, he explained.

They fail to realize that in serious traffic violation cases they may be subject to permit revocation or suspension by the Board of Revocation, Suspension, and Restoration of Operator's Permits as well as a fine, he said.

Such cases include: driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs; reckless driving; speeding; leaving after colliding; acts contributing to accidents or likely to cause accidents; where physical inability to drive is demonstrated; and where the violator has a long traffic violation record.

Stove Blast Burns 2

Two men suffered first and second degree burns of face and hands yesterday afternoon when a gas range they were repairing in a campus building at the University of Maryland exploded. They were Richard S. Reed, 41, of 3709 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md., treated at Casualty Hospital, and William Allen, 36, of 4314 41st st., Bretwood, admitted to Casualty

Dairy Store Head Fined

C. Y. Stephens, proprietor of High's Dairy Products Co., 1326 Half st. se., was fined $950 yesterday by Judge George D. Neilson in the Municipal Court on 16 counts of violating the District women's hours law by working 20 women employes in some of his company's 50 branches more than 8 hours a day, more than 48 hours a week and more than six days a week.

Judge Neilson said that he was imposing the heavy fine in consideration of the fact that the defendant was fined $500 in 1944 and $50 in 1945 on similar charges

Mrs. Payne, Retired Vocal Teacher, Dies

Mrs. Adela Kleinschmidt Payne, 78, lifelong Washingtonian and retired head of the singing department at Mount Vernon Seminary, died Monday at her home, 2227 20th st. nw., after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Elizabeth Somers Chapel, Naval Communications Annex, 3801 Nebraska ave. nw. Interment will be private.

Mrs. Payne, a patron of musical art, headed Mount Vernon Seminary's singing department for 35 years, retiring in 1938. She had studied singing under Frank King Clarke in Paris.

She was a charter member of the National Symphony Orchestra Association. During and after World War II, she served as treasurer of "Music for the Services," a group which organized and gave free musical lessons for servicemen and also shipped instruments to members of the armed forces throughout the world.

Mrs. Payne was the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Carl H. A. Kleinschmidt. Dr. Kleinschmidt was a Confederate physician and surgeon, and after the Civil War practiced in Georgetown.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lake, and two grandsons, Gordon and Merritt Chance, all of Washington.

Louis F. Nordine

Louis F. Nordine, 63, District resident for many years, died Monday in Front Royal Hospital, Front Royal, Va., a few hours after he suffered a stroke.

Mr. Nordine came to Washington from Moline, Ill., in 1935. He worked as manager of the Trane Air-Conditioning Co. here until 1945, when he moved to Front Royal.

An active Mason and Rotarian, and a member of the American Heating and Ventilating Society, Mr. Nordine was in business with his son in Front Royal when he died.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Mildred Anderson Nordine, he leaves a daughter Florence Nordine of Cleveland, a son, John, of Front Royal, and a grandson. Two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Peterson and Miss Edith Nordine of Steif River Falls, Minn., a brother, Paul Nordine of Minneapolis, also survive.

Services will be held today in Front Royal with burial in Moline, Ill., on Friday.

'Modern Missionaries,' These June Graduates . . .

The Washington Post

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER—Nancy M. Patterson, 17, of 2109 F st. nw., who will graduate from Western High School June 23, receives the Stephen E. Kramer Memorial Scholarship from Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools. The $50 award is for four years at Wilson Teachers College

Eric Johnston Urges U.S. Youth To Crusade for Democracy

Eric Johnston yesterday told the preparatory school graduating class of Mount Vernon Seminary—including his own daughter, Elizabeth, 17—that American youth must serve as "crusaders for democracy and for our American capitalism."

Many members of his own generation cannot, or will not, accept the fact that world leadership has been thrust upon this country, the president of the Motion Picture Association declared. Youth, therefore, is faced with the challenge, he said.

"We need modern missionaries to tell the world, all the world, the message of the freedom of man—and that is your job and your assignment," said Johnston at exercises held in the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Rep. Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, is scheduled to address the Junior College graduating class of Mount Vernon Seminary at 11 a. m. today. His daughter, Joy, is a member of the class. Exercises will be in the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Members of the graduating class of the National Cathedral for Girls were warned at exercises yesterday that they must be prepared to face the fact that "it's still a man's world."

Nelson T. Johnston, secretary-general of the Far-Eastern Commission, advised the 59 girl graduates that they will have to compete on an equal basis with men, professionally, but they will, at the same time, be expected to be "womanly" at home. Diplomas were presented by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, at exercises in the Great Choir of the Washington Cathedral.

Seven awards for excellence in studies in the School of Engineering and Architecture of Catholic University were presented at class day exercises yesterday afternoon in McMahon Hall auditorium on the campus. Winners were:

Robert B. Balter, 4606 30th st., Mount Ranier, Md.; Bruce G. Philipson, 3900 Cathedral ave. nw.; Henry M. Peden, 43 Bryant st. nw.; William D. Hart, 1029 Perry st. ne.; Emil F. Jettmar, 1438 Kennedy st. nw.; John H. Davis, Lorton, Va., and Leonard A. Cullo, White Plains, N. Y.

The four-year Kramer award scholarship to Wilson Teachers College was presented yesterday by Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District School Superintendent, to Miss Nancy Marie Patterson of 2109 F st. nw., 17-year-old graduate of Western High School.

Witnessing the presentation in Dr. Corning's office at the Franklin Administration Building, was Mrs. Stephen Elliott Kramer, widow of the late Washington educator, in whose memory the scholarship is presented.

Mrs. A. T. Hert, Former GOP Leader, Dies

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, 78, former vice chairman of the Republican Committee and noted Washington hostess of a decade ago, died yesterday of a heart ailment at Hurstbourne, her 1300-acre estate near Louisville, Ky.

A native of Bedford, Ind., Mrs. Hert, nee Sally Aley, shared an acute interest in politics with her husband, who managed the Western campaign of Charles Evans Hughes in the presidential battle of 1916. Mr. Hert, a businessman and GOP national committeeman, died in 1921.

Three years later, Mrs. Hert was selected as committeewoman from Kentucky and set about with vigor to organize women for subsequent congressional and presidential campaigns. For 12 years she carried on her work successfully, relinquishing her post in 1935.

Washington's social life received a blow in 1937 when Mrs. Hert, always a gracious and lavish hostess, announced she was quitting her residence at 1785 Massachusetts ave. nw., and going to Florida to live.

Mrs. Gatley Dies Following Heart Attack

Mrs. Albert S. Gatley, churchwoman and wife of a bank vice president, died of a heart attack early yesterday in Bethesda Suburban Hospital at the age of 77.

Funeral plans include services at the Emory Methodist Church either Thursday or Friday and interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

She was the wife of Albert S. Gatley, vice president of the Lincoln National Bank. They resided at 4710 Montgomery lane, Bethesda for the last two years.

Mrs. Gatley was stricken upon her return from a convention of the District Bankers Association at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Her husband was elected treasurer of the group for the thirty-sixth time, it was announced.

She was born Mabel Hoge in Charleston, Tenn., and came to Washington as a child.

She met her husband when they were schoolmates at the old Henry School, 7th and P sts. nw., and they were married at the age of 21. For a time, they sang in a choir together in a Kensington, Md., church.

Mrs. Gatley taught Bible class for 15 years in the Emory Methodist Church and there is a class named for her there.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Lester A. Twigg, of the Bethesda address; two sons, Albert S., jr., of Glen Echo, Md., and Howard A. of Kenosha, Wisc.; a sister, Mrs. Mildred H. Wisda, of Bethesda, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Reburial Rites Today for Two Area Marines

Reinterment services for two Washington area men who gave their lives in World War II will be held today in Arlington Cemetery.

At 2 p.m. services will be held for Pvt. 1st Class Julian Knight Dobson, first Alexandria resident lost in the war, who was killed in action September 28, 1942 on Tulagi, Guadalcanal.

Lieut. Dobson was born in Alexandria, and attended Washington school there, enlisting in the Marine Corps in January, 1942. His next of kin is a sister, Mrs. Phoebe A. Watson, c-o James J. Smith, J-27-B, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Reburial services will also be at the same time for Pvt. Boyd Taylor Cummings, Marine Corps, whose father is listed as Col. Gale T. Cummings, Post Law Office, Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va.

Montgomery Funeral Rites Set Thursday

Funeral services for Col. John Carter Montgomery, 66, U. S. A., ret., of 210 Prince st., Alexandria, will be held at Fort Myer Thursday at 3 p. m. Burial will be in Arlington.

Montgomery

Colonel Montgomery, Third Army assistant chief of staff in World War I, died in Walter Reed Hospital Monday after a long illness.

Graduating from West Point in 1903, he began a distinguished Army career climaxed by a personal battlefield promotion from General Pershing. He held the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor among other decorations.

Upon his retirement from the Army because of service-incurred disability in 1926 he joined the First Boston Corp., investment firm, as treasurer in the firm's New York office.

Colonel Montgomery was an expert horseman and represented the United States in the Olympic games in Sweden in 1912 in equestrian events.

In 1907 he married Miss Virginia Lee, daughter of Maj. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee of Virginia.

Besides his wife, Colonel Montgomery leaves two sons and two daughters. They are John C. Montgomery jr., of California; Henry Lee Montgomery of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Ceasar Bertheau of River Edge, N. J., and Mrs. Lee Parker of Alexandria, Va.

Mrs. Charles Brackett

Federal Pay Raise Dispute May Bring Congress Back

360 additional people in its compliance division. Although the agency was given a $5,327,000 cut in its request for salaries, the committee report says flatly that no reduction was made in personnel requested for rent control operations.

LABOR-FSA: Senate-House conferees on the Labor-Federal-Security appropriation bill yesterday reached these decisions:

1. To transfer the United States Employment Service from Labor to FSA as of July 1. In FSA, the agency would be placed under the Social Security Administration. It would not be merged with Unemployment Compensation as the House had originally ordered. However, USES would have to reduce personnel both here and its field offices. Officials late yesterday weren't sure how many people would have to be laid off.

2. The Keefe red rider was eliminated from the bill. It would have denied funds to pay salaries of employes who belong to unions whose officers fail to sign anti-Communist affidavits. The rider was aimed at CIO's left-wing United Public Workers.

3. The Women's Bureau would have to abolish its five field offices as of July 1.

4. Funds were given the Veterans Reemployment Service to retain about half of its present staff. About 50 employes will be hired and several field offices closed.

BLS: The conferees failed to agree on an appropriation for the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The House managers are insisting that BLS be cut more than $1,500,000—a sum that would compel the agency to lay off about 450 employes. The Senate conferees refused to retreat from its position that BLS be given funds for a few additional workers in view of the fact that its statistics will dictate the wages of General Motors and other employes.

RETIREMENT: The House yesterday approved the Hagen bill which would allow about 12,000 additional Federal workers to retire at 50 after 20 years of service. Beneficiaries would be employes who investigate, apprehend, and guard Federal criminals such as agents of the Treasury, Secret Service, Customs, and the Immigration & Naturalization Service, prison guards, and U. S. marshals. The bill now goes back to the Senate.

POSTOFFICE: The House yesterday voted to give temporary janitors and other custodial employes of the Postoffice Department annual pay raises of $100 each.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Husband Has Many Fine Qualities, But Wife Has Battled for 15 Years Against His Habit Of Cold Shouldering Her When Playing Host

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for 15 years and my husband has many fine qualities. Generosity isn't exactly one of them, but he is a good provider nevertheless. He is well liked, holds a good position and has no particularly bad habits, but he is decidedly anti-social.

On the score of looks, I am average; not pretty, but I dress well and have a good figure. My personality and intelligence are probably average also, and I am active in sports and fairly popular.

If it weren't for one problem that I have battled all my married life, our marriage could be really as happy as it appears to be.

He's Very Gallant To Wife's Friends

WHENEVER a friend of mine is visiting in our home, my husband becomes extremely attentive to her, usually to the point of excluding me. As a rule the friend thinks he is wonderful, but it is very embarrassing to me.

I don't feel it is ever necessary to subordinate one's husband or wife to the guest in order to be a good host, yet I have never known just how to cope with the situation, aside from ignoring it to the best of my ability, and often that is difficult to do.

Also I have never felt that I had the moral support of my husband that most women have. When there are sides to be taken, Brent either agrees with the other person or remains adamantly silent. I have been told by my family that a little of "the right treatment" would cure this; but I have failed to find what that could possibly be. I would appreciate your opinion. H. B.

Somebody's Too Dependent Here

DEAR H. B.: It occurs to me that Brent's two rude idiosyncracies mean that unconsciously, without understanding his own motivation, he feels a need to assert himself against you, figuratively speaking, hence uses these indirect methods of registering independence, detachment or what-not.

It seems evident that vague resentment or defensiveness is implicit in his behavior.

It may be that he feels emotionally dependent upon you for security to a degree that he resents, all unawarely. Or again, it may be that you are aggressively possessive and manifest undue clinging desire of his approval, which might be very irksome to a man of his passive introspective temperament—which you describe as "decidedly anti-social."

In general, the introvert type dislikes demanding intimate relationships, indeed any attempts to invade his reserve, and while as an antidote to loneliness he may gravitate to the opposite type when hunting a mate, he much prefers—after sanctuary is gained—to be let alone to make his own moves towards "closeness" with fellow beings.

Man Is Asserting Token-Resistance

NOW, assuming that one or another of these defense-reflexes is bothering Brent unconsciously, it is conceivable that he might concentrate cordially on women guests who don't personally interest him in the least, simply because the initiative is his to take; in other words, because he feels free, neither dependent nor cornered, in relation to them.

And as for his keeping silent or siding with others when you want backing, I should call this symbolic resistance to certain other familiar claims you make on him, which he may oblige without argument, but inwardly rebels against.

For advice, don't battle with nor try to erase these assertive aspects of his temperament. There is no perfect person, no idyllic relationship; and if, after 15 years' marriage, you can honestly say he has "many fine qualities," surely these are minor flaws. They stem from basic tensions he can't help, but to the extent that you relax in charitable tolerance of his ways, to that extent will his resistance evaporate. M. H.

The Night Light Burns

Wives of Senate Gather In Gallery for Wind Up Sessions at Capitol Hill

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WHEN A BRIGHT LIGHT shines atop the Capitol dome the Senate is in night session. Monday evening our 96 august legislators commenced working after hours, polishing off business ere June 19 when they debouch en masse to Philadelphia and the Republican Convention. Senators have to work nights because they talk so much! Over in the House gab is regulated. Representatives are limited to five minutes. But Senators can and often do orate interminably. Somehow night sessions seem less formal, almost gay.

Senatorial wives, not anchored to small children, turn up in the gallery, sometimes 15 to 20 in an evening. They chat, watch goings-on below—careful to observe gallery rules—no leaning on the railing (to keep oddments from dropping on senatorial skulls), no writing (except in the Press Gallery), and no reading (out of respect for legislative proceedings, we presume).

When an especially interesting bill is debated the family gallery is packed to the doors. There is no set time off for dinner. Senators drift to the Senate restaurant when their presence can best be spared. They are summoned back by a complicated series of bells which are run from off the Democratic cloakroom by Senate Clerk Mark Trice. One bell is "yeas and nays," in other words a vote impending; two for "Call of Senate" or roll call; four to adjourn, six for recess. The bell buzzes three, five or seven on rarer occasions. Three is for "Open Executive Session," when nominations and treaties only are considered. Five is for "Legislative After Executive"—occasionally the Senate returns to legislative work after executive. The bell hasn't been rung seven successive strokes for several years. It is the signal for "Closed Doors," a closed executive session when galleries are cleared and confidential subjects discussed. Some years ago seven bells rang almost every day, nominations and personalities were gone into intimately. Then, not only were galleries cleared but all except three or four trusted employes were dispensed with.

Lately, however, our Senators seem to have been almost embarrassingly out-in-the-open! When there is filibustering and the session's end is near, Senators struggle on until dawn, catnapping on cloakroom couches, spreading newspapers over their weary bodies for warmth. At all times, though, the greatest senatorial activity is the skittering page boys, flicking in and out, up and down with messages, alighting momentarily, like black and white dragonflies, on the Senate dias steps.

MONDAY EVENING was theatrically fine for the first night session. A band concert was in full cry behind the Capitol, the parking lots were crowded, inside Senator Vandenberg was resplendent in a bright blue suit, dazzling black and white oxfords. Up in the gallery Mrs. Claude Pepper, in cool green print, wore a trick open hat, white flowers fore, white straw aft. Down below, Senator Taft kept elbows on desk, glasses on nose, Senator Malone pretzeled in his uncomfortable leather-seated chair. Upstairs again, Mrs. Eugene Millikin wore a new white sailor dashingly trimmed with uncompromisingly upright navy blue quills. Outside the Senate chamber doors a few anxious constituents waited for their duly elected victims, inside the roll call droned on briefly to an almost inaudible accompaniment of mumbled noes and yeses.

SIR OLIVER FRANKS, the brand-new British Ambassador, made a great personal hit yesterday debuting at the National Press Club luncheon. Sir Oliver came up with a neat trifle. A young British would-be diplomat, taking his examinations, was asked what were the three most important things in the world. He replied, in this order: 1. God, 2. Love, 3. Anglo-American relations!

Miss McDonald Is Married to Army Officer

In the Naval Chapel yesterday at 8 p. m., Miss Nancy Prew McDonald became the bride of Lieut. Donald Sternoff-Beyer, USA, of Seoul, Korea. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stewart McDonald of this city, and Lieutenant Sternoff-Beyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Sternoff-Beyer of Spring Hill, Fairfax County, Va. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Carl F. Hess of Our Lady of Victory Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in antique ivory satin with insets of duchess and rose point lace. She wore an heirloom veil of similar lace and carried a handkerchief belonging to her paternal grandmother and a shower bouquet of orchids on a prayer book.

Miss Joyce Steele Sentner, maid of honor, wore white marquisette over pale green taffeta. Her headdress was a circle of illusion veiling and ivy leaves, and her bouquet was of ivy and candydum. Bridesmaids were Miss Adrienne McArdle, Miss Janice McLaughlin, Miss Christine McDonald, Mrs. Morton Sternoff-Beyer, Miss Robin Dunham and Miss Rosemary Shove. Their costumes were like the one worn by the maid of honor and they carried ivy leaves with June lilies. Kate McDonald, sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore an all-white frock of marquisette and taffeta.

Richard Sternoff-Beyer was best man for his brother and ushering were Morton Sternoff-Beyer, Henry Stewart McDonald 3d, Duncan Keith McDonald, Leonard Meyer, Richard Loos and Thomas Dixon Armour.

A reception followed at Columbia Country Club, and the couple left later on a Western motor trip. After his furlough, the bridegroom will return to his post in Seoul.

The bride attended George Washington University, where she became a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, and is a graduate of Barnard College. Lieutenant Sternoff-Beyer attended Sidwell Friends School, and George School in Pennsylvania. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy, class of '46.

IN KEEPING with one of its aims of "assisting young American artists" Washington Chapter, National Society Arts and Letters, awarded 14 scholarships to promising young people at its final meeting of the season yesterday. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, one of the chapter founders, is pictured making awards to high school students, Helen Johnson, soprano, and George McWhorter, baritone, who will enter the freshman class of the Eleanor Searle Whitney Musical School at Southern College, Lakeland, Fla., next fall on scholarships

Arts Society Gives Awards To Students

Scholarship awards totaling $10,700 were given to 14 outstanding Washington and suburban students yesterday afternoon at the final season meeting of Washington Chapter, National Society of Arts and Letters, at the home of one of the club founders, Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, in Chevy Chase.

The club carries out one of its original purposes, listed at its organization four years ago, of "encouraging and assisting young American artists" with the presentations to these promising young people.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, also one of the club founders, gave seven scholarships of $1000 each through the club to seven students. The awards cover cost of a year's study and living expenses at the Eleanor Searle Whitney Music School which she has established at her alma mater, Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida.

Helen Johnson, 16, soprano, who graduates from McKinley High School this month, and George McWhorter, 17, baritone, who will finish at Woodrow Wilson High School, are the two new winners entering the freshman class at Florida Southern next fall on full scholarship.

Eleanor Updyke, contralto, and Peggy Schaaff, coloratura, will return to Eleanor Searle Whitney School of Music next fall for their senior year at the school on $1000 awards each; Lindsey Bergen, his junior year at the school; Marguerite Martinnelli and Mary Jane Abdill each won $1000 awards for their sophomore year.

Mrs. Henriette Bagger Plum, chairman of the club's music committee, presented the club's two scholarships to Holton Arms School here for a year's study in voice and piano, with the regular academic work included at Holton Arms Junior College, to Miss Barbara Rogers, also a member of the graduating class at Wilson High School, and to Miss Sunny Sturtevant, who returns to the school for her senior year on NSAL scholarship. Mrs. Jesse Moon Holton, NSLA charter member and principal of the school, gave the academic scholarships of $500 each.

George Kafig, American University student, was awarded the NSLA piano scholarship for a year's study there.

Richard Miller and Bert Ramsay of Anacostia High School, won scholarships to study at University of Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Miss Jones, James O'Grady To Be Married

The engagement is announced of Miss Elizabeth Hannah Jones, second daughter of Mrs. Charles H. Jones of Jones Manor, Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y., and the late Mr. Jones, to James M. E. O'Grady of Washington. Miss Jones is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyman Short and the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Livingston Jones.

She was graduated from the Nightingale-Bamford School and

The bride-elect was with the State Department during the war and is now associated with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mr. O'Grady is the son of the late James M. E. O'Grady of Rochester, N. Y., and the late Mrs. Cyril Edmunds of London, England.

He attended Princeton University, class of 1940, and the foreign service school at Georgetown. During the war, Mr. O'Grady served overseas with the Army Counter Intelligence Corps. He is now a vice consul in the foreign service, stationed at Bremen, Germany.

The wedding will take place abroad in the fall.

Macondrays Entertain for Press Group

Mrs. Atherton Macondray entertained at Vauxcleuse, her country home on Seminary Hill, Alexandria, yesterday, having as guests members of the American Newspaper Women's Club of which she is an associate member.

It was the first party where the new officers of the club were up for congratulations following elections on Monday night. Miss Grace McGeer, president for the coming year, was there, and Miss Lee Walsh, vice president, both in dark blue costumes with wide brimmed hats. Miss Ruth Dean, who is second vice president; Miss Ruth Crane, corresponding secretary, and Miss Margaret Germond, treasurer, were there; but missing from the group were Miss Elizabeth Ford, recording secretary, and Katharine Brooks, historian.

Yesterday buffet tables were set up under the trees until strong breezes and lowering skies brought the threat of rain. Then the party continued on the wide porch.

Mrs. Macondray and Capt. Macondray met everyone in informal fashion, just as they happened to appear from parking spaces in the front or rear driveway.

Diplomats To See Arch of Triumph At Preview Tonight

For the benefit of the cultural foundation of the United Nations Club, a film preview of the "Arch of Triumph" will be shown at Loew's Screening Room in the National Press Building this evening. The Ambassador of Colombia and Senora de Restrepo-Jaramillo will attend, as well as the Ambassador of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Ambassador of Paraguay, Juan Felix Morales; the Minister of the Netherlands, and Mme. Reuchlin and the Minister's mother, Mme. Henrietta Reuchlin.

Others invited to attend include Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Finley, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim and Representative Richard Harliss.

The preview of the film, which opens its regular run at Loew's Palace on June 10, is under the auspices of Miss Meredith Howard and Mrs. Margretta Austin, who are establishing the cultural foundation to carry on international art activities at the United Nations Club.

Guests invited to the preview will also attend the opening of the art exhibit at the United Nations Club and will remain for a reception and supper party.

Gen. Fleming's Son Marries Miss Edmonds

Miss Audrey Barclay Edmonds, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Townsend Appleby of New York and Stuart Coles Edmonds of Boston, became the bride of Carson Fleming of Buffalo, Wyo., at St. Thomas' Church in New York June 5. The bridegroom is the son of Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, USA ret., and Mrs. Fleming of Washington. General Fleming is Federal Works administrator. The Rev. Arthur B. Kinsolving, Episcopal Bishop of Arizona, officiated, assisted by R. H. Brooks, rector of St. Thomas'.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin trimmed in lace, with a veil of Brussells lace that had been worn by her mother and grandmother. She carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

A reception was held at the Colony Club. After a honeymoon at Lake Placid Club the couple will live in Buffalo, Wyo.

The bride attended Miss Hewitt's Classes and was graduated from Bishop-Strachan School in Toronto and the Katherine Gibbs School.

Mr. Fleming attended Lake Placid Club School, the Kent School, University of Minnesota and Dartmouth College. He served as a captain in the Air Forces during the war and was a prisoner of Germany for 20 months.

Percival Ridsale Weds Mrs. Bailey

Mrs. Vivian Hohmann Bailey of Johnstown, Pa., and Percival Sheldon Ridsdale of Chevy Chase were married yesterday at noon at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The Rev. Henry W. Snyder officiated at the ceremony, and a wedding breakfast followed at the Chevy Chase Club. Only members of the immediate families attended.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ridsdale will spend the summer at Johnstown, returning to Washington in the fall, and then going to Florida for the winter.

Mrs. Ridsdale is the daughter of the late Edward E. Hohmann, who was a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, and Mrs. Hohmann.

About Cleaning Veneer

I have bought a used dining room set. It is in very good condition, except that it is very dirty. Can you tell me if there is any way I can clean it without harming the finish. I think it is walnut veneer. E. V. M.

You can either wash the furniture with a light lather of mild soap or with a special furniture wash made of turpentine, hot water, and linseed oil. Wash only a small area at a time, then rinse (if soap is used), and dry immediately. Don't slosh water all over the furniture. Use a well wrung-out cloth for the washing and rinsing.

If you wish to use the furniture wash instead of soap, make it as follows: Add 3 tablespoons linseed oil and 1 tablespoon turpentine to 1 quart hot water. Mix thoroughly and let cool before using.

If the surface still looks soiled after washing, dip a soft cloth in lemon or linseed oil, then in rottenstone or powdered pumice and rub over a small area in the direction of the grain. Wipe off immediately with a cloth dipped in fresh oil and using light strokes and working in the direction of the grain. Repeat, covering a small area each time. Rub with a flannel polishing cloth. Paint stores usually carry the rottenstone or powdered pumice and the oil.

For years I have tried all kinds of deodorants and nonperspirants on the market and followed directions carefully, but have never been able to stop perspiration under my arms. I shall greatly appreciate any advice you might give me on that subject as my condition is especially disagreeable in the climate of Washington. I do not perspire much on other parts of my body, am slim and in my forties. E. A. B.

Since perspiration is such a serious problem with you, it might be wise to check with your doctor to see if he can suggest something to control it that would not be injurious to your skin. Incidentally, do you use dress shields in your clothes? These give excellent protection for clothing and keep materials from becoming disagreeably soaked with perspiration.

In your column recently, B. T. asked about removing tea stains from cups. I have never used the methods you suggest, but two that I find simple are merely rubbing the inside of the cup with soda or with scratchless cleansing powder.

H. J.

Can a rag rug be washed and dyed? H. D. P.

Most rag rugs can be washed and dyed quite successfully. If you have a washing machine and the rug isn't too big, wash it in that. If you wish to dye the rug a dark, permanent color, it will be necessary to boil it in a dye bath in a tin wash boiler or some other large utensil. However, if you wish it a light color and aren't too concerned about its fading out in subsequent washings, you can tint it in a strong solution of dye (of the type sold at drug stores) without boiling.

Can you tell me how to clean an oil painting at home? It was done by a member of the family in 1869 and is valuable only for sentimental reasons. It is very dusty and dark. R. E.

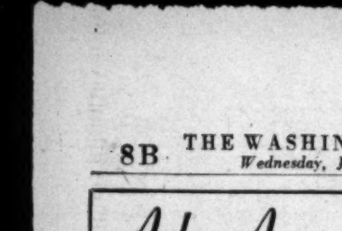
There are several ways of cleaning oil paintings at home. All of them, as I'm sure you realize, are rather risky unless you're an expert. One way is to give the painting a gentle application of petroleum jelly with a soft cloth, then wipe it off gently. Another way is to wash it with mild soap and water. Test with a damp cloth first to be sure the paint won't dissolve in water. If it doesn't, wring a cloth out of thick soapsuds and rub gently on the painting with a circular motion. When painting has been covered, the soap and dirt can be taken up with a soft and clean cloth wet with clear, tepid water. When painting is clean, the remaining water is not wiped but thrown off by a jerk or two. Then stand the painting at an angle—not vertically or flat—in a warm, airy place to dry naturally. To check soiling and to permit cleaning by a simple wiping, a painting can be varnished with mastic varnish purchased at an art store.

A Dressed-up Look

Plain cookies may be made interesting by trimming them attractively. Sprinkle a little granulated sugar on one, paste a raisin, a bit of citron, an almond or a walnut in the center by means of a little white of egg. The colored sugar gives a festive air, too. Don't leave them plain when this small effort means so much.

PETUNIA!

You see before you, friends,
A wondrous thing . . .



Oh, little Garlic Clove,
Of thee I sing!

"Just Wait 15 Minutes And It'll Change"

At our house, where the living room windows were inadvertently left open, the ensuing sunshine was greeted with:

"Look at that. In a few minutes all of Washington will be bone dry except my living room carpet."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Remember me? I'm the guy who was going to try to start a column patterned after yours, in our station paper.

Things aren't going so well, I'm afraid. The only letters I get are short and sweet. Usually, they say something like "drop dead."

But that isn't what I started out to tell you. In my role as a roving reporter, I've picked up two Washington streetcar tokens, which I inclose for Children's Hospital. Bob Ohl,
U. S. Naval Air Station,
Patuxent River, Md.

Dear Bob:

The first thing a columnist must learn is to take those nasty letters in stride. We call them "dear sir you cad" letters.

Bill.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Edward J. Newcomb of 3125 Nichols ave. se. (Lincoln 2081) has been delegated to search for heirs of two former members of the Knights of Pythias.

Sums of money are due to heirs of these men, and anybody who can furnish any information about them is urged to contact District Liner Newcomb. The two are:

Fred G. Atkinson—formerly lived at 642 9th st. ne.; died in Gallinger Hospital March 3, 1911.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Cocker spaniel, 1½ years old." (Oxford 1183.)

"Three female kittens, very good natured." (Woodley 8822.)

HE HAS A LITTLE LIST

Traffic Director George Keneipp has a list with 34,346 names on it.

The names belong to people who were barred from driving autos in the District of Columbia last year. And on our crowded highways, "they never will be missed, they never will be missed."

The statistical breakdown of the 34,346 shows that 24,426 applied for licenses to drive but were refused, and the remaining 9920 lost licenses which previously had been granted.

Most frequent reason for loss of licenses: speeding. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

Of those who failed to pass the driving tests, 13,051 flunked the written exam, 9194 couldn't drive a car well enough and 2181 were rejected for faulty vision.

Keneipp vows that the weeding out of the unfit will continue relentlessly, and that by the end of this year we'll be rid of a group of drivers who cause half the city's accidents.

At first glance, that looks like wonderful news, doesn't it?

But the trouble is that every time we get rid of one unsafe driver two others seem to take his place.

The old-timers who contended that the automobile would never be a success can still put up a pretty good argument.

SUCCESS STORY

D. S. B. of 312 Cumberland ave., Chevy Chase, Md., passes along one of the most unusual true stories we've had in quite a while.

It has to do with a little old lady who arrived here from Tennessee and hailed a cab at Union Station.

The newcomer was here to stay with her ailing daughter, who lived "someplace in Southeast." But she had lost the address, and her daughter had no phone.

The only clew available was a snapshot of the house in which the daughter lived.

And before long he found the house that matched the picture, and delivered the little old lady to her daughter.

On my first day in town, my cab driver insisted there was no such place as Ridge rd., and he took me to Ridge pl. instead. Everything happens to me.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Dr. Eric Mann, the Los Angeles university professor, just completed the first lecture tour of Alaska. In Fairbanks he was to share the platform with a singer doing three Schubert songs, a violinist playing Kreisler's "Caprice Viennoise" and an actor reciting two poems. That night, because of storms and bad roads, none of the other performers could reach Fairbanks. Dr. Mann, with the accompanist hired for the evening, waited and waited. He finally took the platform, sang three Schubert lieder, played "Caprice Viennoise" on a borrowed violin, recited two poems he knew, and then delivered his lecture, "Alaska—Right in the Center."

When Irving Allen won an Academy Award "Oscar" this year for his color-short, "Climbing the Matterhorn," he received a congratulatory letter from Jack Frye, president of General Aniline & Film Corp. The movie was made on Ansco color-film, and Ansco is a subsidiary of General Aniline . . . This was the second exchange of correspondence between Frye and Allen about "Climbing the Matterhorn." The first took place two years ago, when Frye was president of TWA. Allen, after completing the movie in Switzerland, air-expressed the film, via TWA, to Hollywood for processing. The film was lost en route. Allen wrote to Frye, threatening suit. One week later the film, which was to win the coveted award, was found in a Toronto warehouse.

One Sunday the watch company which sponsors "Stop The Music" decided to have three Conover Girls walk onstage during the program's commercial announcement. They hoped that this would result in "oohs" and "aahs" from the studio audience, thus emphasizing the words being read by the announcer . . . At the dress rehearsal there were sufficient "oohs" and "aahs" when the beautiful models walked onstage—but there were also long-drawn whistles . . . The producers made the necessary changes. And at the broadcast came the "oohs" and "aahs" from the studio audience, and no whistles. The substitute Conover models were 4-year-olds.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

How GOP Bottled Up Housing Bill

By Drew Pearson

Here is how carefully Republican leaders in the House of Representatives watched the housing bill in order to keep it bottled up in Wolcott's Banking and Currency Committee.

Pearson

To get it out of committee, Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) was pushing a discharge petition which would force the committee, to discharge the bill.

Walking over to the Speaker's table last week, GOP Congressman Les Arends of Illinois checked over the list of housing bill signers, then whispered to GOP Leader Halleck of Indiana.

Together they beckoned to GOP Congressman Boggs of Delaware, asked why he had signed the housing petition. Boggs protested that he hadn't signed. Arends had made a mistake. It was Boggs of Louisiana, a Democrat, who had signed.

All of which illustrates how the Republican leadership gave categorical orders to Republican Congressmen not to be for housing—despite the fact that one of the pillars of the party, Senator Taft, pushed the bill through the Senate.

Truman Merry-Go-Round

Secret Service has placed a double guard around the Truman train at each stop because of White House troubles with the railroad unions. They recall that during the 1920 rail strike, Woodrow Wilson was subjected to much embarrassment during a speaking tour when striking switchmen uncoupled his private car, letting the rest of the train pull out of the station without him . . . The President has with him a draft of the Democratic National Committee's new $2.50 political handbook, "The Power of the People," by Senator McGrath . . . The 30 Truman "extemporaneous" speeches, including a kicker line for local audiences, were largely written in advance. Truman studies them between stops, sometimes alters them when he gets on his feet . . . At Gary, Ind., for instance, Truman's attack on Congress was inspired by Democratic Congressman Ray Madden of Indiana. Before introducing Truman to his huge labor audience, Madden told him, 'This crowd is for you, but don't pull any punches—and if you've got anything to say about Congress lay it on the line." As a result, Truman, who had planned to make a short five-minute talk in Gary, spoke for 20 minutes in a ripping attack on Congress for doing nothing about the cost of living.

No Unification

The greatest argument in favor of Army-Navy unification was pooling of supplies. It was estimated the taxpayers could be saved a lot of money if the Army and Navy bought their supplies together instead of bidding against each other.

However, Secretary of Defense Forrestal, supposedly a businessman, hasn't even accomplished this—despite the fact that he knew from recent war experiences how great this waste was.

If the armed services kept a single Sears-Roebuck type of catalogue of their supplies it would bring about great saving.

Back when he was still Secretary of the Navy, Forrestal, himself, directed the Navy to prepare a single system of cataloging. But he later ignored his own directive.

The waste that has resulted from this lack of uniformity is astronomical. For example, 30 million dollars worth of tubes were purchased by the Army in 1942—enough to last for 10 years. Yet the following week another order was placed for 60 million dollars worth of tubes—because the Army had to stock different types As a result Army warehouses overflowed with tubes that varied only slightly from each other, maybe no more than a prong spaced differently.

Yet, even this overflow was multiplied a hundredfold by duplication of stock numbers. Normally the manufactuer's number would be assigned to an article; so if 20 different manufacturers produced the same article, 20 different numbers would be assigned and scattered through a dozen unrelated catalogues.

The Army Signal Corps discovered this duplication and assigned 400 technical personnel to straighten out the records. After a three-month analysis, they were able to eliminate 63,000 duplicate items out of 220,000—a reduction of almost 30 per cent.

It was also found that 8500 different types of bearings were handled by the Navy during the war, yet the Navy had 264,000 different types in its records. In other words, the assignment of duplicate numbers had magnified the paper work 30 times.

Even more serious, many installations were forced to shut down temporarily for lack of spare parts, although the parts were discovered later under different numbers. This happened to one of the powerful radar sets in Panama during the spring of 1942 when the canal was in constant danger of Jap attack. To the horror of the Army, it discovered the replacement part was not in stock. A hurried telephone call was put through to Washington and the missing part was ordered flown to Panama at once.

Meanwhile, the stock officer, searching through his warehouses, discovered eight bins full of the identical article he had sent to Washington for. But they were all stocked under different numbers.
